carriage & delivery were delivered to a person who had purchased them from the consignor for the consignee, alleging that he was agent of the latter, but being unauthorised either to hold himself out as authorised, or to purchase or to receive them :—Held : an action lay by the consignor against the co. in respect of the misdelivery, as the property in the goods had not passed to the consignee, & defts. had not been led by pltf. to believe that the alleged agent was authorised to receive the goods.—EGAN v. GREAT NORTHERN RY. CO. (1879), 14 I. L. T. 28.—IR.

m. —— Retaining interest in goods.]—The indorsement of a bill of lading to a bank for collection, though it passes the property in the goods, does not prevent the shipper from bringing an action in respect of the loss of the goods, if he still has an interest in them.—FERRIS v. CANADIAN NORTHERN RY. CO. (1905), 15 Man. L. R. 134.—CAN.

o. Endorsee of railway receipt.] — A railway receipt is a mercantile document of title & the endorsee of the receipt has sufficient interest in the lading from the L. bank, & ultimately obtained delivery orders from the shipowners in exchange for the bills of lading. When they presented the delivery orders to defts. they found that the goods had been already given up to the consignee, & they thereupon commenced the present action :—Held : (1) pltfs. must be taken to be pledgees of the goods, & had a property sufficient to entitle them to maintain the action independently of Bills of Lading Act, 1855 (c. 111); (2) pltfs.' right of action was not affected by the fact that at the date of the wrongful delivery they had not acquired their title to the goods.—BRISTOL & WEST OF ENGLAND BANK v. MIDLAND RY. SUB-SECT. 2.—NATURE OF REMEDY.

1459. Tort or contract—Overloading boat.]—Deft. undertook to carry in his boat, pltf.'s mare safely across the Humber; deft. overloaded his boat with other horses by reason whereof the mare perished :—Held : (1) deft. committed a tort when he overloaded his boat, thereby losing the mare; (2) case lay.—J. 1460. —— Loss.]—An action on the case lies against a common bargeman for the loss of goods which he undertakes to carry for hire; if he plead that pltf. discharged him, the discharge is traversable.—RICH v. KNEELAND (1613), Cro. Jac. 330; Hob. 17; 79 E. R. 282, Ex. Ch.

1461. —— Negligence by lighterman.] — Pltf. declared that at common law every lighterman should so steer & govern his lighter that goods carried in it should not be damaged, that deft. was a lighterman & had carried pltf.'s goods for hire, & that through his negligence pltf.'s goods were damaged :—Held : (1) it was immaterial that deft. was not alleged to be a common lighterman; (2) the action was in tort not in contract.—SYMONS v. DARKNOLL (1629), Palm. 523; 81 E. R. 1202.

Annotation :—As to (1) Refd. Boson v. Sandford (1689), 1 Show. 101.

1462. —— Injury to passengers.] — (1) In an action against stage coach proprietors for an injury to a passenger by the coachman upsetting the coach, the declaration may be framed in tort, for a breach of duty by negligence of servants. (2) Proof of contract is not necessary to support an action against common carriers. They may be sued in trespass on the case for the injury, as arising ex delicto. Such actions are not necessarily to be considered as quasi ex contractu, or founded on contract.

(3) Held : a verdict recovered against some of defts. in an action against several was consistent in such a case with the form of action in trespass on the case, & it was not in substance an action bottomed on contract, but might be supported against some of defts. by proof of the injury sustained by pltf., although a verdict of not guilty were found for the others.—BRETHERTON v. WOOD (1821), 3 Brod. & Bing. 54; 9 Price, 408; 6 Moore, C. 1462 ii. —— ——.]—The action for damages for injury caused by negligence of a common carrier of passengers is in tort. A duty is imposed by law upon a carrier of passengers to carry them safely & securely so that no damage or injury shall happen to them by the negligence or default of the carrier. A breach of this duty is one for which an action lies which is founded on the common law, & requires not the aid of contract to support it.—KENNY v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO. (1902), 5 Terr. L. R. 420.—CAN.

receiving the usual shipping note issued by G. T. Ry. Co. The goods were delivered by that co. to defts. in the ordinary course, & carried to C. They were intended for S. there, who had agreed to purchase them from pltfs., but pltfs. required payment from him before delivery. The station-master at S., being authorised by pltfs. to deliver only half of the goods to S., allowed him to take all, receiving from him the entire freight from T.:—Held: defts. were liable in trover for the packages wrongfully delivered; it made no difference that the contract to carry was with G. In view of the changes in the law relating to Charities introduced by 1888 & 1891 Acts, cases decided before those Acts have been dealt with, as a general rule, as "catchword" cases only. In these cases the catchwords have been amplified to give the effect of the decisions.

Part I.—Charitable Purposes.

SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

1. What are.]—(1) Lands in England were conveyed by deed in 1813 to trustees upon trust after payment of costs & outgoings to apply two-fourths of the rents & profits for the general purposes of maintaining, supporting & advancing the missionary establishments among heathen nations of the Protestant Episcopal Church, commonly known as the Moravian Church; & to apply the remaining two-fourths for purposes which were admitted to be charitable within the meaning of the Act. On a claim for an allowance in respect of income tax under Income Tax Act, 1842 (c. 35), s. 61, No. VI. in respect of the whole trust:—Held: the words "charitable purposes" in the Act were not restricted to the meaning of relief from poverty, but must be construed according to the legal & technical meaning given to those words by English law & by legislation applicable to Scotland & Ireland as well as England, & the allowance ought to be granted.

(2) There are, doubtless, some words to which the law had attached in the stricter sense a technical meaning; but the word "charitable" is not one of those words, though I do not deny that the old Ct. of Ch., in enforcing the performance of charitable trusts, included in that phrase a number of subjects which undoubtedly no one outside the Ct. of Ch. would have supposed to be comprehended within that term. The alternative, therefore, to my mind may be more accurately stated as lying between the popular & ordinary interpretation of the word "charitable," & the interpretation given by the Ct. of Ch. to the use of those words in 43 Eliz. c. 4. The enumeration of charitable objects in the preamble of the statute was very soon interpreted not to be limited to the exact charities therein referred to. Where a purpose by analogy was deemed by the Ct. of Ch. to be within its spirit & intendment, it was held to be "charitable" within the statute (LORD HALSBURY, C.).

"Charity" in its legal sense comprises four principal divisions: trusts for the relief of poverty; trusts for the advancement of education; trusts for the advancement of religion; & trusts for other purposes beneficial to the community, not falling under any of the preceding heads. The trusts last referred to are not the less charitable in the eye of the law, because incidentally they benefit

PART I. SECT. 1.

1 i. What are.]—Funds derived from the gift of the Crown or the gift of the Legislature, or from private gift, for paving, lighting, etc., are charitable funds to be administered by the ct.; but where an Act of Parliament passes for paving, lighting, etc., to be paid for wholly by rates or assessments levied upon inhabitants of a town, the funds so raised, being in no sense derived from bounty or charity, in the most extensive sense of the word, are not charitable funds to be administered by the ct.—A.-G. v. M'CARTHY (1885), 12 V. L. R. 535. —AUS.

1 ii. ——.]—The charitable objects enumerated in 43 Eliz. c. 4, are not the only objects of charity but are given as examples only.—Re MCCLELLAN'S WILL, ROBINSON v. MCCLELLAN (1919), 46 N. B. R. 161.—CAN.

1 iii. ——.]—Scotch trusts, ejusdem generis with trusts falling within 43 Eliz. c. 4, are governed by the rules applicable to charitable trusts in England. Charity is not limited to relief of physical wants of the poor, but includes their intellectual & moral culture; & purposes which concern others than the poor may nevertheless be charitable purposes in Scotch law. —INCOME TAX COMRS. v. PEMSEL (1891), 61 L. J. Q. B. 265, H. L.—SCOT.

1 v. —— Sydney Corporation Act, 1902, s. 110 (5).]—The word "charitable" in above sect. is used in the

2. How ascertained — Whether capable of being administered by Court of Chancery.]—It is no criterion of the invalidity of a charity bequest that it is not capable of being administered in the Ct. of Ch., for that is the case in every charity gift which is administered by the sign manual: but it is a criterion where the question is whether the gift be charitable or not.—NIGHTINGALE v. GOULBOURN (1848), 2 Ph. 594; 17 L. 20. —— Of regiment—Valid.]—Re DONALD, MOORE v. SOMERSET, No. 919, post.

21. —— Ladies in reduced circumstances—Preference given to natives of particular parish—"Public charity."]—Trustees under a will founded & endowed in 1876 out of moneys bequeathed by the testator for the purpose, augmented by smaller gifts & bequests from a few other persons, a perpetual charity. There were no public subscriptions. The primary objects of the charity were declared by the deed of foundation to be (a) to provide a home for ladies by birth & education (called lady occupants) who had become reduced in circumstances, (b) to pay annuities to lady occupants, & (c) to pay annuities to ladies in reduced circumstances who were not lady occupants (called lady recipients). The annuities were not to exceed £52 a year. The deed provided that the governors of the charity were to erect houses not exceeding twenty-four in number on land purchased by them for the charity, that they were from time to time to elect as lady occupants such persons, being not less than fifty years of age & being either spinsters or widows, as they should consider most deserving of the charity ; & that every candidate for election as a lady occupant must satisfy the governors that she was possessed in her own right of not less than £20 a year. A preference in the election of lady occupants & lady recipients was to be given, all other circumstances being equal, to any candidate born in the parish of H. or resident therein for a period of five years in the aggregate. No candidate was to be ineligible on account of her religious opinion, & a lady occupant or lady recipient upon marrying was to cease to be entitled to any benefit under the charity. Every lady occupant was to be entitled to the exclusive use of one house free of rent, the governors to pay all rates & taxes & to keep the house in repair. The home was erected within the borough of H., & consisted of twelve houses, & each house was occupied by a lady occupant. The parish of H. covered an area of fifteen miles in length by fifteen miles in breadth, & had a population of about 205,000. The corpn. of H. having rated the occupiers of the houses to the borough & general district rates :—Held : (1) the charity by reason of its extensiveness was a "public charity," (2) the houses were "buildings exclusively used for the purposes of public charity" within Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (c. 34), s. 168, & the occupiers were exempt from rates in respect thereof.—SHAW v. HALIFAX CORPN., [1915] 2 K. 50. —— —— —— ——.]—Testator, who died in 1886, gave the rents of his freehold & leasehold estates to his wife for life, & after her death he directed his trustees to sell the property & to divide the proceeds in (amongst others) the following legacies: "To M., H., A., Nazareth House, Hammersmith, or their successors £400, to E. & L. of the Convent of the Assumption, Bromley-by-Bow or their successors, £300"

At the date of the will & of the death of testator M., H., & A. were members & officials of a religious community known as the Poor Sisters of Nazareth; & E. & L. were members & officials of a religious community known as the Little Sisters of the Assumption. Both of these communities were societies of Roman Catholic ladies living together in a state of celibacy for the purpose of sanctifying their souls by prayer & pious contemplation; & also, as to the Poor Sisters of Nazareth with the object of affording permanent homes for aged & infirm persons of both sexes; & as to the Little Sisters of the Assumption with the object of gratuitously nursing the sick of the poorest classes in their own homes:—Held: (1) the bequests were not gifts to the named individuals for their own personal benefit, but to them as holders of offices & for the benefit of the associations in which they respectively held office; (2) as the objects of the associations were charitable the gifts were void under Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (c. 36).—Re DELANY, CONOLEY v. QUICK, [1902] 2 Ch. 642; 71 L. 57. Promotion of athletic sports—Building fives or racquet court—Valid.]—Testator by his will gave £1,000 free of duty to the Governing Body of A. School for the purpose of building fives courts or squash racquet courts or for some similar purpose that should be decided on by a majority of the house masters at the time of his death. He also gave £100 free of duty to the headmaster for the time being of A. School upon trust to use the interest to provide a prize for some event in the school athletic sports every year to be agreed upon by the committee of the athletic sports. A. School was founded in 1597 as a grammar school, & by a scheme approved by the Endowed Schools Comrs. in 1875, became a secondary school, partly supported out of the funds of the original foundation. By the scheme the Governors might receive donations or endowments for special objects directed by the donors provided that the Charity Comrs. certified such objects to be for the benefit of the trust, & not calculated to impede the working of the scheme. The Board of Education, who now stood in the place of the Charity Comrs., had given the necessary certificate in respect of the £1,000 legacy. It was proposed to build the fives courts on land belonging to the trust:—Held: (1) A. School was a charity within 43 Eliz., c. 4; (2) a bequest to a charity for its proper purposes was a valid charitable bequest; (3) the object of the charity was the education of the boys in its widest sense, & this must include their bodies as well as their minds, & to provide for this games must be organised, & both bequests were valid charitable bequests.—Re MARIETTE, MARIETTE v. ALDENHAM SCHOOL GOVERNING BODY, [1915] 2 Ch. 284; 84 L. 67. Economic & sanitary science—Valid.]—A testator by his will gave £200,000 to trustees, to be paid exclusively out of such part of his personal estate as might by law be bequeathed for charitable purposes, & he directed that his trustees should stand possessed of the said legacy upon trust to apply the same for the advancement & propagation of education in economic & sanitary science in Great Britain:—Held: a perfectly valid charitable bequest.—Re BERRIDGE, BERRIDGE v. TURNER (1890), 63 L. 69. Law—Inns of Chancery—Valid.]—The Society of Clifford's Inn was one of the Inns of Ch. which were established to provide for the legal education of students of the law. In 1618 by an indenture of feoffment the messuages & premises occupied by the society were assured to certain members thereof as trustees, in consideration of the payment of a sum of money, & the reservation of certain rents. The indenture declared that the intention of the grantors was that the messuage commonly called Clifford's Inn, which was stated to have been for many years used & employed as an Inn of Ch. for the study & practice of the common laws of the realm, & to have been governed to the good of the Commonwealth & the honour of the grantors & their ancestors, "shall & may hereafter continue to be employed as an Inn of Ch. for the furtherance of the practisers & students of the Common Law of the Realm as aforesaid," & that the society should from thenceforth be assured of a certain state therein, & the operative part of the deed declared that the true intent & meaning thereof & of the parties thereto, was that "Clifford's Inn shall for ever hereafter be continued & employed as an Inn of Ch. for the good of the gentlemen of the society & for the benefit of the Commonwealth as aforesaid & not otherwise." The property had long been dealt with by the society as its own, & for its own purposes, & the surviving members contended that it was not now subject to or affected by any charitable trust, but belonged to the individual members for their own personal benefit, to be divided & disposed of as they might think fit:—Held: the property vested in the present trustees was held by them upon trust for charitable purposes.—SMITH v. KERR, [1902] 1 Ch. 774; 71 L. J. Ch. 369; 86 L. T. 477; 18 T. L. R. 456, C. A.; subsequent proceedings (1905), 74 L. J. Ch. 763.

70. Nature study—Annual field day for children—Valid.]—Testratrix bequeathed the income of a fund in trust to provide an annual treat or field day for the schoolchildren of T., or as many of such children as the same would provide for, the selection to rest with the vicar of St. A.'s Church, T., & the trustees of the fund. The income was not sufficient to provide a treat or field day for all the schoolchildren of T., who numbered about 600:—Held: the bequest was a good charitable gift on two grounds: (1) as tending to the advancement of education by giving the children an opportunity of observing objects of the countryside & of nature about which they had been taught at school, & also by affording an incentive to regular attendance & industry in order to be selected as participants, & (2) as being for purposes beneficial to a particular section of the community, namely, the schoolchildren resident or being educated at T.—Re MELLODY, BRANDWOOD v. HADEN, [1918] 1 Ch. 228; 87 L. 146. —— Maintenance of lecturer & reader—Valid.]—Testator directed that after the death of his wife his exors. should set aside and invest a sufficient sum to produce £100 a year to be applied in the manner therein directed for a charitable purpose, & he directed his exors. to stand possessed of the residue upon trust to pay & apply the income thereof for ever unto & equally between the lecturer & the reader of the L. old Hebrew congregation worshipping in S. St., L., but about to remove to a synagogue in course of erection in P. Rd., L., elected, & accepting office on the terms thereinafter expressed. The conditions were that the reader & lecturer should be born of British parents & elected & subject to rules not the same as those which had hitherto regulated the status of such officials. He directed that if any reader or lecturer did not accept office, he should not be entitled to any benefit of the trust, & that any dividend on that or any other account not so applied should fall into the residue. The members & governing body & lecturer & reader for the time being were willing to accept these conditions :—Held : the gift of the residue for the purpose of paying the income to the lecturer & reader of a well-known Hebrew congregation that had existed at L. for possibly some hundred years was a good charitable trust, &, as the conditions imposed by testator could be & would be fulfilled, it would take effect.—Re BRAHAM, DAW v. SAMUEL (1892), 36 Sol. 157. Purchase of advowsons.]—(1) A bequest to trustees to expend the income or any portion of the trust funds "in grants for or towards the purchase of advowsons or presentations" is not a good charitable bequest.

Testator by his will declared that his residuary estate or so much thereof as should be legally applicable to charitable purposes should be transferred by his general trustees to special trustees in trust to apply the income or any portion of the capital "in grants for or towards the purchase of advowsons or presentations, or in creating or contributing to the erection, improvement or endowment of churches, chapels or schools, or in paying or contributing to the salaries or income of rectors, vicars or incumbents, masters or teachers;" but upon certain conditions. The conditions were framed with a view to the promotion of "true Protestant & Church of England principles as held by those of her divines, clergy & members who are distinguished as Evangelical," & though applicable to the other purposes were not applicable to the purchase of advowsons or presentations:—Held: since upon the true construction of the will no trust, charitable or other, which the ct. could execute or control was annexed to the advowsons or presentations for the purchase of which the trustees had power to make grants, & there was no general trust for charity binding the whole fund, the whole gift failed & the residuary estate was undisposed of.

(2) Considering the fact that the A.-G. was made a deft., & in a public capacity as the guardian of a large charitable fund, as this was supposed to be, & that he had the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal which asserted that it was a charity, I think it would have been contrary to his duty, as A.-G., if he had not appeared in support of the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal which pronounced this to be a charity. I think the circumstance also that it is a very large estate ought not to be left out of account. For these reasons I am of opinion that he ought to have his costs; but I wish to guard myself against saying that it is to be established, as an absolute precedent, that in all cases the A.-G. ought to have his costs (HALSBURY, L.C.).—HUNTER v. A.-G., [1899] A. 158. Gift of advowson—Effect of restriction to clergy of particular type of religious thought]—Testatrix, who died on May 14, 1902, gave an advowson to such uses as her three sisters should within twenty-one years after her death, appoint for the purpose of carrying out the express wish of her late husband that the advowson should be made over to & vested in the Church Patronage Trust by all lawful means. In Feb. 1903, the advowson was conveyed to the trustees of the trust, & it was thereby agreed that they & the persons deriving title under them should stand possessed of the advowson upon the trusts & subject to the powers comprised in & forming the 9th schedule to a deed of 1871 which governed the trust. The trust declared by the schedule was to present to the vicarage & parish church from time to time "such fit & pious person of godly life & conversation being in holy orders, capable of accepting & holding the same as the trustees for the time being . . . should determine upon." By the same schedule a trustee was eligible for the appointment, & the trustees were required to be persons "well known or reputed to be of godly life & conversation" professing "themselves members of the Established Church of England & known to be zealously attached to the great principles of the Reformed Faith contained in the Liturgy & Articles of the said Established Church." On May 12, 1903, the trustees issued an originating summons, applying, under 1891 Act, s. 8, for the ct.'s sanction to the retention by them of the advowson. The A.-G. was the only deft. to the summons. The summons was not heard until more than a year after the death of testatrix:—Held: (1) the Official Trustee of Charity Lands must be made a party to the proceedings, but the Charity Comrs. were not necessary or proper parties; (2) inasmuch as the trust did not require the trustees to do any more than the duty required of any owner of an advowson—namely, to present a fit & proper person in holy orders, capable of accepting & holding the living—the advowson was not assured "to or for the benefit of any charitable use" within 1891 Act, s. 5, & 1891 Act, s. 8, had no application to the case.

Semble: (3) where the trust imposed in respect of an advowson is to present clergymen of a particular type of religious thought in the Church of England there is a charitable trust; (4) a certificate of the Charity Comrs. under 1853 Act, s. 17, is not required in the case of an application under 1891 Act, s. 8.—Re CHURCH PATRONAGE TRUST, LAURIE v. A.-G., [1904] 1 Ch. 41; 73 L. 167. —— "Charity property"—City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883 (c. 36).]—Under 35 Geo. 3, c. 61, a piece of land was vested in trustees for the purpose of building a workhouse for the poor of a parish in the City of London, & power was given to raise £10,000, to pay for the land & the building, by the grant of annuities for lives or years, which were to be charged on rates which the Act authorised to be levied on the parishioners. The Act provided that the land should be held "for the use and benefit of the parish." The workhouse was built, & was used for many years for the poor of the parish. In 1837 a poor law union was formed, &, the workhouse being no longer required, the income of the property was thenceforth applied in aid of the poor-rates of the parish :—Held : the property was "charity property" within City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883, & was subject to the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs. under that Act.—Re ST. 168. —— —— ——.]—Under a Crown grant in 1589 an impropriate rectory in the City of London, & also the parish church & the advowson, were vested in trustees for the benefit of the parish, the vicar being always chosen by the parishioners. A vicarage-house was provided by a benefaction in a will dated in 1722, & had since been held by trustees on trusts for the benefit of the parish :—Held : (1) the advowson and house were "charity property" within City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883; & a petition presented as a test case under s. 10, by the several trustees for a declaration that they were not "charity property," was dismissed with costs, the ct. refusing to sanction an arrangement between the various parishes affected by the decision for payment of petitioners' costs out of the charity estates.

(2) "Special leave to appeal" under s. 10 was refused, on the ground that such leave should only be given where the judge considered the question raised by the petition to be doubtful.—Re ST. 169. —— —— ——.]—A petition was presented by the parson, churchwardens & parishioners of a parish under City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883 (c. 36), for a declaration that certain lands or property were not charity property within the Act, or, in the alternative, that petitioners had a vested interest in the land. Part of the property consisted of three houses built on the site of the north aisle of the church. The church was in 1536, by a private Act of Hen. 8, vested in the parson, churchwardens & parishioners, & their successors in free alms for ever. The remainder of the property was held by the parson, churchwardens & parishioners under a lease granted in 1587 for the relief & maintenance of poor, aged, impotent & diseased persons of the parish, & for the necessary reparations of the parish church of A. The rents of all the properties had been applied for general parish purposes :—Held : (1) assuming the houses were built on consecrated ground, a user of the rents for three hundred years for general parish purposes brought the property within City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883, s. 5; (2) the parson, churchwardens & parishioners did not constitute a corpn., except for the purpose of taking the church granted by the Act of Hen. 8; (3) "vested interest" meant interests such as those of persons who received a remuneration out of charity property, & petitioners had no vested interest within City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883.—Re ST. ALPHAGE, LONDON WALL (1888), 59 L. T. 614; 4 T. L. R. 756.

170. —— —— ——.]—Where the site of a church was vested by Act of Parliament in the Corpn. of the City of London in trust for a parish, & it appeared that for 200 years it had been treated as vested in the rector & churchwardens, a conveyance by the Corpn. to the rector & churchwardens in trust for the parish was assumed.

An application was made under City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883, s. 10, by the rector of the united parishes of St. N. & St. E., for a declaration that certain property described as "parish estate" & scheduled in the statement of the Charity Comrs. under the provisions of that Act as "charity property" was not charity property; & that he, the rector, & his successors were entitled to the freehold of the churchyard of the parish of St. N. & to all revenues, profits, & payments in respect thereof, free from any charitable trust, & to have the statement of the Charity Comrs. rectified accordingly. The property in question consisted principally of two pieces of land on the west side of N. Lane, said to have been formerly part of the churchyard, & of which one with the building thereon erected on the site of what was, in former times, the parish engine-house, had been let to a banking co. at a rent of £200 a year, & the other had been let with the building thereon as business premises. There was also other property consisting of sundry small rents for rights of light over the churchyard, & a sum of consols in court representing the balance of a sum of money paid on the compromise of an action by the late rector in respect of lights over the churchyard. St. N. was a City church existing before the Great Fire in 1666. It was then burnt down, & its actual site was unknown; but it had a churchyard connected with it, & it was in respect of this churchyard that the present question arose:—Held: (1) since the Great Fire the site of this churchyard had been treated by the rector & churchwardens as impressed with a trust for the benefit of the parish; by Rebuilding of London Act, 1666 (c. 8) & 22 Car. 2, c. 11, it was vested in the Corpn. of London for the benefit of the parish; &, when the Corpn. found that they did not require any part of the churchyard to be laid into streets as provided by those Acts, it was to be assumed that by some conveyance they conveyed it to the rector and churchwardens; (2) the rector had failed to make out that the churchyard belonged to him & was not a charitable trust.—Re ST. 182. —— Named institute—Trust not already in existence.]—Testatrix gave £3000 to trustees to be applied at their discretion for the benefit of the M. Institute. The M. Institute had been erected by testatrix for the general benefit of the inhabitants of H. The building had never been conveyed to trustees, nor had any charitable trust thereof been created. It remained in testatrix's own control, & had been used for purposes beneficial to the inhabitants :—Held : the bequest of £3000 was a good charitable gift, & a scheme must be directed for its application.—Re MANN, HARDY v. A.-G., [1903] 1 Ch. 232 ; 72 L. be provided to a certain volunteer corps "on the appointment of the next lieutenant-colonel." The officer who was lieutenant-colonel at the date of testator's will was so still at the commencement of the action. In an action to have the gift declared valid:—Held: (1) a gift to a volunteer corps is a gift to a charity within 1888 Act, s. 13; (2) as the gift in question was contingent on an event which might never happen, it infringed the rule against perpetuities, & was void.—Re STRATHEDEN & CAMPBELL (LORD), ALT v. STRATHEDEN & CAMPBELL (LORD), [1894] 3 Ch. 265; 63 L. 197. Officers' mess—Maintenance of library & purchase of plate—Valid.]—Testator gave his residuary personalty upon trust for the officers' mess of his regiment, to be invested & the income to be applied in maintaining a library for the officers' mess for ever, any surplus to be expended in the purchase of plate for the mess. He then directed that two houses, part of the residue, should be for the use of old officers of the regiment at a small rent during their lives:—Held: (1) the gift of residue to maintain a library & to purchase plate for the officers' mess being for a general public purpose tending to increase the efficiency of the army & aid taxation, was a good charitable bequest; (2) the gift might be supported as a "setting out of soldiers" within 43 Eliz. c. 4; (3) the gift of the houses was void for perpetuity, & (4) the houses did not fall back into the residue, but were undisposed of.—Re GOOD, HARINGTON v. WATTS, [1905] 2 Ch. 60; 74 L. 199. Regimental institute—Prizes for competition—Valid.]—Testatrix bequeathed to the Dean & Chapter of St. Paul's Cathedral £200 upon trust to apply the income thereof in the maintenance & upkeep of a memorial tablet in the crypt of the Cathedral. She also bequeathed £1,800 to the trustees of the Royal Engineers' Institute to apply one-third of the income thereof towards the maintenance of her son's tomb in Middleburg Cemetery, & as to the remaining two-thirds upon trust to apply the same in providing prizes for competition among Royal Engineer cadets or officers. She also declared that the legacy of £1,800 was conditional upon the trust for the one-third of the income being applied to the upkeep of her son's tomb being faithfully observed, & in the event of the condition being broken the legacy was to pass to the trustees or treasurers of the Union Jack Club for the upkeep of bedrooms & attendance for the use of men of the Royal Engineers:—Held: (1) the bequest for the maintenance & upkeep of the memorial tablet in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral was valid as a good charitable bequest; (2) the bequest of two-thirds of the income of the £1,800 was a good charitable bequest; (3) the bequest of the remaining one-third of the income of the £1,800 for the maintenance of testatrix's son's tomb was void; (4) it was not forfeitable to the trustees of the Union Jack Club, but fell into the residue. 208. Trust for "protection & benefit of animals" —Valid.]—Testatrix appointed W. to be one of her exors. & trustees, & bequeathed the residue of her estate to him absolutely. It appeared, however, that testatrix had in her lifetime stated to W. that she wished him to apply the residue for the protection & benefit of animals ; & that as it would be difficult to draft a will giving him the latitude that she desired, the best method of carrying out her wishes would be to bequeath the residue to W. absolutely, leaving the spending thereof, both capital & income, in the way intimated to W.'s absolute discretion, relying upon his love of animals :—Held : (1) the bequest was not an absolute gift to W. beneficially, but was subject to a secret trust ; (2) a good & valid charitable trust, on the ground that it was calculated to promote public morality by checking the innate tendency to cruelty.—Re WEDGWOOD, ALLEN v. WEDGWOOD, [1915] 1 Ch. 113 ; 84 L. Sect. 5.—Public purposes: Sub-sect. 6. Sect. 6: Sub-sects. 1 & 2.]

216. Police pension fund—Not wholly a charity.]—Testator who died in 1914 by his will gave £50 to the vicar of C. & his successors to be invested in trust security, & committed to their care & charge certain graves in the churchyard of C., to be kept in good order & repair, with a gift over of the trust fund if the vicar & his successors should at any time fail to comply with those directions to "the superannuation fund of the C. Constabulary." There was no such fund, but testator, as a retired member of the C. Constabulary, had for many years received a pension paid by the C. County Council under Police Act, 1890 (c. 45), which (ss. 1, 2 & 16) established a "pension fund" for the members of every police force or their dependants on retirement of a member or on his death whilst in the force; s. 22 provides for the application of surplus funds to other purposes, & s. 33 & Schedule III. define the "police authority" of a county:—Held: (1) the C. County Council sufficiently represented the police authority of that county for the purposes of the summons; (2) there was a good gift of the income of the £50 to the vicar & his successors as an accretion to the endowment of the living; (3) testator had not sufficiently described the police "pension fund" as the object of the gift over; (4) if he had, that fund was not wholly a charity, & the gift over on failure to repair the graves was void under the rule against perpetuities.—Re DAVIES, LLOYD v. CARDIGAN COUNTY COUNCIL, [1915] 1 Ch. 543; 84 L. 217. Preservation of places of historic interest or natural beauty—Valid.]—Pltfs. were incorporated by a private Act for the purposes (s. 4 (1)) of promoting the permanent preservation "for the benefit of the nation" of land & tenements (including buildings) of beauty or historic interest, & as regards lands for the preservation (so far as possible) of their natural aspect, features, & animal & plant life:—Held: these purposes were charitable purposes.

(2) S. 3 incorporated pltfs. for these purposes, with power to purchase, take, hold, deal with, & dispose of lands & other property without licence in mortmain:—Held: this sect. merely gave pltfs. a licence in mortmain, with possibly a power of sale without the consent of the Charity Comrs. under Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855 (c. 124), s. 29.

(3) S. 21 (2) provided that pltfs.' council might by resolution determine that any lands vested in pltfs. after the Act were proper to be held for the benefit of the nation, & thereupon such lands should be inalienable:—Held: devised lands made inalienable by a resolution within a year of testator's death were not liable to be sold under 1891 Act.

(4) Semble: lands not made inalienable within that period must be sold unless an extension of time or retention order was obtained.

Distribution of funds on winding up, see FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.

243. —— —— ——.]—A benefit society duly established in 1808 & registered under Friendly Societies Act, 1793 (c. 54), consisted of honorary members & benefited members, the former being subscribers & not entitled to receive any benefit from its funds, & the latter being members of a school of industry who as such received instruction, paid fees according to its rules, & became entitled to receive certain specified benefits from its funds in sickness & in old age, poverty not being a necessary qualification. In 1845, the school was closed, & no new members of the society were admitted, but the existing members continued their subscriptions & the benefited members still received their benefits. Its funds comprised an honorary members' fund, half of which was appropriated to a fund called the children's fund, & the other half to a fund called the private members' fund for relief in extraordinary cases not coming within any other fund, & a benefited members' fund subscribed by the benefited members. In course of time there were no children to receive the children's fund & only two benefited members, one of whom died before the case was decided, who were entitled to annuities from the benefited members' fund. There was nothing in the rules to entitle benefited members to the capital of the funds of the society. On an action by the trustees of the society for the determination of the question who was entitled to the surplus funds:—Held: the funds were not subject to any charitable trust.—BRAITHWAITE v. A.-G., [1909] 1 Ch. 510; 78 L. 246. —— —— ——.]—(1) A friendly society formed to provide a fund for sick & distressed members, their widows & children, & receiving voluntary donations, is a charity, where the rules show that poverty is a necessary ingredient in the qualification of appcts. for the benefits of the society.

248. Guarantee society—Surplus funds—Not subject to charitable trust.]—Society A. was formed to raise a fund from the annual subscriptions of its members to guarantee the fidelity bonds into which such members were required to enter by the Crown. Society B. was formed with a similar object. Both societies had a rule under which members were entitled to be guaranteed by the fund, & on death, retiring, or dismissal from their employment, to be repaid their subscriptions with interest. Society B. had in addition a rule under which the surplus, over what was required for guarantee purposes, was paid over to a benevolent fund for the benefit of members. The rules of Society A. gave no power to alter the rules. The two societies having amalgamated, the rules of Society B. were with the consent of the then members made the rules of the new society. The Crown ceasing to require fidelity bonds, the members were repaid their subscriptions with interest, & a surplus remained:—Held: (1) the surplus was distributable among the subscribers to the amalgamated society living at the date when fidelity bonds were no longer required, & the representatives of any since deceased, in proportion to their subscriptions; (2) there was no resulting trust in favour of the representatives of deceased members of Society A. who died before the amalgamation; (3) the fund did not pass to the Crown as bona vacantia; (4) the provision in the rules for handing over any surplus to a benevolent fund only applied while the society was a going concern; (5) the surplus was not subject to a charitable trust, & should not be applied cy-près.—Re CUSTOMS & EXCISE OFFICERS MUTUAL GUARANTEE FUND, ROBSON v. A.-G., [1917] 2 Ch. 18; 86 L. 250. Voluntary association—Corps of commissionaires—How far a charity.]—The Corps of Commissionaires is a voluntary association with a somewhat special constitution for the benefit of able-bodied & disabled soldiers & sailors alike, which is mainly supported by the subscriptions of the members & intended for their benefit ; & although there are funds appropriated to the benefit of the corps which, taken separately, may be considered as charities, the corps as at present constituted would not appear to be a charity within the legal meaning of that expression.

(2) A gift to a perpetual institution not charitable is not necessarily bad. The gift is good if it is not subject to any trust that will prevent the existing members of the assocn. from dealing with it as they please, or if it can be construed as a gift to or for the benefit of the individual members of the assocn. If the gift is one which by the terms of it, or which by reason of the constitution of the assocn. in whose favour it is made tends to a perpetuity, the gift is bad.

A gift to the committee for the time being of the corps " to aid in the purchase of their barracks or in any other way beneficial to that corps " is good on the ground either that some of the objects of the corps are charitable, or else that it does not tend to a perpetuity, inasmuch as the committee for the time being of the corps can deal with it in any way they please for the benefit of the corps.—Re CLARKE, CLARKE v. CLARKE, [1901] 2 Ch. 110 ; 70 L. The Painter Stainers' Co. was a guild for the protection of the particular trade, & held funds for charitable & other purposes :—Held : (1) the gift for the dinners was not a good charitable gift ; (2) the gift having failed, the money fell into the residue ; (3) the gift of the residue, being for benevolent purposes, was not a gift for charitable purposes, & was bad ; (4) upon the construction of the gift over, & so far as the fund was not held

Benefit of freemen of city ward—Income from inclosure in lieu of common rights—Not charitable purpose—Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1885 (c. 51), s. 11 (3).]—By a private inclosure Act in 1763, certain spaces of C. Common were allotted to the corpn. of Y., in trust for the freemen inhabitants of B. ward in that city, as compensation for previous rights of common. In 1632, by agreement with the lord of the manor, the fourth part of the adjoining common of H., afterwards called the "Intack," was conveyed in fee to the Mayor of Y., in satisfaction of the common rights of the freemen inhabitants of B. ward. The allotments of C. Common & the Intack had ever since been enjoyed by the freeman inhabitants of B. ward, & were under the control of pasture-masters, who, after paying the expenses of management, applied the profits of the whole to the benefit of poor freemen, & also for some years past for the benefit of their widows:—Held: the profits of the "Intack" were not within the exemption in Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1885, s. 11 (3), as profits appropriated & applied for any charitable purpose.—INLAND REVENUE

267. School club—Valid.]—Testator by his will bequeathed certain shares in a commercial co. to his trustees upon trust to pay the income to the directors of the co. for the purposes of contribution to the holiday expenses of workpeople employed in the spinning department of the co. in such manner as a majority of the directors should in their absolute discretion think fit, the directors having power to divide same equally or unequally between such workpeople. After making certain other bequests testator devised & bequeathed his residuary real & personal estate to his trustees upon trust for sale & conversion, & to hold the proceeds upon trust for the O. B. Club, a club for old boys of the B. School, to be used as the committee of the club should think best in the interests of the club or school. There were upwards of 500 females in the spinning department of the co., employed at an average weekly wage of 15*s.* & 12 workpeople acting as overseers at 36*s.* to 37*s.* a week. There was also a holiday expenses fund to which the operatives & workpeople could, at their option, subscribe, & this fund was supplemented by contributions from the co. :—Held : (1) as to the gift of shares, the co.'s workpeople could not be regarded as poor people within 43 Eliz. c. 4; the trust was one for private individuals & not for general public purposes; consequently, the trust, not being charitable, was void as infringing the rule against perpetuities; (2) the residuary gift did not infringe the rule against perpetuities, & was valid.—Re DRUMMOND, ASHWORTH v. DRUMMOND, [1914] 2 Ch. 90; 83 L. 290. Under 1891 Act—Devise of land to be sold—Residue of proceeds to charity.]—Land was devised to trustees on trust to sell & to hold the proceeds after making certain payments thereout, upon trust for a charity. The will contained a power to the trustees to postpone sale :—Held : (1) the subject-matter of the gift being " personal estate arising from land," was within the exception from the definition of " land " contained in 1891 Act, s. 3, & s. 5 was not applicable ; (2) it was competent for the trustees, without obtaining the leave of the ct., to retain the land unsold after the expiration of one year from the death of testator.—Re WILKINSON, ESAM v. A.-G., [1902] 1 Ch. 841 ; 71 L. 291. —— —— Proceeds to charity.]—A devise of real estate to trustees upon trust to sell & hand over the proceeds to a charity is a gift of " personal estate arising from the land " within the exception to 1891 Act, s. 3, & is not affected by ss. 5, 6, & 8. The trustees are not obliged to sell the land within a year from testator's death, but may retain it without obtaining the leave of the ct. They are not, however, at liberty to postpone the sale indefinitely.—Re SIDEBOTTOM, BEELEY v. WATERHOUSE, [1902] 2 Ch. 389 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 662 ; 87 L. T. 57 ; 50 W. R. 641 ; 18 T. L. He directed that no part of his freeholds or leaseholds should be sold during his wife's life without her consent :—Held : (1) the reversionary interest given to the charities was not " land " within 1891 Act, but the immediate terminable interest in the income of land was ; (2) the latter interest, not having been sold within a year of testator's death, & no application for an extension of time having been made within the year, had vested by force of the Act in the Official Trustee of Charity Lands.—Re RYLAND, ROPER v. RYLAND, [1903] 1 Ch. 467 ; 72 L. 314. Under 1891 Act—Devise by mortgagee in possession.]—By her will dated Aug. 20, 1891, testatrix, amongst other dispositions, bequeathed the interest on a sum of £850, which was then invested on mtge. of property in England at 5 per cent., to K. for her life, & on her decease testatrix bequeathed one moiety of the interest of the £850 to the president for the time being of A. College, for & towards the maintenance & education of a student at the college, & bequeathed the remaining moiety of the interest to the superioress for the time being of M. Convent, towards the maintenance & education of two orphans from time to time in the convent. Testatrix appointed pltf. & the two residuary legatees named in the will exors. who, after her death on Feb. 18, 1894, duly proved it. The £850 had been advanced by testatrix in Jan. 1881, upon mtge. in fee simple of certain land & houses. Default was made in payment of the principal & interest, & in Oct. 1882, testatrix entered into possession of the mortgaged premises & she continued in possession thereof until her death, & her exors. had ever since remained in possession of them without giving any acknowledgment of the mtgor.'s title :—Held : (1) there was a good charitable gift of the capital of the moieties of the £850 to the president of the college & the superioress of the convent respectively; (2) the land was vested in the exors. of the will, who should sell it & pay the sum of £850, or the proceeds of sale if less than that sum, to the Comrs. of Charitable Donations & Bequests for Ireland, to be applied by them, as to one-half for the purposes of the bequest to the president of A. 519. —— Lands conveyed to donor—Deed not enrolled.]—A convalescent home, consisting of two freehold houses, was founded by testator, who purchased the houses out of moneys collected by him or legacies left to him for the general purposes of the home. The houses were conveyed to him in his own name, & the conveyances were not enrolled in accordance with 1888 Act. By his will, after appointing pltfs. his exors., he left the houses constituting the home to his wife, to be conducted as a home, & he appointed her manager, treasurer, & secretary of the home. By a codicil to his will, testator appointed certain persons to be trustees of the home :—Held : the interest of testator in the home at the time of his death was that of a trustee only, & passed upon his death to pltfs. as his exors., & a scheme should be settled for the administration of the home.—Re FORBES, FORBES v. FORBES (1910), 27 T. 585. Will after 1891 Act—Clauses in use prior to Act inserted—"Such part of personal estate as may lawfully be appropriated to such purposes"—Valid for whole personal estate.]—Testator gave his residuary real & personal estate on trust for sale & conversion, & directed his trustees thereout in the first place to pay or retain all the expenses incidental to the execution of certain trusts & powers, & his debts & funeral & testamentary expenses, & in the next place to pay legacies to certain nephews, & after payment thereof to pay legacies to certain nieces. He gave legacies to eleven charities, & directed that they should be paid "exclusively out of such part of my personal estate as may lawfully be appropriated to such purposes & in preference to any other payments thereout." The will was made after the passing of 1891 Act:—Held: construing the will with reference to the law after the passing of that Act, the charitable legacies were a first charge upon the whole of testator's personal estate not specifically bequeathed, in preference to all other payments, but were not payable out of the proceeds of sale of real estate.—Re HARRIS, HARRIS v. HARRIS, [1912] 2 Ch. 241; 81 L. SUB-SECT. 4.—WILLS GIVING TRUSTEES CHOICE OF OBJECTS.

586. General rule.]—The circumstance that trustees of a charity to which money is bequeathed may consistently with their trust apply the fund in a manner which would be illegal under Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36), is not, of itself, sufficient ground for withholding the fund. The question is whether they must so apply it. If the Court sees that the trust can be duly performed without necessarily applying any part of the fund in an illegal manner it will declare the trustees entitled, but with a further declaration in the case supposed above, to prevent the illegal application. With these declarations the Court will hand over the fund to the trustees.—CARTER v. GREEN (1857), 3 K. & J. 591; 26 L. J. Ch. 845; 29 L. T. O. S. 342; 21 J. P. 626; 3 Jur. N. S. 905; 5 W. 591. —— —— —— ——.]—Testator, who died before 1888 Act, by his will gave real & personal estate upon trust for sale & conversion, & directed his trustees to apply one-tenth of the fund to such charitable institutions & objects as his trustees might determine:—Held: (1) the gift applied & extended not only to the pure, but also to the impure personal estate & the proceeds of the real estate of testator, & conferred upon the trustees a power of selection; (2) if & so far as the trustees selected charitable institutions & objects exempted from the operation of Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36), the names of the charitable institutions & objects selected would be read into the will, and the gift would be a good charitable gift in their favour; (3) as to the impure personalty & the proceeds of the sale of real estate, no exercise of the power of selection in favour of an unexempted charitable institution or object would operate as a valid gift.

(4) If a gift of this kind gives the trustees a discretion enabling them to select such as are valid from a class including valid & invalid objects, that is sufficient to prevent the gift from being voided by that Act.—Re PIERCY, WHITWHAM v. PIERCY, [1898] 1 Ch. 565; 67 L. trust deed & disposition in Scottish form, gave his real & personal estate, which comprised English & Scottish real & heritable estate, to his trustees, & after directing payment of his debts, testamentary & funeral expenses, & giving certain legacies & annuities, gave the residue of his estate amongst charitable institutions. The personal estate was sufficient to meet all the debts, funeral & testamentary expenses, & annuities. By Scots law the funeral & testamentary expenses & legacies are paid, in the first instance, by the personalty, the annuities by the heritable estate. The heir-at-law claimed the whole of the English realty, on the ground that the charitable gifts were void as far as regarded it, & that it was not liable to contribute to the annuities by English law:—Held: though the charitable gifts failed so far as they affected the English realty, by reason of Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36), yet the heir-at-law was not entitled to have it conveyed at once to him, free from the annuities, the trustees being entitled to retain it & to administer it according to Scots law, &, if necessary, to apply it to payment of the annuities.—Re HEWIT, LAWSON v. DUNCAN, [1891] 3 Ch. 568; 61 L. 647. Application of Wills Act, 1837 (c. 26)—Memoranda — Invalid declaration of trust.] — Testator about eight years before his death, which occurred in 1889, called on H., & stated that he was about to dispose of his property in case of his death, & that after making provision for his relations he should give certain bonds to H. & C. to distribute amongst different charitable institutions, & asked H. to assist him in making out a list. Testator & H. & C. subsequently met together, & a memorandum was written by C. at the dictation of testator, to the effect that testator had handed over to H. & C. the securities named on the other side of the paper, to be given by them to the various charitable institutions specified. Testator signed this memorandum, & his signature was witnessed by an independent witness, & the securities, which were all payable to bearer, were handed over & placed by C. in a safe. Testator, however, received the interest on the securities & also withdrew some of the securities, & at various interviews with C. varied the names of the charitable institutions & the amounts payable to them, & the memorandum was accordingly altered or in part rewritten in pencil. Some short time before testator's death, C., at testator's instance, wrote another memorandum as a final expression of testator's wishes concerning the securities which were remaining, but did not ask testator to sign such memorandum, being of opinion that it was highly probable that after so many changes testator would withdraw the remaining securities, & the whole thing would end. Neither C. nor H. made any claim to the securities, but the charitable institutions contended that the memoranda operated as a declaration of trust:—Held: (1) there was unquestionably no valid declaration of trust & the memoranda were imperfect testamentary documents of an informal character; (2) the property which the memoranda purported to affect passed to the exors. as part of the property belonging to testator at his death.—Re SMITH, CHAMP v. MARSHALLSAY (1890), 64 L. By a second codicil she said, "I wish R. to use the balance of the legacy given to him for such charitable purposes as he shall in his absolute discretion think fit." R., by deed-poll, disclaimed the legacy:—Held: (1) the legacy was given for the charitable purposes expressed in the two codicils; (2) a scheme should be directed.—Re BURLEY, ALEXANDER v. BURLEY, [1910] 1 Ch. 215; 79 L. 658. Commoners having right of turbary—Common compulsorily acquired by railway company—Part purchase-money to be held as charitable trust for commoners.]—Prior to 1802 the occupiers of certain cottages were accustomed to cut turf on large tracts of commonable & waste lands of a manor. In that year an Inclosure Act was passed by which comrs. were empowered to allot lands in severalty to the lord & other persons interested, & to allot to the lord in trust for the occupiers of the cottages portions of the waste for a turf common, to be managed as the lord & the churchwardens & overseers should order, & not to be depastured. The comrs. by their award made in 1806, allotted to the lord of the manor, in trust for the occupiers for the time being of the cottages, 425 acres of waste for a turf common for the use of the cottagers. The comrs. also allotted to the lord & other persons interested portions of the inclosed lands in severalty in lieu of their rights & interests. A railway co. took for the purposes of their undertaking part of the land allotted as a turf common, & the purchase-money was paid into ct. On a petition by the freeholders of the cottages for the distribution of the fund:—Held: (1) the owners of the cottages had no claim on the fund; (2) the lord of the manor was entitled to such part of the fund as represented the value of the soil in the land taken by the co.; (3) the remainder of the fund was to be held as a charitable trust for the benefit of the occupiers of the cottages.—Re CHRISTCHURCH INCLOSURE ACT (1888), 38 Ch. C. Proof of.

670. What must be proved—Express trust or express or tacit engagement.]—Where on the face of a will there is nothing to show that any trust or purpose was intended by testator other than a gift of the whole beneficial interest to the legatee, pltfs., in order to succeed in setting the bequest aside, must prove by evidence a trust expressed, or such an engagement, by words or by silence, as will authorise the ct. to say that the legatee undertook to do that which the law prevented testator from imposing upon her, an express trust to devote the residue to an illegal charitable purpose.

Where the evidence, parol & documentary, merely proves the wishes & intentions of testator, & that he refrained by instruction & premeditation from declaring any trust, or imposing any obligation, or exacting any promise for their fulfilment from the legatee, & also that the legatee was, from the impulses of her own mind & disposition, bent on fulfilling testator's wishes & intentions if she had the power, it falls short of what is required to establish the existence of any secret or honorary trust, the performance of which could be compelled on the footing, of the breach of a promise or engagement which would have been binding on the conscience.

Where a gift is in terms absolute, but accompanied with an expression of wishes in favour of another object, & a confidence in the honour & justice of the legatee, unless the language is so express as to be in terms imperative, & to exclude all option or discretion, they cannot bind the legatee or create a trust.—LOMAX v. RIPLEY (1855), 3 Sm. & G. 48; 3 Eq. 673. —— ———.] — Testator established a museum, & laid out a portion of his estate as a pleasure ground, & maintained it for the benefit of the public, whom he admitted under certain restrictions, while reserving to himself his private rights. By his will he devised & bequeathed the museum & pleasure grounds & an annuity of £300 for their maintenance to his son. It was alleged that these gifts were really subject to a secret trust in favour of the public:—Held: it was proved that testator intended his son to maintain the museum & grounds & allow the public access as before, & that the son accepted the gifts with the assurance that this should be done; but that testator intended that the public should acquire no rights, & no charitable trust had been created.—Re PITT RIVERS, SCOTT v. PITT RIVERS, [1902] 1 Ch. 403; 71 L. 687. —— No trust which court can execute—Failure of gift.]—(1) A bequest to trustees to expend the income or any portion of the trust funds in grants for or towards the purchase of advowsons or presentations is not a good charitable bequest.

Testator by his will declared that his residuary estate or so much thereof as should be legally applicable to charitable purposes should be transferred by his general trustees to special trustees in trust to apply the income or any portion of the capital in grants for or towards the purchase of advowsons or presentations, or in creating or contributing to the erection, improvement or endowment of churches, chapels or schools, or in paying or contributing to the salaries or income of rectors, vicars or incumbents, masters or teachers, but upon certain conditions. The conditions were framed with a view to the promotion of "true Protestant & Church of England principles as held by those of her divines, clergy, & members who are distinguished as Evangelical," & though applicable to the other purposes were not applicable to the purchase of advowsons or presentations :—Held : since, upon the true construction of the will, no trust, charitable or other, which the ct. could execute or control was annexed to the advowsons or presentations for the purchase of which the trustees had power to make grants, & there was no general trust for charity binding the whole fund, the whole gift failed & the residuary estate was undisposed of.

r. "Charitable or religious purposes"—As trustees think fit.]—By his will a testator devised & bequeathed the property upon trust to apply the proceeds thereof for the use of the Protestant Orphan Society of C., or for or towards the relief & benefit of such poor & necessitous Protestant widows & widowers resident in C., or to both of such objects or purposes, or to such other merely & purely "charitable or religious" purpose or purposes for the benefit of or advantage of members of the Church of I., or other Protestant denomination within the said county of C., in such shares & proportions, & in such manner as my said trustees "shall in their uncontrollable discretion think fit":—Held: (1) the testator in the words "charitable or religious" had not shown an intention to enable the trustee to apply the gift to purposes religious but not charitable; (2) the gift was a valid charitable gift.—Re SALTER, REA v. CROZIER, [1911] 1 I. Society "or some one or more kindred institutions" having certain specified objects & to divide the remainder of the income between such of the charitable institutions in L. or the neighbourhood as they might select, & in such proportions as they might deem fit:—Held: (1) the gift of the one tenth was alternative & not substitutional; (2) it was a good charitable gift to one or more institutions of which the society named was a type; (3) the trustees had no discretion as to what institutions were to benefit under the gift of the one tenth & a scheme was directed to be settled.—Re DELMAR CHARITABLE TRUST, [1897] 2 Ch. 163; 66 L. 738. "To encourage artistic pursuits or assist needy students in art"—As executors with assistance of other persons think desirable—Void.]—Testator by his will gave the residue of his estate in the following terms : "I desire that my exors., with the assistance of Mr. H., Mr. —, the art master, & any persons they may call in to assist them, shall expend the residue in any manner they may think desirable to encourage artistic pursuits or assist needy students in art, &, finally, if any differences of opinion arise, then the decision of my exors. shall be final & binding" :—Held : it was not a good charitable gift.—Re OGDEN, TAYLOR v. SHARP (1909), 25 T. "Religious, charitable & philanthropic objects"—As named persons should appoint—Void.]—Testator directed that the trustees of his will should out of specified moneys pay 10 per cent. to "such religious, charitable & philanthropic objects" as three named persons should jointly appoint. These three persons all survived testator, but one of them died without any appointment having been made :—Held : (1) the death of one of the appointors without any appointment having been made would not prevent a selection of charitable objects being made ; (2) the word "and" must be read as "or," & as one or more of the selected objects might be merely philanthropic not necessarily charitable, no general charitable intention was shown, & the gift in favour of charity failed.—Re EADES, EADES v. EADES, [1920] 2 Ch. 353 ; 89 L. 765. —— Residue to deserving poor—Whole gift void.]—Testator, by deed-poll, duly enrolled in Ch., conveyed to trustees a piece of land & cottages for the purpose of a hospital for ten aged or infirm poor persons, preference being given to particular parishes. By his will, made in 1882, he charged his copyhold & freehold estates with his debts & funeral expenses & legacies, & gave the residue of his personal property to the trustees of the deed-poll upon trust to build a hospital on the site of the premises conveyed by the deed-poll, & to employ the income of the remainder in insurance & repairs, & paying £18 or more to each of the ten poor inmates, & the ultimate balance, if any, to aged & deserving poor of either sex as out-of-door pensioners. Testator died within twelve months from the execution of the deed-poll:—Held: (1) the deed-poll became void under Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36); (2) the ultimate gift of the balance of the dividends failed for uncertainty; (3) the paramount intention of testator was to found a hospital, & benefit ten aged or infirm poor people as inmates, & the bequest was one which could not be carried out independently of the hospital. The gift to the hospital wholly failed, & could not be carried out cy-près; (4) the question whether the primary gift could be applied according to the doctrine of cy-près or not could not be decided in the absence of the A.-G.—Re TAYLOR, MARTIN v. FREEMAN (1888), 58 L. SECT 4.—ASCERTAINMENT OF OBJECTS OF TRUST.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

816. Ordinary rules of construction adopted—Secondary interpretation not adopted—To escape Mortmain Acts.]—In the administration of charitable bequests it is the duty of the ct. to ascertain from the words of the will, by the ordinary rules of construction, the true meaning & intention of testator, both as to the bequest itself & the mode of carrying it into effect, without in the first instance adverting to the existence of Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36).

When the intention of testator has been ascertained, inquiry is to be made whether the whole or any part of that intention is contrary to the provisions of the statute. But no secondary interpretation ought to be adopted, nor ought the ct. to resort to any different mode of administration from that indicated by testator, even though it may be reasonable in itself, for the purpose of escaping from the operation of the statute.—TATHAM v. DRUMMOND (1864), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 484; 5 New Rep. 24; 34 L. J. Ch. 1; 11 L. T. 324; 10 Jur. N. S. 1087; 13 W. R. 61; 46 E. R. 1006, L. C.

823. —— Description not applying indifferently to more than one charity.]—Testator gave certain charitable legacies, including a legacy of £1000 to "The National Assocn. for the Prevention of Consumption," & directed that if any doubt shall arise in any case to the identity of the institution intended to benefit the question should be decided by his trustees whose decision should be final & binding on all parties. There was no society of that name merely, but there was a society whose full name was "The National Assocn. for the Prevention of Consumption & other Forms of Tuberculosis." There was also an independent branch of this assocn. whose full name was "The Leicester & Leicestershire Branch of the National Assocn. for the Prevention of Consumption & other Forms of Tuberculosis" to which testator had been a subscriber & in whose favour extrinsic evidence of intention was sought to be given. Both the trustees & the Leicester & Leicestershire Branch were desirous that the question of identity should be finally decided by the trustees. The National Assocn. insisted on having the decision of the ct.:—Held: the direction in the will so far as it purported to oust the jurisdiction of the ct. was void & inoperative (1) on the ground of repugnancy & (2) as being contrary to public policy; (3) extrinsic evidence of intention was inadmissible; (4) the National Assocn. was entitled to the legacy.—Re RAVEN, SPENCER v. NATIONAL ASSOCN. 831. —— Domicil & interests.]—A Scotsman who had lived all his life in Scotland, by a will made in Scottish form, bequeathed a legacy "to the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children." The legacy was claimed by the society of that name, & also by the Scottish National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. All the interests of testator were Scottish, the legacy was placed in the midst of a series of legacies to Scottish Charities, & the Scottish society had recently been brought to the notice of testator. The National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children had its head office in London & did not actively operate in Scotland, & there was no evidence that it was known to testator:—Held: the latter society was entitled to the legacy.—NATIONAL SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO CHILDREN v. SCOTTISH NATIONAL SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO CHILDREN, [1915] A. 832. —— Bequest to A. "for the charitable purposes agreed upon between us"—Affidavit of A. as to what were the purposes.]—By her will, dated in 1899, testatrix, who died in 1901, bequeathed the sum of £4000 to A. "for the charitable purposes agreed upon between us." A summons was taken out by the trustees to ascertain the effect of the bequest, & in support thereof A. filed an affidavit in which he stated what were the charitable purposes so agreed upon, & that they were to come to an end with his own lifetime:—Held: (1) the evidence of A. was admissible only for the purpose of proving matters not defined by the will—i.e., to ascertain what were in fact the charitable purposes agreed upon between testatrix & A.—but not to show other matters that were plainly dealt with by the will; (2) the effect of the evidence was to contradict the gift by the will of a fund of £4000, & to reduce it to a gift of the income of that fund during the lifetime of A., but that evidence could not be admitted; (3) there was a general charitable intention; (4) there ought to be an order for a scheme not limited to the income of the fund, but extending to the whole fund.—Re HUXTABLE, HUXTABLE v. CRAWFURD, [1902] 2 Ch. 793; 71 L. 833. —— Entries in book kept by testatrix.]—Testatrix by will made in 1897, among other legacies to charitable institutions, bequeathed to the British Home for Incurables, Streatham, S.W., mentioning accurately the name of its secretary & address of its office, £250. By codicil made in 1902, after reciting twice incorrectly that she had given by will £500 to the British Home for Incurables, Streatham, S.W. . . . &, amongst others, to St. M.'s Orphanage, Bayswater, £100, she revoked all the legacies, "& instead thereof" bequeathed £500 each to the Royal Home for Incurables, Streatham, S.W., & to St. M.'s Orphanage. The legacy of £500 was claimed by the Royal Hospital for Incurables & by pltf. institution, founded in 1861 by the name of the British Home for Incurables, & in 1899 incorporated by Royal Charter by its present name:—Held: having regard to entries in a book kept by testatrix containing particulars of her charitable contributions, she distinguished the two institutions as the "Royal" & the "British," &, therefore, on the true construction of the codicil, the Royal Hospital for Incurables was entitled to the legacy. —BRITISH HOME & HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES v. ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES (1904), 90 L. Testatrix was a member of the National Protestant Church Union, which was in July 1906 amalgamated with another society to form the National Church League. Testatrix was informed of the amalgamation, & gave a subscription to the National Church League:—Held: (1) the National Church League was entitled to the legacy of £2500.

There was no society called the Governesses' Benevolent Institution at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, but there was a society having an office there called the Northern Counties Society for Granting Annuities to Governesses & other Ladies, to which testatrix had on two occasions given donations:—Held: (2) the society was entitled to the legacy of £200.

Both the league & the society were unincorporated charities & were sued under their respective names:—Held: (3) where an unincorporated charity is sued, the proper practice is to sue A., being the treasurer or secretary or other responsible officer, on behalf of the charity; (4) strictly speaking, the unincorporated charity should not be sued in its own name, but, if it be so sued, appearance should be entered by the treasurer, secretary or other proper officer on its behalf.—Re PRITT, MORTON v. NATIONAL CHURCH LEAGUE (1915), 85 L. 897 ii. ——.]—A bequest was made to a Ragged Industrial School which had been established in 1857 by an association "to rescue" destitute children "& to fit them for the duties of life by imparting to them a good, common, & Christian education." The members of the society had power to alter the constitution. Originally, & till after the testator's death, the society conducted a school of its own. Owing to the provision of free education it closed & sold its school, & thereafter devoted its funds under an amended constitution to providing destitute children with clothing & books to enable them to attend the board school. Vesting of the legacy was postponed until an event which occurred after these changes had been introduced:—Held: the institution had not lost its identity, although it had altered its methods of attaining the carrying on of the rescue & preventive work at St. Mary's Home had been transferred from one association to another, though without any break in the continuity of the home or of the work carried on there, & that between the date of the codicil & testatrix's death St. Mary's Home was removed from 15, W. Square, not 15, W. Street, as described in the will, to 14, T. Square; (2) neither of the associations above mentioned was entitled to the legacy, but it must be applied under a scheme for the benefit of St. Mary's Home, unless the A.-G. consented to the legacy being paid to one of deft. associations on an undertaking to apply it to St. Mary's Home.—Re WEDGWOOD, SWEET v. COTTON, [1914] 2 Ch. 245; 83 L. 898. Amalgamation—Gift to each institution.]—Testatrix, who died in 1885, by a codicil to her will dated in 1882, bequeathed to the "Anti-Vivisection Society" a legacy of £200 & to the "International Anti-Vivisection Society" a legacy of £200. These two societies amalgamated in 1883, their objects being identical:—Held: (1) for the purpose of the will, both societies must be deemed to be still in existence, & took both legacies, & the united society was entitled to £400.

A legacy of £1000 was bequeathed by testatrix to a clergyman for the benefit of the "Society for Suppressing Cruelty by United Prayer," & for accomplishing its purposes & objects. The so-called society had been originated by testatrix herself in 1876, & had, at various times, had some thousands of members. The society had no rules, but the members were required to buy a card at the cost of twopence, & to use a prayer which was printed on the card. Testatrix caused the cards to be printed at her own cost, & received the money for the cards, but published no accounts:—Held: (2) on the face of the will, the gift was to a particular society, & if at the date of the death of testatrix the society had ceased to exist, the ordinary doctrine of lapse would apply, unless the gift could be shown to be to a society which was a charity; (3) the evidence showed that testatrix was in truth the society itself, & at her death the society came to an end; (4) the legacy was rather for the improvement of the persons praying privately for the objects stated under the name of the society than for the suppression of cruelty to animals by ordinary means, which was not a purpose of general utility, & the legacy lapsed & fell into the residue.—Re JOY, PURDAY v. JOHNSON (1888), 60 L. 902. Various testators left legacies to or for the purposes of the B. branch, which was not a separate charitable body:—Held: in the case of legacies that were within the bye-law the institution was entitled, on their receipt by the branch, to have them paid over & the central committee was entitled to control the expenditure of the money, subject to its being restricted to the area of the branch, but where a legacy had been left to the local committee, to be applied in their discretion in connection with the branch, or had been left to be applied by the local committee for the relief of sailors, the legacy not being within the bye-law should not be sent to the institution but should be administered by the local committee.—ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION v. TURVER (1915), 31 T. 908. "Home for the Homeless"—Administered cy-près.]—Testatrix by her will gave pecuniary legacies to charities established for a variety of purposes, e.g. to aid consumptive persons, blind persons, orphans, deaf & dumb persons, epileptics & paralytics. One of the legacies was of a sum of £500 to the "Home for the Homeless." After providing that in the event of any question arising as to the designation of any of the charitable institutions, or of any doubt arising as to which one of two or more of them it was intended to benefit, the decision should rest absolutely with her exor. & after giving other legacies, testatrix provided that her residuary money should be divided ratably among the various charitable institutions which were beneficiaries under her will. At the date of the will there was not, & there never had been previously, in London any charitable institution known as the "Home for the Homeless." After making provision for debts & legacies there was a fund distributable as residue among the charitable institutions which were beneficiaries under the will:—Held: (1) the ct. was justified in drawing the inference of a general charitable intention with reference to the gift of £500 & the gift did not lapse, but must be administered cy-près; (2) the word "institutions" was large enough to include any authority or person that would have to administer the fund, & the authority or person was also entitled to the share of residue which would have been taken by the "Home for the Homeless" if it had existed.—Re DAVIS, HANNEN v. HILLYER, [1902] 1 Ch. 876; 71 L. "Protestant Church Bible Society"—Administered cy-près.]—Testator bequeathed part of his estate to, among other institutions, the objects of all of which were obviously charitable, the "Protestant Church Bible Society." No society of that name had ever existed:—Held: the ct. had to look not merely at the name of the particular institution, but at the whole context to see whether a charitable gift was intended, &, as the "Protestant Church Bible Society" was included in a list with other institutions the objects of all of which were obviously charitable, it must be inferred that testator meant a society whose objects were charitable, as the cheap distribution of Bibles would be, & as the legacy failed, there must be an application of the bequest cy-près.—Re PARKES, COTTRELL v. PARKES (1909), 25 T. H. Gifts to Institutions or for particular Charitable Purposes which cease to exist.

(a) Gifts to Institutions.

911. Whether institution has wholly ceased to exist—Named institution defunct at death of testator—Institution in existence with similar name & objects—Entitled—As being sufficiently described.]—COLDWELL v. HOLME (1854), 2 Sm. & G. 31; 2 Eq. Rep. 390; 23 L. J. Ch. 594; 18 Jur. 396; 2 W. R. 150; 65 E. R. 288.

Annotations:—Folld. Re Magrath, Histed v. Queen's University of Belfast, [1913] 2 Ch. 331. Refd. Re Slevin, Slevin v. Hepburn, [1891] 2 Ch. 236.

912. —— —— —— —— ——.]—By her will made in 1910 testatrix gave a legacy of £3,000 to Q. College, to found a scholarship bearing her name. Her husband had been educated at the college. The college had been dissolved in 1909 under Irish Universities Act, 1908 (c. 38), whereby its property had been transferred to the Q. University founded in pursuance of the Act. There was no evidence whether testatrix knew of the dissolution of Q. College:—Held: it could not be assumed that she was ignorant of what had taken place, & the Q. University, being an existing society of similar name & identical purpose, & sufficiently described, was entitled to the legacy.—Re MAGRATH, HISTED v. QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY OF BELFAST, [1913] 2 Ch. 331; 82 L. J. Ch. 532; 108 L. T. 1015; 29 T. L. R. 622.

913. —— —— Other institutions with somewhat similar names but distinct objects in existence—Not entitled.]—BROWNJOHN v. GALE, [1869] W. N. 133.

Annotation:—Mentd. Re Webster, Pearson v. Webster, [1912] 1 Ch. 106.

914. —— —— Title incorporated with that of similar institution in order to secure legacies—Not entitled.]—Re BRIGHTWEN, SHELLY v. SHELLY (1907), Times, Feb. 7.

915. —— Testator himself the institution—Institution ceasing at death—Lapse.]—Re JOY, PURDAY v. JOHNSON, No. 898, ante.

916. —— —— Intention that some institution should continue to be carried on—No lapse.]—Testatrix bequeathed her estate to "The O. Home for Nurses," & added directions for carrying on the home for the next few months. Testatrix was a qualified midwife, who for moderate fees attended maternity cases among the working-classes & poor people of C. She employed at weekly salaries several other trained midwives, who resided with her, & the fees paid by the former & earned by the latter were received by testatrix. By means of the fees so paid & her own small income she just managed to carry on her establishment which she called "The O. Home for Nurses":—Held: although there was no person or institution which could properly be called "The O. Home for Nurses," testatrix clearly intended something to be carried on for the benefit of the patients requiring nursing, & there was a good & valid charitable gift, & a scheme should be directed.—Re WEBSTER, PEARSON v. WEBSTER, [1912] 1 Ch. 106; 81 L. J. Ch. 79; 105 L. T. 815; 56 Sol. Jo. 90.

917. —— Named branch of hospital closed—Other branches still carried on—Hospital entitled.]—Re BRADFIELD (1892), 8 T. L. R. 696; 36 Sol. Jo. 646.

918. —— Public elementary school closed as such—Used as Sunday school.]—Testatrix bequeathed £400 to A. School. This school was granted by deed in 1869 to the vicar of H., his successors, & assigns upon trust for the education of children of the poorer classes. It was carried on by the vicar as trustee & was recognised as a public elementary school until 1900, when it was closed as such a school by the education authority, but it continued to be used for Sunday school classes under the control of the vicar, who also let it on weekdays to the managers of a neighbouring school as an infants' school:—Held: although the weekday letting was not a carrying on of the school by the vicar as contemplated by the deed, yet the school was still existing by reason of the continuance of the Sunday school classes under the vicar's control, & the legacy had not lapsed.—Re WARING, HAYWARD v. A.-G., [1907] 1 Ch. 166; 76 L. J. Ch. 49; 95 L. T. 859; 51 Sol. Jo. 101.

Annotation:—Consd. A.-G. v. Shadwell, [1910] 1 Ch. 92.

919. —— Volunteer, Yeomanry & Militia units transferred to Territorial Force & Army Reserve.]—Testator by his will, dated in 1893, devised & bequeathed the residue of his estate to trustees upon trust for sale, & out of the proceeds to pay legacies of £50 each "to the officers commanding the Volunteer Rifles at B., the Volunteer Artillery at B., & the Volunteer Rifles at W. for the use of their respective corps," & a legacy of £1,000, "to the officer commanding the N. Militia for the mess of that regiment or for the poor of the regiment." By a first codicil testator directed his trustee to divide the residue into eight parts & to accumulate three of such parts for seven years from his decease, & then to divide the accumulated fund "ratably among the persons & institutions to whom & to which I have given pecuniary legacies & the foregoing five eighth shares of residue by this codicil to my will, or such of them as shall be alive & existing in proportion to their respective shares of residue. In the event, however, of any such legatee dying or any such institution ceasing to exist prior to the expiration of such seven years, the share to which he or it would have been entitled shall go to my next of kin." By an eighth codicil testator bequeathed "to the officer commanding the 1st Battalion L. Volunteers the sum of £1,000, & to the officers commanding the D. Yeomanry Cavalry & the S. Volunteers respectively the sum of £500 each," & he declared that the respective sums should be held by the commanding officers "for any purpose or purposes for the benefit of their respective corps, it being my intention that the funds shall be deemed private funds & be held & expended entirely independently of Government control." Testator died in Jan., 1902, & in Jan., 1909, the seven years limited by his will for accumulation expired & the fund became distributable. In the interval Territorial & Reserve Forces Act, 1907 (c. 9), was passed, which, by s. 29 & an Order in Council of Mar. 19, 1908, made thereunder, transferred the Volunteer & Yeomanry units to the Territorial Force, & by s. 34 & an Order in Council of April 9, 1908, transferred the Militia units to the Army Reserve:—Held: (1) the effect of the Act & the Orders in Council was not to destroy the Volunteer, Yeomanry, & Militia units, but to reorganise them, & those units had not ceased to exist; (2) the legacies bequeathed to the Volunteer & Yeomanry units were payable to the several county associations established under the Act on behalf of the units of the Territorial Force which now represented those units; (3) the legacy "to the officer commanding the N. Militia for the mess of that regiment or for the poor of the regiment" was a good charitable gift, & was payable to the officer commanding the unit of the Army Reserve which now represented the N. Militia.—Re DONALD, MOORE v. SOMERSET, [1909] 2 Ch. 410; 78 L. J. Ch. 761; 101 L. T. 377; 53 Sol. Jo. 673.

920. —— District nurses fund divided.]—Testator, by his will, directed his trustees to invest the sum of £500 & pay the net annual income thereof "to the treasurer or treasurers for the time being of the A. & B. District Nurse Fund, to be applied by him or them for & in aid of the charitable work for which the fund has been raised," & he declared that "should the charitable work for which the fund has been instituted from any cause cease to be carried on for the space of two years" the sum & income should fall into his residuary estate. Testator had been a subscriber for many years to a fund bearing the name mentioned, but some months before the date of his will the village of B. ceased to be connected with the fund, & started one of its own, while the village of A. carried on its own work in its own name:—Held: (1) the will showed a general charitable intention, & not merely an intention to give a fund to a particular charitable institution; (2) the fund had not ceased to exist but had been divided into two, & the proper way of carrying out testator's charitable intention would be to give four fifths to A. & the remaining one fifth to B., these being the proportions of population in the two villages respectively.—Re WILSON, WARDLE v. LEMON (1909), 25 T. L. R. 465.

921. —— Endowed charities consolidated & their objects changed by Charity Commissioners.]—F., who died in 1911, gave by her will a legacy of £200 "to Mrs. Bailey's Charity, R." There was at R. a charity known as Hannah Bayly's Charity founded in 1756 by a Mrs. Bayly for the benefit of poor widows resident in & parishioners of St. M., R. In 1905 the Charity Comrs. sealed a scheme in the matter of the charity of Hannah Bayly's Charity, & thirteen other charities in R. whereby the endowments of all those charities were consolidated, trustees were appointed & trusts declared for the benefit of the poor of R. There was no mention of widows in the scheme. On a summons against the trustees of the consolidated charities & a residuary legatee to determine whether the legacy had lapsed, the judge decided that Hannah Bayly's Charity had ceased to exist & the legacy had lapsed. The A.-G. was not a party to the summons, but he appealed by special leave granted by the C. A.:—Held: (1) the A.-G. had a right to be a party to the proceedings & to appeal although the trustees of the consolidated charities had been present & had argued the question in the ct. below; (2) Hannah Bayly's Charity was an endowed charity, & could not be destroyed & was not extinct, although its objects had been changed in accordance with law, & the consolidated charities were entitled to the legacy.

Semble: (3) a specific provision for widows ought not to have been omitted from the scheme, & an application should be made to amend the scheme by inserting such a provision.—Re FARAKER, FARAKER v. DURELL, [1912] 2 Ch. 488; 81 L. J. Ch. 635; 107 L. T. 36; 56 Sol. Jo. 668, C. A.

A. How far Gifts denominational.

949. General rule — Presumption against exclusion of particular denomination.]—A first principle applicable to charities is that the intentions of the founder are to be carried into effect, as far as they are capable of being so, & so far as they are not contrary to law, using the word law in its proper & widest signification, as including the precepts of religion & morality. If, therefore, the founder has directed that only persons conforming to the Church of England shall be recipients of his bounty, his will must be followed.

If a charity be founded to support some religious establishment, or if it seek to promote religious education, &, if in addition to this, the intentions of the founder are not clearly expressed, or if the instrument of foundation be lost, or even never had any existence, the opinions & religious tenets of the founder have a most material bearing on this question, who are the objects of the charity, & in what manner the trusts of it are to be performed, for the purpose of carrying into effect the general purpose, which is known to be the support of religion. In these cases, the presumption in the first instance is, that the founder intended to support an establishment belonging to some particular form of religion, & that he intended some particular doctrine of religion to be taught. The next presumption is that this establishment & that this doctrine was that which he himself supported & professed, & the ct. will look carefully at his course of life & conduct, & spell out expressions, not merely in the instrument of foundation, but in his will & works, to ascertain what were the doctrines & opinions entertained & professed by him.

To some extent, though in a far less degree, the same principle applies when a charity has been founded for purposes of secular education. Here, in the absence of expressed intention, the ct. will not assume that the founder intended any particular religious doctrine to be combined with the secular education; but, on the contrary, will assume that the object was for secular instruction generally, & that admitting that religious education is to form part of the instructions given, it would still allow each person who needed the secular education to obtain the benefit of it, & would not, by enforcing particular rules relative to religious instructions, prevent all denominations of Christians from obtaining the benefit of the instructions so offered. But here again, if the founder has expressed an intention that religious instruction of a particular character shall form a part of the instruction given, the ct. will follow that direction, although the effect may be to exclude a large portion of the community, most in need of the charity, from deriving any benefit from it. But when the charity is purely eleemosynary, a different class of considerations arise.

Prior to the Reformation, almshouses were erected & endowed. The almspeople were required to attend the chapel & say Paternosters, Aves, etc., & pray for the souls of the dead, & if they did not obey the ordinances, were to be expelled. The parson of the parish & churchwardens were to distribute the rents:—Held: (1) Dissenters who could conscientiously comply with the directions laid down by the founder, modified by the changes produced by the Reformation & the subsequent statutes, were not excluded from obtaining the benefit of the charity, & if a Dissenter conformed to the rules, the trustees could not examine whether he did so sincerely; (2) the fact of the recipients of a charity being required to rehearse a particular prayer in church, or sit in a particular pew, or attend at the church porch or in the church itself to receive the bounty, did not justify the exclusion of Dissenters from participating in the charity.—A.-G. v. CALVERT (1857), 23 Beav. 248; 26 L. 956. —— —— ——.]—The identity of a religious community described as a Church consists in the identity of its doctrines, creeds, confessions, formularies & tests. The bond of union of a Christian association may contain a power in some recognised body to control, alter or modify the tenets or principles at one time professed by the association, but the existence of such a power must be proved.

The denomination of Christians which called itself the Free Church of Scotland was founded in 1843. It consisted of ministers & laity who seceded from the Established Church of Scotland, but who professed to carry with them the doctrine & system of the Established Church, only freeing themselves by secession from what they regarded as interference by the State in matters spiritual. Two main fundamental doctrines which applts., the minority of the Free Church, asserted that the seceders in 1843 carried with them & issued in their Claim, Declaration & Protest to their supporters & benefactors in that year to stand for all time were the Establishment principle, & the unqualified acceptance of the Westminster Confession of Faith, & they further asserted that these doctrines were part of the constitution of the church & could not be altered. In 1843 & subsequent years the response to the appeal for funds was most bountiful, & the Free Church was endowed by the liberality of its members, the property being secured under what was called a "Model Trust Deed." For many years efforts had been made to bring about a union between the Free Church & the United Presbyterian Church, also seceders from the Established Church, but a church pledged to disestablishment. In 1900 Acts of Assembly were passed by the majority of the Free Church & unanimously by the United Presbyterian Church for union, under the name of the United Free Church, & the Free Church property was conveyed to new trustees for behoof of the new Church. The United Presbyterian Church was opposed to the Establishment principle, & did not maintain the Westminster Confession of Faith in its entirety. The Act of Union left ministers & laymen free to hold opinions as regards the Establishment principle & the predestination doctrine, in the Westminster Confession, as they pleased. Resps. contended that the Free Church had full power to change its doctrines so long as its identity was preserved. Applts., a very small minority of the Free Church, objected to the union, maintaining that the Free Church had no power to change its original doctrines, or to unite with a body which did not confess those doctrines, & they complained of a breach of trust inasmuch as the property of the Free Church was no longer being used for behoof of that Church, & they brought an action in the name of the General Assembly of the Free Church, asking substantially for a declarator that they, as representing the Free Church, were entitled to the property:—Held: (1) the Establishment principle & the Westminster Confession were distinctive tenets of the Free Church; (2) the Free Church had no power, where property was concerned, to alter or vary the doctrine of the Church; (3) there was no true union, as the United Free Church had not preserved its identity with the Free Church, not having the same distinctive tenets; (4) applts. were entitled to hold for behoof of the Free Church the property held by the Free Church before the union in 1900.—FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND (GENERAL ASSEMBLY) v. OVERTOUN (LORD), MACALISTER v. YOUNG, [1904] A. Ascertainment of founder's intentions—Meeting-house "for the worship & service of God."]—Information & bill to quiet the possession of the relators & pltfs.', one claiming as the surviving trustee, the other as minister, of a protestant dissenting meeting-house, for an appointment of new trustees, & an injunction to stay proceedings in ejectment by defts., claiming also to be trustees of the meeting-house. Upon motion for an injunction, it appearing that the meeting-house was erected in 1701, under a trust deed, whereby the purpose was declared to be "for the worship & service of God," pltfs. & relators contending, from the purpose so expressed, that the intention was for promoting the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, & that the trust could not be diverted from the purpose for which it was intended, defts. insisting that the intention was as general as the purpose expressed, & had no regard to any particular tenets, it being also made a question, whether a trust for supporting Unitarian worship was legal & could be supported, & it being further disputed who, according to the true construction of the deed, were entitled, as trustees, to the possession, the injunction was granted, upon the parties undertaking to abide by such order as the ct. should thereafter make, & it was referred to the master to inquire (inter alia) in whom the legal estate was vested, & the particular object, with respect to worship & doctrine, for which the trust was created.—A.-G. v. PEARSON (1817), 3 Mer. 353; 36 E. 976. Fund for reparations, ornaments & "other necessary occasions" of church—New parish church erected—Costs of spire allowed—& payment of salaries of persons employed to look after fabric or ornaments.]—An ancient charity existed for the "reparations, ornaments, & other necessary occasions of the parish church of S." A new parish church was built by public subscription & substituted for the old church, the charity & other endowments being transferred from the old to the new church, which became the parish church of S. The new church was intended by the architect to have a spire, but, owing to lack of funds, it was consecrated without one. Upon an application to the ct. for the settlement of a scheme for the future management of the charity & the application of the income thereof:—Held: the erection of the spire & the payment of salaries of persons employed in cleaning or maintaining the fabric of the church were objects to which the income of the charity might properly be applied.—Re PALATINE ESTATE CHARITY (1888), 39 Ch. 977. Fund to be used by "churchwardens" wholly about parish church—Applicable inter alia to repairs of chancel.]—By a trust deed of 1620 two husbandmen of S. granted certain lands to trustees to the sole use that the rents & profits should be received, employed & bestowed by the churchwardens wholly about the parish church:—Held: the fact that the application of the income was placed in the hands of the churchwardens who, to the grantors' knowledge, were not concerned with chancel repairs which fell on the rector as owner of the great tithes, was not enough to show that the income was only given in aid of church rates or other parochial purposes with which the churchwardens were directly concerned, & it was applicable to general expenditure about the church as a whole including repairs of the chancel.—A.-G. v. PARR, [1920] 1 Ch. 339; 89 L. 980. Gift for widows & daughters of "clergymen of Established Church of England & Ireland"—Disestablishment of Irish & Welsh churches—Clergymen holding cure in disestablished churches within charter.]—In 1854 a society, formed in 1849 & called the Friend of the Clergy, obtained a charter of incorporation. Its defined object was to provide permanent pensions for the widows & orphan unmarried daughters of "clergymen of the established church of England & Ireland" & to afford temporary assistance to necessitous "clergymen of such church" & their families. On Jan. 1, 1871, the Irish church was disestablished by Irish Church Act, 1869 (c. 42). On July 2, 1873, the original charter was confirmed with immaterial amendments. On Mar. 31, 1920, the Welsh Church was disestablished by Welsh Church Acts, 1914 (c. 91) & 1919 (c. 65):—Held : (1) clergymen ordained to the ministry of the established church of England retained their status while holding a consistent cure in the disestablished churches of Wales or Ireland, or in the episcopal church of Scotland, or in the British Dominions, & they & their families were within the scope of the charter; (2) in the case of Wales this principle was supported by Welsh Church (Temporalities) Act, 1919, s. 7 (2), & was not inconsistent with Welsh Church Act, 1914, s. 2 (4); (3) having regard to Irish Church Act, 1869, s. 69, & the fact that the original charter was confirmed after the disestablishment effected by that Act, clergymen ordained to the ministry of the disestablished church of Ireland & their families were within the scope of the charter.

(4) Qu. : whether clergymen ordained to the ministry of the disestablished Welsh church, or of the episcopal church of Scotland, or of the established Church of England, exclusively for service in the dominions, or of a dominion church, & not licensed to officiate in England, were within the scope of the charter.—Re FRIEND OF THE CLERGY'S CHARTERS, FRIEND OF THE CLERGY v. A.-G., [1921] 1 Ch. 409; 90 L. 990. —— To vicar & his successors to keep graves in repair—Gift over on non-performance.]—Testator, who died in 1914, by his will gave £50 to the vicar of C. & his successors to be invested in trust security, & committed to their care & charge certain graves in the churchyard of C., the same to be kept in good order & repair, with a gift over of the trust fund, if the vicar & his successors should at any time fail to comply with the directions, to the superannuation fund of the Cardiganshire constabulary. There was no such fund, but testator, as a retired member of the Cardigan constabulary, had for many years received a pension paid by the Cardigan County Council under Police Act, 1890 (c. 45), ss. 1, 2, 16, which established a pension fund for the members of every police force or their dependants on retirement of a member or on his death whilst in the force:—Held: (1) the Cardigan County Council sufficiently represented the police authority of that county for the purposes of the summons; (2) there was a good gift of the income of the £50 to the vicar & his successors as an accretion to the endowment of the living; (3) testator had not sufficiently described the police pension fund as the object of the gift over, but if he had, that fund was not wholly a charity, & the gift over on failure to repair the graves was void under the rule against perpetuities.—Re DAVIES, LLOYD v. CARDIGAN COUNTY COUNCIL, [1915] 1 Ch. 543; 84 L. 1009. ——— Construction of will.]—Testator by clause 8 of his will, after declaring that he had during his life made sufficient provision for the persons & South African institutions therein named, declared that he disposed of his property in manner thereafter appearing in order to advance Christianity, benefit young people, support hospitals, alleviate suffering, & encourage education & emigration. By clause 9 he gave legacies to certain charities, & by clause 10 he gave a large sum for the benefit of charities in a particular town & bequeathed the residue of his estate on trust for sale & conversion. By clause 15 he directed that the residue should be applied for the benefit of the charitable institutions, purposes & objects mentioned in clauses 8 to 10 as his trustees should think fit :—Held : the expression in clause 15 "purposes & objects mentioned in clause 8" included in clause 15 such purposes enumerated in clause 8 as were of a charitable nature with the exception of South African charities, & the trustees were not bound to apply the residue exclusively for the benefit of the institutions named in clauses 9 & 10.—Re DUNN, COMMERCIAL UNION ASSURANCE Co. v. SCOTTISH CORPN. She also directed that out of the proceeds of sale £700 should be laid out in building six labourers' cottages, but testatrix did not otherwise deal with the surplus, if any, of the proceeds of sale of the diamonds. The diamonds only realised £900. The £700 gift was held void, & the trustees did not commence the repairs within twelve months of testatrix's death :—Held : (1) the words as to commencing repairs within twelve months were directory only, & the gift took effect ; (2) the £600 was in effect a first charge on the proceeds of sale of the diamonds, which must be satisfied in full before the residuary legatee could take anything.—Re TUNNO, RAIKES v. RAIKES (1890), 45 Ch. E. Conditions creating Trusts.

1042. Trust created—"For this intent & purpose & upon this condition."]—Little stress can be laid on the use, in a will making a gift to a charity, of the word "condition"; it may mean the same as "intent & purpose," & may be employed to create a trust & nothing more.

In 1558 testator gave houses in O. to his son & the son's heirs, but, if the son died without issue, to the Wax Chandlers of the City of London, "for this intent & purpose & upon this condition," that they should distribute annually £8 in the manner therein described, & the rest of the profits of the houses & tenements he directed should be bestowed upon the reparation of the houses & tenements. If the Wax Chandlers should leave any of these things undone, the property was to go over to testator's next of kin, upon condition that they should do all those things. The son died unmarried, & the Wax Chandlers entered into possession, kept the premises in repair, &, after the great fire of London, rebuilt them. The rents had largely increased :—Held : (1) the will created a trust; (2) & all the income was exhausted by the appropriations of it directed by the will, & was properly applicable to purposes of charity; (3) "reparation" of premises used in a gift of those premises to a charity comprehended their restoration in the event of any catastrophe befalling them.—A.-G. v. WAX CHANDLERS' CO. 1050. —— Bequest of indefinite sum—To be applied in specified way—Gift over on non-performance of condition.]—In searching for the intention of a donor, which is the standard to govern the construction of a deed of gift, the facts, (1) that the gift is subject to the condition of making certain payments to others, (2) that forfeiture will be incurred by non-performance of that condition, & (3) that the donee may be subjected to loss by the performance of that condition, are sufficient to raise the presumption that in case of the increase of the fund, the donor intended to give to the donee the benefit of that increase.

A donor granted to the principal & professors of a college, certain lands, "upon the conditions hereinafter specified," to maintain three bursars, "according to the manner, measure & quality, & as the rest of the bursars of philosophy, presently in the college already founded, are educated & entertained," & imposed as a condition, the penalty for the breach of which was forfeiture, that the principal & professors should admit to the bursarships the presentees of the donor & his family :—Held : this was a grant upon condition, & not a mere trust, & the principal & professors were entitled, after satisfying the conditions of the deed of gift, to appropriate to themselves any surplus arising from the lands thus given.—JACK v. BURNETT (1846), 12 Cl. & Fin. 812; 8 E. 1055. —— So long as schools conducted in particular way.]—Testatrix, who died in 1900, by will dated in 1891 bequeathed to her trustees a sum sufficient when invested to produce a yearly sum of £20, & she directed them to pay such yearly sum to the treasurer for the time being of certain National schools so long as they should be carried on under the conditions contained in a deed of trust dated in 1873 & the funds necessary for so carrying them on should be supplied by voluntary contributions, & she declared that the bequest should not take effect but should be null & void in certain events (inter alia), if the funds necessary for carrying on the school should be raised under powers for that purpose contained in any then present or future Act of Parliament, & that upon the happening of such event the payment of the yearly sum should cease, & the fund purchased should fall into her residuary estate. By the deed of 1873 it was declared that the schools should be conducted according to the principles & designs of the National Society. Subject to certain superintendence by the principal officiating minister of the parish, the control & management of the schools & premises & the funds & endowments thereof were vested in & exercised by a committee consisting of such minister & certain other persons being communicants:—Held: (1) on the coming into operation of Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), the schools ceased to be any longer carried on under the conditions contained in the trust deed of 1873; (2) as regarded the gift over, there was no infringement of the rule against perpetuities, for the ct. was entitled to look at the will in order to ascertain whether the event had happened on which the yearly sum was to cease & determine; (3) on the coming into operation of the above Act the event contemplated by testatrix had happened, & the fund producing the yearly sum fell into the residue.—Re BLUNT'S TRUSTS, WIGAN v. CLINCH, [1904] 2 Ch. 767; 74 L. 1056. —— Bequest for "maintenance" of home—Carried on in house held under lease for 999 years.]—At the time of her will & her death, testatrix, who held her house under a 999 years' lease, was carrying it on as a home in connection with a charitable society. By her will dated Mar. 13, 1902, she bequeathed the house to the treasurer & two other members of the society to be used as a home. She also directed her exors. & trustees to hold the proceeds of sale of her residuary estate in trust to pay certain life annuities & to pay the treasurer of the society £120 a year "for the maintenance & expenses of maintaining" the home, & "after the final expiration of the aforesaid trusts" the trustees were to hold the residuary trust funds in trust for certain residuary charities. On the construction of the will it was clear that these annuities were charged on corpus. Testatrix died on Nov. 6, 1910, & the society carried on the home for another eighteen months. It was then voluntarily discontinued & sold by the society under 1891 Act, the society having formerly decided not to apply for a retaining order. The proceeds of sale were applied under a cy-près scheme:—Held: the £120 annuity continued during the 999 years of the lease, & it was neither limited to the duration of the home, nor carried into residue for the benefit of the residuary charities on the cesser of the home, but, on the failure of the particular purpose after testatrix's death, the general charitable intention in favour of the society prevailed, & the annuity was applicable cy-près.—Re CUNNINGHAM, DULCKEN v. CUNNINGHAM, [1914] 1 Ch. 427; 83 L. 1068. —— ——.]—Testator, who died in 1891, bequeathed investments to trustees upon trust to apply the income towards the annual expenses of a National school so long as it was supported by voluntary subscriptions as theretofore in addition to the government grant, with a gift over in the event of the school ceasing to be so supported or becoming subject to the control of a school board. Since the death of testator the necessity for subscriptions had practically ceased owing to the bequest, but the managers were in debt to a small extent. In consequence of the passing of the above Act, the school, as a public elementary school, came under the control of the county council as the education authority:—Held: there had been no forfeiture on either of the grounds mentioned by testator, & the gift over did not take effect.—Re BEARD'S TRUSTS, BUTLIN v. HARRIS, [1904] 1 Ch. 270; 73 L. 1069. —— ——.]—By a declaration of trust a sum of money was vested in trustees to be invested by them & the income paid by them to the trustees of the National schools at A. for the purposes of education at such schools & the carrying on of same until a school board or other representative body under Education Acts should be formed for the parish of A. or the National schools should otherwise cease to be carried on for the purposes of education, & upon the happening of those events the funds were to go for the benefit of certain almshouses. By Education Act, 1902, county councils became the local education authority & school boards & other representative educational bodies were abolished. The school continued to be carried on as a non-provided school under the county council:—Held: the events upon the happening of which the gift over was to take place had not happened, & the income of the trust funds must be paid to the managers of the school.—Re SMALLWOOD'S TRUSTS, GOTHARD v. CHAPMAN (1909), 79 L. 1070. —— ——.]—A trust deed of 1881 recited that certain persons had paid £1,498 to trustees for the purpose of founding two scholarships for the benefit of scholars of the S. School, & clause 3 of the deed provided that if & whenever the school should cease to exist, the trustees should apply the net income arising from the sum of £1,498 in or towards the advancement & encouragement of education & learning as the trustees should in their absolute discretion think best, provided nevertheless that in the event of the school becoming vested in a corporate body for the purposes of a school or college & its constitution being thereby changed, the trusts thereof should be executed in favour of such school or college so incorporated so far as they could reasonably be made applicable in priority to any other application of the net income. In 1883 the body of proprietors of the school was incorporated under Companies Acts by the name of the S. School, which in 1884 was changed to that of W. College. The school continued to be mainly a denominational school, but it was not exclusively so as it had previously been. In 1904 the school premises were sold to defts. as the education authority under above Act, & thereafter the school was carried on on undenominational lines:—Held: (1) the school had ceased to exist within the trust deed when the proprietary body was incorporated & became the W. College; (2) the proviso to clause 3 then came into & continued in operation so long as the school was carried on by the old body of proprietors; (3) when the school was transferred to defts. the proviso ceased to operate; (4) thereafter the discretion of the trustees under clause 3 as to the application of the income was unfettered.—Re BARRETT'S TRUST, DYSON v. SHEFFIELD CORPN. Subsequently all the members of the community, except two, acknowledged the supremacy of the Pope, & were admitted to the Roman Catholic Church. A meeting of the trustees resolved to give effect to the gift over, & two of them applied to the ct. for directions as to whether they ought to join in executing the deed of conveyance:—Held: they must join in executing the deed.—Re MALLING ABBEY TRUSTS, BEAUMONT v. DALE (1915), 31 T. L. R. 397, C. A

Testator's net residue consisted solely of real estate, & during the lifetime of the niece, there was no income available for forming a reserve fund:—Held: (1) subject to the life estate, the residue had been effectually devoted to charity as from testator's death, & the direction to postpone the payment of the annuities until the reserve fund reached £400 was not a condition precedent to the charitable gift coming into effect, but was only a direction as to the particular application of the charitable fund & intended to secure the beneficial working of the charity; (2) the reserve fund was equally devoted to a charitable purpose.—Re SWAIN, MONCKTON v. HANDS, [1905] 1 Ch. 669; 74 L. The lessor died in 1902. In 1905 pltfs. served on her devisees notice of their desire to purchase. The devisees maintained that the option was void as infringing the rule against perpetuities:—Held: the option to purchase was void for remoteness & could not be enforced by specific performance, & that defect was not cured by the fact that the option was given for charitable purposes, inasmuch as the interest of the charity did not become effective till the happening of the future event, but pltfs. were entitled to recover damages from defts. for breach of the covenant to convey.—WORTHING CORPN. v. HEATHER, [1906] 2 Ch. 532; 75 L. 1109. —— Reversion to donor, his heirs & assigns—If premises not used for purposes specified—Gift expressed to be perpetual—Void.]—P. in 1837 by deed granted & released an acre of land to trustees, upon trust to permit same to be "for ever thereafter" used as & for a place for the instruction of seventy poor children resident within the parish in the principles of the Church of England as by law established, & in reading, writing, casting accounts & other proper, useful & common learning for poor children. The deed also provided that if, by any law or statute or otherwise, the release should, as to the charitable purposes thereby intended to be made & established, "either not take effect, or, having taken effect, shall afterwards cease or determine or be defeated, or, the precise objects of these presents being for the education of poor children in the principles of the Church of England, become prevented," then the trustees for the time being should stand seised of the land & the school-house, if any, to be built thereon in trust for P., his heirs & assigns. By a codicil to his will P. provided for raising a sum of money for building a school-house on the land, the balance to be applied as an endowment for the school for the payment of the schoolmaster & schoolmistress. P. died in 1838, & after his death the school-house was built, & a sum of money stood invested in the names of the trustees of the deed, representing the money set apart by P. for the maintenance & support of the school. The school was carried on until about 1920, but the income of the fund was insufficient for the maintenance of the schoolmistress; the scholars' attendance was very small; & the school was practically derelict through the income being insufficient to enable it to be carried on:—Held: the event contemplated by the clause of reverter had arisen, but the clause was void as a perpetuity, & the original gift being expressed to be perpetual, there could be no reverter or resulting trust to P.'s heirs or personal representatives, either of the school & site or of the endowment fund, & a scheme must be prepared.—Re PEEL'S RELEASE, [1921] 2 Ch. 218; 90 L. 1116. —— ——.]—Testator gave his estate & effects to trustees in trust to pay the income to his brother for life, & after his death in trust to pay out of the income an annuity of £200 to his niece for her life, & directed the surplus income of his trust estate to accumulate till the death of his niece, & subject & without prejudice to the trusts & provisions aforesaid directed his trust estate to be held upon trust for the children of his niece, & in default of children, after the death of the survivor of his brother & niece & the failure of her issue, upon trust as to one third part for his cousins & as to two third parts for a charity. Testator died in 1877, & the brother, who was his heir-at-law & sole next of kin, died in 1878. The niece, who was married, was fifty-four years of age, & had had no child. The accumulations were made after the brother's death up to 1898, when further accumulation was forbidden by Accumulations Act, 1800 (c. 98). The charity claimed to have the residue of the estate immediately distributed after providing for the annuity:—Held: (1) the surplus income during the remainder of the niece's life went as undisposed of to the representatives of the brother, & the estate was not distributable till the niece's death; (2) on the construction of the will, the words "trust estate" included the corpus of the past accumulations.—Re TRAVIS, FROST v. GREATOREX, [1900] 2 Ch. 541; 69 L. A. Income Exhausted at Date of Gift.

1117. General rule.] — Where testator clearly declares an intention of devoting the whole income of a property to charitable purposes, then, although he does not, in specifically directing the application of portions of it, exhaust the whole income, still the general intention that the whole shall be applied to charitable purposes will prevail; & on the other hand, although he does not make any such general declaration of devoting the whole to charity, but gives each & every portion of the whole income at the time to some charitable purpose, & by that means exhausts the whole, then, if the income should afterwards increase, the increase will also be applicable to the charitable purposes.

For a period of twenty-one years from the testator's death the income of the residue was accumulated, no distribution thereof being made by the trustees owing to the fact that they were not satisfied that among the testator's children & grandchildren any cases existed which warranted payments out of the trust funds:—Held: as the accumulation of income was due, not to the direction, express or implied, of the testator, but to the extraneous circumstance that no occasion for payments out of income had, in the opinion of the trustees, arisen, Accumulations Act, 1800 (c. 98), did not apply.—MITCHELL'S TRUSTEES v. FRASER, [1915] S. B. Income not Exhausted at Date of Gift.

1147. No express gift of surplus—General rule—Intention to benefit donee presumed—Donee entitled itself a charity.]—Where property is given for charitable purposes which do not exhaust the whole income one rule is, that this, primâ facie, is an indication of an intention to benefit the donee.

In charity cases, the contemporaneous acts of a donor are of importance for the purpose of putting a construction upon the instrument of gift, but the contemporaneous acts of the donee are only valuable as showing the intention & view of the donee in accepting the gift.

When property is given for charitable objects which do not exhaust the whole income, & the question is as to the right of the donee to the surplus, the case is varied where the donee is a charity, from that where the donee is a trading corporation.

In 1558, testator devised real estates, which he described as of the clear yearly value of fourscore pounds or thereabouts, to T. College, to their only proper use & behalf, to the intent following, with part of the rents to keep, find & maintain three grammar schools, & pay every master £13 6*s*. 8*d*., & with part of the rents to keep a chaplain, & pay him £13 6*s*. 8*d*., & he directed other charitable payments. At testator's death the rents exceeded the specific payments by £1 6*s*. 8*d*. The rents having greatly increased :—Held : after providing for the charitable objects, the college was entitled to the surplus rents.—A.-G. v. TRINITY COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE (1856), 24 Beav. 383 ; 53 E. 1202. Fund raised by subscription—For support of two ladies—Death of beneficiaries—Resulting trust of surplus to subscribers.]—A fund was collected for the support of two ladies & was supplemented by annual subscriptions & donations. The circular inviting subscriptions stated that the object was to enable the two ladies, who had been deprived of means of support, to reside in lodgings in C., & to provide for their very moderate wants, & that annual statements would be furnished to donors. No accounts were in fact ever furnished to the donors. At the death of the survivor of the two ladies there remained a surplus unapplied :—Held : the proper inference was that the subscribers contributed on the footing that the fund would be applied for the benefit of the ladies, & not that they were to become the absolute owners of the fund, & there was a resulting trust of the surplus in favour of the subscribers.—Re ABBOTT FUND TRUSTS, SMITH v. ABBOTT, [1900] 2 Ch. 326; 69 L. 1203. —— For " education " of certain children —Children grown up—No resulting trust of surplus to subscribers.]—A fund was subscribed by the friends of a deceased clergyman for the education of his children, all of whom were then infants, & the document declaring the trusts of the fund stated that the money was not intended for the exclusive use of any one of them in particular, nor for equal division among them, but as deemed necessary to defray the expenses of all, & that solely in the matter of education. The education of the children was paid for partly out of the trust fund & partly out of money respectively coming to them under their father's will. When all the children had grown up there remained a portion of the trust fund unapplied :—Held : (1) there was no resulting trust of the balance for the subscribers; (2) the balance ought to be divided equally amongst the children.—Re ANDREW'S TRUST, CARTER v. ANDREW, [1905] 2 Ch. 48; 74 L. 1204. Grant of land under School Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38)—School ceasing to be used for purposes specified—Reverter to estate of donor.]—In 1868 S. executed a deed poll under above Act, s. 2, conveying to the minister & churchwardens of a parish a piece of land for the purposes of the Act & upon trust to permit the premises & all buildings to be erected thereon to be used as a school for the education of children & adults of the poorer classes of the parish & for no other purpose. The schools were to be open to the inspection of the Established Church inspectors & managed by the principal minister of the parish who was to superintend the religious & moral instruction of the scholars & might use the premises for a Sunday school. A school was erected on the land & used till 1907 as a public elementary school, when it ceased to be used except as a Sunday school. S. claimed that the premises had reverted to him under the Act; the Board of Education contended that they were still devoted to charity & that a scheme ought to be settled for the future administration thereof :—Held : inasmuch as the school had ceased to be used for the purposes specified in the deed poll it had reverted to the estate of S., the donor, although it had been continuously used for other purposes specified in the Act.—A.-G. v. SHADWELL, [1910] 1 Ch. 92; 79 L. 1243. —— Refusing to accept upon terms of will—Limits within which discretion of donee extended beyond that given by will.]—Testator by his will bequeathed £6,000, reduced by a codicil to £5,500, to the Royal College of Music & the Royal Academy of Music, to be applied according to or as near as might be in the discretion of the directors to a scheme for founding & endowing a musical scholarship to be competed for by British-born male students of the two institutions more particularly, though not exclusively, of the violin, with power at their option to throw open the scholarship to properly qualified students not educated at either of the institutions. The objects of the scholarship were to be to enable the holder to proceed abroad & continue his musical studies for a period of three years at such of the continental conservatoires or schools of music as might be selected by the directors, & the directors had power to impose rules & regulations attending the scholarship at their discretion. The Royal College of Music & the Royal Academy of Music objected to the provision in the scheme that the holder of the scholarship should study for three years at a continental conservatoire or school, & refused to accept the legacy upon those conditions:—Held: (1) the discretion of the directors extended beyond such modifications as were mentioned in the will, provided that the modifications made did not depart essentially from the scheme; (2) there was power to modify the length of time & place of study; (3) the purpose of the gift was to found a scholarship to assist British-born male students of music in completing their musical education, &, if thought fit, of acquiring experience on the Continent in such manner as the directors thought expedient, but so that the application of the legacy should be as nearly in accordance with the scheme in the will as the directors might think desirable.—Re HARRISON, HARRISON v. A.-G. A. In General.

1244. General rule.]—When the founder of a charity commits the administration of it to a man & his heirs, this ct. cannot interfere with their discretion, as long as they perform their trust properly (ROMILLY, M.R.).—A.-G. v. BOUCHERETT (1858), 25 Beav. 116; 23 J. P. 660; 53 E. R. 580.

1245. —— Not where intention of testator clear & definite—Discretion of court when general gift to charity.]—If testator has clearly pointed out his intentions, the ct. is bound to carry them into effect; but where the property is devoted to charity generally, or there are accretions of the charity funds not specially disposed of, or where the particular charity wholly fails, the ct. has a discretion.

A charity was founded for almshouses for poor men & women reduced by sickness, misfortune or infirmity: Held: this did not authorise the ct. in settling a scheme to sanction the building of a hospital or infirmary with accommodation for the almspeople.—PHILPOTT v. ST. 1318. ——.]—Under a scheme confirmed by the Ct. of Ch. in 1845, provision was made for the maintenance of a day school at B. out of certain charitable funds. The scheme gave a preference to the vicar & churchwardens in the appointment of trustees, & provided that the master & mistress of the school should teach certain specified subjects & such other things as the trustees should direct, & that there should be read in the school a portion of the scriptures & suitable prayers every morning & evening. It also provided for the children going to church & Sunday school, but gave relief in this respect to the children of dissenters ; & it placed the school under the superintendence of the clergyman of B. who was empowered to visit the school & instruct & examine the children. Since its foundation the school had been conducted as a Church of England school. Since 1871, except for a short interval, the school had been conducted as a public elementary school in receipt of a parliamentary grant :—Held : (1) the school was intended to be carried on as a school at which religious instruction in accordance with the doctrine of the Church of England should be given ; (2) having regard to Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7 (6), the managers were entitled to authorise religious instruction of that character to be given by the regular teachers on weekdays during school hours.—Re WREXHAM PAROCHIAL EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION, A.-G. v. DENBIGHSHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL (1910), 74 J. A scheme was prepared which provided (inter alia) that girls who were not orphans could be admitted to some of the benefits of the school :—Held : the scheme was one for the foundation of an orphanage school, & was not the less so because girls who were not orphans could be admitted, or because part of the instruction was to be given or continued at other schools or institutions.—Re DE NOAILLES, CLOUSTON v. TUFNELL (1916), 85 L. 1327. —— Opposition by governors—Charity founded by royal charter—No breach of trust.]—In 1890 a scheme was approved of under Endowed Schools Act 1869 (c. 56), dealing with certain of the endowments of C. Hospital. Among the endowments excluded from the scheme were educational & non-educational endowments which were of less than fifty years' standing on Aug. 2, 1869, the time limited for the commencement of that Act. By the scheme the endowments dealt with by it were to be administered by the governing bodies thereby constituted, namely, the governors & the council of almoners, in accordance with the scheme under the name of C. Hospital, the result being that with regard to the endowments comprised in the scheme the charity was reconstituted, but with regard to the excepted endowments the old governing body was left intact & its powers & duties as constituted & existing at the date of the scheme were wholly exempted from the operation of the scheme. A new scheme proposed that all the excepted educational endowments should be made over to the governing body constituted by the old scheme, in augmentation of the endowments already comprised therein, & should be dealt with & administered according to that scheme. The new scheme was opposed by the existing governing body of the excepted endowments :—Held : it was beyond the jurisdiction of the ct. to sanction the new scheme in the face of the opposition of the existing 1343. —— Depreciation of property—Reduction of confrater's salary—Number of governors increased.]—The founder of a religious & eleemosynary hospital had instituted officers, consisting of a warden & a confrater, i.e. assistant or subwarden; & the almspeople were to be ten poor men & two poor women. In 1873 a scheme was sanctioned whereby £1,500 per annum of the surplus income of the hospital was devoted to the endowment of certain schools in the locality. Owing to the depreciation of the hospital property no more than £900 of the £1,500 was, in 1888, available for those schools. A scheme was presented by the A.-G., one of the terms of which was, that the office of confrater should be abolished as being a sinecure office, or that the stipend of any future confrater should, at any rate, be reduced. It was also suggested that the number of the trustees or governors, then consisting of three only, should be augmented. The hospital governors submitted that, for the purpose of aiding the schools, the ct. had no more jurisdiction to deprive the confrater of his rights under the founder's provision than it had to abolish his office altogether, or to reduce the number of almspeople in the hospital for a similar purpose :—Held : (1) although the confrater was an integral portion of the original constitution of the hospital, & just as much, for the purpose of law & the administration of charitable trusts, an object of the charity as the almspeople themselves were, yet the effect of the scheme of 1873 was to place the schools amongst the objects of the charity, & although it was not competent for the ct. to abolish the office of confrater & thus to get rid of his stipend, yet it was within its jurisdiction to remodel the scheme by diminishing the stipend of any future confrater; (2) the number of the governors ought to be augmented, three being too small a number.—Re BROWNE'S HOSPITAL v. STAMFORD (1889), 60 L. 1361. —— Objects of society not altered—Scheme not final.]—Testator who died in 1724 gave his residue to trustees on trust to pay half the income for the redemption of Barbary slaves, one fourth for certain educational charities, & one fourth for certain non-educational charities. In 1846, for want of Barbary slaves, the slave fund income was applied by a ct. scheme to assisting charity schools. In 1907 the Charity Comrs. made a scheme under Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1894 determining (inter alia) that the slave fund income was held for & ought to be applied to educational purposes. The trustees appealed contending that the effect of the determination scheme would be to devote the income permanently & in all events to educational purposes. At present notwithstanding free education there were managers' purposes to which the income was & could be applied under the scheme of 1846 without relieving the rates but when these expenses also were thrown on the rates there would be no proper objects left under the scheme of 1846. On that event the income ought to be applied cy-près as a non-educational charity:—Held: the determination scheme merely determined the controlling body for the time being & did not in any way restrict, alter or affect the objects of the charity or prevent the income being applied by a future scheme to non-educational purposes.—Re BETTON'S CHARITY, [1908] 1 Ch. 205; 77 L. J. Ch. 193; 98 L. T. 35; 72 J. P. 105; 24 T. L. R. 143; 6 L. G. R. 638.

See, also, Nos. 1416, 1417, post.

1362. —— Scheme ultra vires—Not on matters of detail.]—(1) Funds given by a testator for a particular charitable purpose cannot be applied cy-près by the Charity Comrs. or the ct. unless it is shown to be impossible to carry out testator's intention. They cannot be so applied because the Comrs. think some other scheme will be more beneficial than testator's.

(2) The ct. will not overrule the Comrs. on matters of detail, but will restrain them from carrying out a scheme which is ultra vires.

Testator who died in 1902 devised to his trustees two houses upon trust to use house A. as a dispensary, cottage hospital, or convalescent home or other medical charity, to be called the W. Hospital, for the benefit of the inhabitants of the parish of S. & the neighbourhood until a restrictive covenant which prevented the house B., in which he resided, from being so used had expired, & then to use house B. in conjunction or not with house A. for the same purpose; & he gave his residuary personal estate to the same trustees for the maintenance of the hospital. The trustees established a dispensary at the house A. & maintained it until the covenant expired in 1907. The funds then applicable for the maintenance of the charity were about £100,000. The Charity Comrs. approved a scheme whereby the dispensary was to be maintained, house B. was to be turned into a home for nurses, a very small proportion of whom were to give their services gratuitously, & the bulk of the fund was to be applied in enlarging & maintaining a general hospital, called the B. Hospital, outside & half a mile from the boundary of the parish of S. This hospital was to be renamed the W. & B. Hospital, & a certain number of beds were to be appropriated so as to give a preference to inhabitants of S.:—Held: the scheme was ultra vires, & the order of the Comrs. must be discharged & the matter remitted to the Comrs. for reconsideration.—Re WEIR HOSPITAL, [1910] 2 Ch. 124; 79 L. 1363. —— Modification necessary to effectuate primary object.]—Where the primary object for which a secondary school was originally founded cannot be given effect to under its existing constitution without the aid of grants from the Board of Education, the ct. will modify the scheme of the Charity Comrs. under which the school was being administered, so far as necessary to comply with the regulations of the Board of Education & enable the school to secure the grants.—Re QUEEN'S SCHOOL, CHESTER, [1910] 1 Ch. 796; 79 L. The rents had largely increased, & by an order made in 1912 it was declared that such part of the income as was not required for payment for the sermon ought to be applied cy-près the objects of the gift for the sermon. The old parish of W. was conterminous with the present borough, containing some 300,000 inhabitants. This area was now divided into nineteen ecclesiastical parishes, of which the parish served by the old parish church, containing some 25,000 inhabitants, was one:—Held: (1) the charity was religious in its object & no part of the income ought to be applied for a non-religious purpose, such as lectures in the town-hall for the moral or intellectual improvement of the inhabitants or in aid of a public library, but the whole income might properly be applied in or towards payment of the stipends of one or more assistant curates to serve in the church & parish, & subject thereto, in or towards the expenses incurred by the vicar in providing for the services of the church, the visitation of the poor, or the religious instruction of the inhabitants, including children & young persons; (2) the scheme ought to be confined to the parish served by the old parish church of W.; (3) the vicar & churchwardens & persons to be appointed by them & by the bishop of the diocese were proper persons to be appointed trustees, but the mayor of W. or the overseers or persons to be appointed by the borough council ought not to be appointed; (4) there was no objection to the vicar of the parish himself preaching the annual sermon & receiving a proposed fee of ten guineas therefor.—Re AVENON'S CHARITY, A.-G. v. PELLY, [1913] 2 Ch. 261; 82 L. 1372 i. General rule.]—When, under altered circumstances, it appears that the charity provided by the donor could not be carried out literally in terms of his directions with any benefit whatever to the objects of his benefaction, the ct. ought not to hesitate to give its sanction to a scheme, which will carry out the charitable intentions of the donor to be gathered from the instrument establishing the charity, as nearly as possible to the original intentions of such donor. One charity will not be substituted for another charity; nor will a charity intended for one purpose be applied to a purpose altogether different; but in the progress of society a change of mode may become desirable, & the cts. have sanctioned such change of mode, to secure more effectually the benefits intended.

There were no buildings in L. devoted solely to the relief of indigent blind Jews, but there was a society devoted to that purpose whose mode of relieving the objects of its charity was to provide for their housing with relatives & friends. There were two institutions in London called respectively "The Jewish Hospital & Orphan Asylum" & "The Home for Aged Jews," in both of which the Jewish indigent blind occasionally found relief, but neither was devoted solely to their relief. 1409. —— For lack of funds—Local education authority for school.]—In 1871 land was conveyed by deed to the vicar & churchwardens of a parish in trust for a school for the education of the poorer classes & as a residence for the teacher or teachers & for no other purpose, the school to be conducted in furtherance of the ends of the N. Society & to be open to inspection, & the religious instruction to be vested in the vicar. School buildings & a teacher's house were erected thereon, & in 1874 a parliamentary grant was obtained towards the cost on condition that until repayment, which had not taken place, the school should be carried on as a public elementary school under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75). The school was so carried on until 1878, when it was closed. Negotiations for its transfer to a school board failed. It was re-opened as a voluntary school in 1881; but, the school board having erected on an adjoining site a school which attracted all the scholars, it was again closed in 1883 & had not since been re-opened. In 1905 the trustees applied to the Board of Education for a scheme under Charitable Trusts Acts, but their suggested scheme for a club was opposed by the county council, who had become the education authority & desired to use the school buildings as an infant school to relieve the board school, where the accommodation had become insufficient. There was no evidence that the vicar & churchwardens could obtain the means to carry on the school as a voluntary school. The Board of Education certified the case to the A.-G., who applied to the ct. for the administration of the trusts of the deed, & the settlement of a scheme:—Held: the trusts of the deed should be administered under the direction of the ct., & an inquiry should be made whether the trust property could now be used for a Church of England school, & if, by reason of want of funds or want of scholars or otherwise, it could not be so used, a scheme should be settled with an intimation that probably the best course would be for the property to be leased to the education authority for a school, reserving to the vicar the right to use the buildings on Sundays & in the evenings.—A.-G. v. EDALJI (1907), 97 L. 1410. —— School to be conducted on principles of Church of England—Use for undenominational education.]—Land was conveyed by a charitable donor under Schools Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38), upon trust to permit the buildings to be erected thereon to be for ever used for a school for the education of children & adults or children only of the labouring, manufacturing, & other poorer classes in a certain district. The school was to be in union with & conducted according to the principles of the N. Society. The trust deed provided that the school might be used for Sunday school purposes under the control of the clergyman of the parish, & in other respects the management was vested in the clergyman & four members of the Church of England. The school erected on the land was used in accordance with the trusts until 1905, when, in consequence of the inability of the trustees to satisfy the requirements of the education authorities under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), it was closed:—Held: the special trusts for carrying on a national school in connection with the

b. Institution ceasing to exist—Fund for undenominational women's home—Charitable Trusts Extension Act, 1886.]—A women's home having been established by means chiefly of subscriptions & donations from members of the Anglican Church, & conducted for some time under Anglican control, was closed, & a balance remained in the hands of the committee. An undenominational women's home was subsequently established, & the money was paid over to the committee of management of the new institution, which, after a short existence, was also closed, leaving a reduced balance in the committee's hands. This sum was handed over to trustees in trust for an undenominational women's home in the event of such an institution being subsequently established. By judicious investment, etc., this sum was considerably increased. The trustees then proposed to hand over the fund to an undenominational home established for the promotion of the "moral, social, & spiritual welfare" of fallen women. This institution was registered under "The Unclassified Societies Registration Act, 1895," & was controlled by a committee elected annually by the subscribers:—Held: that the scheme should be approved, subject to certain restrictions, which would prevent the fund from subsequently being diverted to other purposes.—Re DOOR OF HOPE, ETC. 1448. —— No proof of surplus.]—Subscriptions having been asked for by the mayor of B. & the vicar of F. to funds for the relief of the widows, orphans & dependants of fishermen drowned during a gale off F., & the response to the appeals by the public being more generous than anticipated, the relief committee, which had appointed a sub-committee, proposed on their recommendation, after making provision for a capital payment & certain weekly payments to the widows & families of the fishermen, to invest the surplus as a permanent fund for the relief of sufferers by similar catastrophes in the locality. The widows alleging that the provision for themselves & their families was inadequate :—Held: as it could not properly be said by the trustees that any surplus of the fund subscribed existed, the trustees, at the present stage, would be acting outside their powers in diverting any portion of the fund to purposes, however excellent, other than those of the trust constituted by the founders of the particular charity, but if & when a surplus was proved to exist the ct. had & would exercise jurisdiction to entertain a proposal for its application cy-près.—CROSS v. LLOYD-GREAME (1909), 102 L. 1454 i. No paramount charitable intention—Failure of particular purpose.]—A testator devised the residue of his real estate to & for the benefit of the Presbyterian Church at —, to be, by the trustees of the church, used for its benefit :—Held: the devise showed not a general charitable intention, but an intention to benefit a particular charity, & therefore could not be construed cy-près.—A.-G. v. POWELL (1890), 11 N. S. W. Eq. 263.—AUS.

1454 ii. —— —— Lapse.]—A. directed his trustees, in a certain event, to apply his residuary estate "in founding, erecting, & endowing in P. an industrial school for females." At the date of A.'s death it was open to a private individual to found or to contribute to an industrial school, but when the residue became available the effect of supervening legislation had made such individual foundation or contribution impossible :—Held: as the terms of the bequest did not disclose any general charitable intention, but only the favouring of the particular object that had failed, there was no room for the application of the doctrine of cy-près; & the bequest lapsed.—BURGESS' TRUSTEES v. CRAWFORD, [1912] S. 1458. No failure of purpose—Trust to establish bishopric—Particular scheme given up.]—Testatrix by codicil bequeathed a legacy to a committee for establishing a bishopric in satisfaction of a promise to subscribe a like sum. After her death the particular scheme of establishment was given up, but the committee still existed, & the intention of establishing a bishopric had not been abandoned: —Held: this was a good charitable legacy for a purpose which had not yet failed, & the money must be paid over to approved members of the committee with an undertaking to apply it to the proper purposes, &, in case the purposes failed, to return it for application cy-près.—Re VILLERS-WILKES, BOWER v. GOODMAN (1895), 72 L. 1459. —— Trust for repair of roads — Roads taken over by local authority.]—Testator in 1709 devised real estate to trustees after the death of his aunt & certain annuitants, & bequeathed the sum of £3,000 upon trust to build galleries at C. & construct a causeway & to set aside £40 a year for the repair of the galleries & causeway, &, after directing the foundation of two travelling fellowships gave the overplus to the C. University library. By an order of the ct. made on the petition of the trustees in 1742 a further sum of £40 a year was ordered to be expended on the causeway. Under the Local Government Act, 1888 (c. 41) the causeway was declared a main road, & was now controlled by the C. County Council & a District Council. C. University applied that so much of the £40 a year bequeathed by testator as was not required for repair & the whole of the £40 a year payable under the order of 1742 might be applied for the purposes of the library: —Held: the trusts for the repair of the road were still subsisting.—A.-G. v. DAY, [1900] 1 Ch. 31; 69 L. 1460. —— Trust for repair of bridge—Part of bridge converted into swing bridge—& vested in public body.]—By a deed of feoffment of Mar. 4, 1576, H. conveyed certain land to feoffees to the use & behoof of the reparation of, among other things, U. bridge, & by an order of May 7, 1851, it was declared that the trustees were bound to set apart a third of the annual rents & profits of the charity estate for this purpose, any surplus to be accumulated. As the result of two private Acts of Parliament of 1846 & 1881, & an agreement between the justices & the S. Comrs., part of the existing U. bridge was a swing bridge, constructed to open to allow traffic on the river to pass to & fro. By virtue of the Acts and the agreement the comrs. were bound to keep in repair the opening portion of the bridge. Having spent a sum of over £200 in 1909 on these repairs the comrs. claimed to be reimbursed by the trustees of the charity out of the funds accumulated in their hands. The county council objected to the fund being applied for the benefit of the comrs. on the ground that the swing bridge was on a different footing to the rest of the bridge:—Held: (1) the repairs done by the comrs. were reparations of the bridge & the fund was by the terms of the feoffment applicable to such reparations, though the burden of repair had been cast by the legislature on a public body; (2) the opening portion of the bridge was part of a bridge of special construction & the trustees were bound to keep the whole bridge in repair so far as the charity funds applicable for the purpose sufficed.—Re HALL'S CHARITY, SEVERN COMRS. v. CHARITY TRUSTEES & WORCESTERSHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL (1911), 76 J. There was evidence that from time immemorial an annual payment of a certain quantity of corn had been made out of the tithes for the benefit of the poor of the parish, & from 1834 to 1881 the same payment had been made by the owners or occupiers of the lands in question. The conveyance to deft. was expressed to be made free from incumbrances, but was also expressly subject to the unredeemed land tax, tithe commutation rentcharge, both rectorial & vicarial, & to all other payments & outgoings, ecclesiastical or civil, charged upon or payable out of the lands conveyed :—Held : the payment of corn constituted a valid charge to which the lands allotted in lieu of the tithes became subject by s. 66 of the Act, & deft. by the terms of his conveyance took the lands subject to the charge.

(2) Deft. had mortgaged the lands by a deed which expressly stated in terms similar to those used in the conveyance that the mtge. was subject to all payments & outgoings, ecclesiastical or civil, charged upon or payable out of the mortgaged property. The mtgee. had made no inquiry as to the existence of any charges upon the property :—Held : having regard to Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1882 (c. 41), s. 3 (1) (ii), the mtgee. must be taken to have had notice of the charge in question, & the mortgaged property was subject thereto.—Re ALMS CORN CHARITY, CHARITY COMRS. v. BODE, [1901] 2 Ch. 750 ; 71 L. 1495. —— —— Payment for more than hundred years — Incumbent's stipend.]—The owner of landed estate in a parish by his will, made in 1769, gave £2,000 to two persons, one of whom succeeded to the estate, to be invested upon trust to pay the income thereof to the vicar of the parish for the time being in augmentation of his stipend. Testator died in 1771, but the £2,000 was never set apart. The owners of the estate, however, continued to pay £60 a year to the vicar for the time being of the parish, & though a question was suggested on certain occasions that the gift was void under Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36), & that the payment of the £60 a year was a voluntary payment, the vicars of the parish claimed it as of right, & the owners of the estate in their succession duty accounts treated it as a charge on the land, & a deduction in respect of the £60 a year was claimed by them & was allowed :—Held : the true inference was that the £60 a year was a charge upon the estate to which the vicar of the parish for the time being was entitled.—ROBINSON v. SMITH (1908), 24 T. L. R. 573.

1496. —— —— —— Corporation liable as terre tenants.]—In or about the year 1802 a strip of land was acquired by turnpike trustees under statutory powers from certain charity trustees for the purpose of widening a turnpike road, & was thrown into the road. No conveyance of the land was forthcoming, but a fee farm rent was paid from that time in respect of such land to the charity trustees by the turnpike trustees until 1871, when the turnpike trust was extinguished by Annual Turnpike Acts Continuance Act, 1870 (c. 73). The road thereupon became vested in D. Corpn. as the highway authority, under Public Health Act, 1848 (c. 63), s. 68, & they continued to pay the rent down to 1904, when they refused to make any more payments. The charity trustees sued them in the county ct. for the arrears of rent :—Held : the ct. ought to presume a lost grant to the turnpike trustees at a fee farm rent, & the estate of the corpn. in such portion of the soil as vested in them was either a determinable statutory fee simple or fee simple conditional, or a statutory freehold, & the corpn. were terre tenants & were liable to pay the rentcharge.—FOLEY'S CHARITY TRUSTEES v. DUDLEY CORPN., [1910] 1 K. The trustees continued in possession for more than twelve years, applying the rents according to the trusts of the deed. C., who was one of the trustees was beneficially entitled to the property, subject to the deed. In 1888 the exors. & trustees of C.'s will brought an action against the trustees of the deed claiming the property & a conveyance of the legal estate from the trustees:—Held: the deed was wholly inoperative & passed no estate whatever, & the trustees of the deed had acquired a good prescriptive title by virtue of Real Property Limitation Acts, 1833 (c. 27) & 1874 (c. 57).—CHURCHER v. MARTIN (1889), 42 Ch. 1511. —— —— Executor not express trustee.]—Testator gave all his property, including freeholds & leaseholds, which gift, the requirements of Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2, c. 36) not having been complied with, was void, subject to the payment of certain legacies & annuities, to a charity & appointed an exor. Testator died in 1873 leaving a son. The son had been but was not then of unsound mind, & died lunatic in 1895 leaving a widow, but without issue & without making any claim to the fund. The exor. having proved the will entered into possession of the freeholds & leaseholds, & granted leases & paid the income to the trustees of the charity. He died in 1892:—Held: (1) as to the freeholds, the exor. having taken no estate in them by virtue of the will, & having been in possession for more than twenty years, the claim of the heir-at-law & next of kin was barred by Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27); (2) as to the leaseholds, they vested in the exor., &, he having done no act assenting to the bequest to the trustees of the charity, having regard to Executors Act, 1830 (c. 40), could not be regarded as an express trustee for the next of kin, & the claim of the next of kin to the leaseholds was barred.—Re LACY, ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND ASSOCN. v. KYDD, [1899] 2 Ch. 149; 68 L. 1520. Applications to court—Partial decree not granted—Directions where scheme of founder cannot be carried out—Commingling of different funds.]—(1) Pursuers in an actio popularis in re a public trust have no right to demand a partial decree, which will leave unsettled matters seriously affecting the future administration of the charity. (2) If trustees of a public charitable trust cannot carry out the main purpose of the trust in the mode the truster has expressed, it is their duty to apply to the ct. for directions. (3) When capital of one trust fund is bonâ fide intermixed by the same trustees with capital of another trust fund, both funds being bequeathed for the same public charity, & an actio popularis is brought, the duty of the ct. is to consider what course is best, looking at all the circumstances, for the interest of the charity, & the ct. ought to refuse to give any decision until all the circumstances necessary to form such final decision are before them, it being within the power of the ct. to order either an independent inquiry or the production of further evidence by the parties.—ANDREWS v. M'GUFFOG (1886), 11 App. Cas. 313, H. 1545. —— "Endowment"—Not "wholly maintained by voluntary contributions."]—A freehold house was in 1884 purchased by the founder of a mission to the Jews out of money given to him in that year without any direction as to the particular charitable application of the money. The house was conveyed to him in fee simple absolutely, & was used by him as a home for Jewish children. The mission was supported by voluntary subscriptions, & had no endowment. In 1885 the founder conveyed the freehold house, together with the other property of the mission, to trustees upon trust that same should be occupied & used for the purposes of the mission, the general or fundamental objects or purposes of which were described in a schedule to the trust deed. A power of sale was by the deed given to the trustees, & they were directed to invest the net proceeds of sale as capital. They were desirous of selling the freehold house:—Held: (1) the freehold house was an "endowment" within Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 66, & the charity was not within the exemption in s. 62 as a charity wholly maintained by voluntary contributions, because it had under the trust deed property used for the purposes of the charity, although not actually producing income; (2) even if it were a mixed charity it was not within the exemption, for by the terms of the deed the property could no longer be legally applied as income, & the trustees could not sell the freehold land without the approval of the Charity Comrs. under Charitable Trusts (Amendment) Act, 1855 (c. 124), s. 29.—A.-G. v. MATHIESON, Re WILKINSON & FELL'S CONTRACT, [1907] 2 Ch. 383; 76 L. The Charity Comrs. claimed that the purchase-money should not be paid to the corpn. without the consent of the comrs.:—Held: (1) "income arising from any endowment" means primâ facie the income of any invested funds, whether such funds be held upon any special trust or for the general purposes of the charity; (2) in the case of a charity partly maintained by voluntary subscriptions & partly by the income of any endowment, bequests & donations for the general purposes of the charity which may be lawfully applied as income consistently with the terms of the gift are exempt from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs.; (3) such gifts & the income thereof are not brought within the jurisdiction of the comrs. by being invested by the governing body; (4) the claim of the Charity Comrs. must be rejected, & the fund in ct. be paid to the corpn.; (5) (KEKEWICH, J.) the claim of the Charity Comrs. was not adverse litigation within the meaning of Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (c. 18), s. 80, & the railway co. must pay the costs of the application.—Re CLERGY ORPHAN CORPN., [1894] 3 Ch. 145; 64 L. 1550. —— ——.]—The trustees of the W. The consideration money of the conveyance was paid by the vendors out of moneys which they had borrowed on promissory notes signed by some of them, the principal & interest of which was afterwards paid out of a fund formed by voluntary contributions subsequently made or collected by members of the congregation. It was admitted that the proceeds of sale were applicable as income:—Held: the money raised for the purchase of the chapel was not a donation or bequest unto & in trust for the charity, but was raised by voluntary contributions, & as such came within the exceptions in Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 62, & the consent of the Charity Comrs. to a sale was unnecessary.—Re HARDING & WELSH CALVINISTIC

Appeals were from time to time made for donations to special objects of the charity, including one for the completion of new headquarters of the society. A large sum was obtained, & leasehold premises acquired. Upon an application to register the society as proprietor of these leaseholds under the Land Transfer Acts, 1875 (c. 87) & 1897 (c. 65) :—Held : (1) the subscribers to the headquarters must be taken to have known that their contributions, although primarily applicable to this particular object, were given for the general purposes of the society, & that there was no intention to take the money out of the control of the managing body ; (2) there was no such "endowment" within the meaning of Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 66, as rendered the society amenable to the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs. ; (3) the society could deal with the property within the powers of the memorandum of assocn., & was entitled to be registered in respect of the leaseholds without any restriction to the effect that no disposition of the land was to be registered without the consent of the Charity Comrs.—Re CHURCH ARMY (1906), 75 L. Clause 36 of the model deed provided that upon a sale of land subject to the trusts thereof the trustees should apply the net proceeds either for or towards promoting the preaching of the Gospel amongst the people called Methodists, in the circuit in which the chapel or place of religious worship should, for the time being, be situated, or otherwise as therein mentioned :—Held : the case came within the exemption provided by Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 62, & the trustees were entitled to be registered as proprietors of the piece of land so conveyed to them, without the entry on the register of any restrictions on their right to deal with the land.—Re WESLEYAN METHODIST CHAPEL, SOUTH STREET, WANDSWORTH, [1909] 1 Ch. 454 ; 78 L. 1555. —— ——.]—A charity was formed in 1758, & was supported by the donations, legacies, & subscriptions of benevolent persons. In 1771 it contemplated building a new school in L., &, through a committee, collected subscriptions for the purchase of land as the site of the school, & for the building of the school, which was used by the charity until 1848, when a school in another locality was built & thenceforth used in lieu of the L. school. The site for the L. school & the building of that school were paid for partly by the subscriptions given for that purpose, & partly, & to at least an equal extent, out of the ordinary subscriptions to the charity which could be used for the general purposes of the society. The committee had the land conveyed to trustees upon trust for & for the only use, benefit & service of the charity, & to be conveyed & disposed of, from time to time, in such manner as should be ordered & directed for that purpose at any general ct. or meeting of the subscribers to the charity for the time being. There was no evidence as to whether the donors of the subscriptions to the school fund had or had not authorised a conveyance upon these trusts. By an Act passed in 1848 the charity was incorporated, with power to hold land & for the purposes of the institution to convey & dispose of such land. In 1905 this power of disposition was taken away by an Act which amalgamated the charity with other charities under a different name, & gave the newly incorporated body power to sell its land, but provided, by s. 13, that this power should "as regards property forming an endowment for charitable purposes, other than educational, & not exempted from the jurisdiction or control of the Charity Comrs. or the powers or provisions of the Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 (c. 137) to 1894 (c. 35), by such Acts or otherwise, be exerciseable with the consent of the Comrs., &, as regards property forming an endowment for educational purposes, & not exempted under the Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1894, & the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 (c. 56) to 1889 (c. 40), or otherwise, with the consent of the Board of Education." The charity having contracted to sell land forming the site of the L. school, the purchasers raised the question whether the consent, either of the Charity Comrs. or of the Board of Education, was required :—Held : (1) the meaning of s. 13 of the Act of 1905 was that where, but for that Act, the consent of the Charity Comrs., or of the Board of Education would be necessary, it was still to be necessary notwithstanding the power of sale previously given ; (2) the charity was not within the exemptions from the control of the Charity Comrs. or the Board of Education given by 1853 Act, s. 62, as a society "wholly maintained by voluntary contribution" ; (3) the charity was within the exemptions of the above sect. so far as it was maintained by voluntary subscriptions ; (4) the committee must, in the absence of evidence, be assumed to have had the authority of the subscribers to the building fund to declare trusts for the general purposes of the charity; (5) the land contracted to be sold was a donation to a mixed charity of which no special application or appropriation had been directed or declared by the donor, & which might legally be applied by the charity as income in aid of the voluntary subscriptions, & was, by 1853 Act, s. 62, exempted from the control of the Charity Comrs. & the Board of Education.—Re ORPHAN WORKING SCHOOL & ALEXANDRA ORPHANAGE'S CONTRACT, [1912] 2 Ch. 167; 81 L. 1556. —— ——.]—The charity commonly called the F. Hospital, was incorporated in 1739 by royal charter with power to purchase, hold, sell, demise & dispose of land of any tenure. In the same year the charter was confirmed by Act of Parliament. In 1750 the governors of the charity purchased land in B. which was conveyed to them without the expression of any trust. The purchase price was paid out of moneys in the hands of the governors representing voluntary contributions, in obtaining which there had undoubtedly been some idea that the governors should not immediately spend all they received but should make investments, as & when possible & expedient, in property producing income for the maintenance of the charity, but nevertheless the contributions so obtained were such that they might have been expended as income, or in whatever manner the governors pleased for the purpose of the charity. On part of this land the F. Hospital was subsequently built, the chapel being the subject of a special subscription, & the rest of the land was developed under long building leases. The yearly rentals received from the B. estate at the present time were very considerable, but for some time past the yearly subscriptions, irrespective of donations & benefactions, had only averaged eleven guineas. In 1744 certain property in the City of L. had been conveyed by the donors to the governors of the hospital without the expression of any trusts. In an action by the A.-G. for a declaration that the governors of the hospital could not deal with the B. estate or City property except in accordance with the provisions of Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855 (c. 124), s. 29 :—Held : (1) the charity was at the time of the passing of Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), & had ever since been supported in part, though possibly to a comparatively small extent, by voluntary subscriptions, & was a charity "maintained partly by subscriptions & partly by income arising from endowment" to which the exemption in respect of donations & bequests contained in the latter part of s. 62 of the Act applied; (2) the charity was, by virtue of Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855, s. 48, exempted from the operation of s. 29 of the latter Act; (3) the B. estate, whether called endowment or not, was exempt from the jurisdiction or control of the board & from the provisions of the Act of 1855 as well as of the Act of 1853; (4) there was no material difference in point of law between the position of the City property & the B. estate.—A.-G. v. FOUNDLING HOSPITAL, [1914] 2 Ch. 154; 83 L. 1581. Long lease—Not necessarily void.]—A lease of charity estates by the trustees for a long term is not absolutely void ; its validity must depend on all the circumstances of the transaction, & the difficulty of ascertaining those circumstances & of restoring the lessee to his original situation after the lapse of many years is an impediment to the setting aside such a lease in equity.

Information to set aside a lease for 980 years, of tithes belonging to a charity, dismissed : the lease having been granted 150 years before the information filed, & pursuant to a decree of this ct., which decree remained unreversed & was not impeached or sought to be set aside by the present suit.—A.-G. v. WARREN (1818), 2 Swan. 291 ; 1 Wils. c. Consent of bishop essential — 8 Wm. 4, No. 5, s. 21.]—Trustees of glebe lands belonging to a church demised an allotment to S. for 99 years. The lease, which purported to be made under Church Acts, was executed between the death of a bishop & the appointment of his successor. S. assigned the lease to T. The succeeding bishop refused to give his consent to the lease, as provided by above Act, save upon conditions to which T. would not agree :—Held : (1) the bishop's consent was essential to the validity of the lease ; (2) the lease was bad.—A.-G. v. TEY (1890-1), 12 N. 1726. —— Candidate passing "best" examination—Candidate obtaining highest marks not entitled—If insufficient merit.]—Under the provisions of a deed founding a scholarship, the scholarship was to be awarded to the pupil leaving a certain school & fulfilling certain other conditions, who should pass the "best" examination in subjects to be determined upon from time to time by the examiner or examiners for the scholarship. The trustees announced an examination for June, 1894, at which pltf. & another boy were the only candidates, & pltf. obtained the larger number of marks, but the trustees declined to award the scholarship, the examiner having reported that neither candidate was deserving of quite so valuable a scholarship. Pltf. commenced an action against the trustees for a declaration that he was entitled to the possession & enjoyment of the scholarship, subject to performing the conditions contained in the trust deed :—Held : upon the true construction of the trust deed, no boy was entitled to the scholarship, unless in the examiner's opinion he had passed a satisfactory examination in the subjects selected, & if a boy, though the best of those who competed, was unable to pass a satisfactory examination, then the examiner ought to say, as he had in effect said here, that there was no boy who had passed the best examination so as to be entitled to the scholarship.—ROOKE v. DAWSON (1895), 65 L. 1745. Clerk to charity—Has not "vested interest"—Under City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883 (c. 36), s. 10.]—An application was made, under above sect. by the clerk & solr. to the trustees of a charity founded in 1503, raising the question whether he had, as such clerk & solr., a "vested interest" under the Act. S. 7 of the Act provides that no person shall be deemed to have any vested interest within the Act if the office he holds is tenable at the pleasure of some other person or persons; but the comrs. may consider any fair & equitable claims. In 1883 a scheme for the regulation of the charity was sanctioned by the Ch. Div. Shortly before the passing of the Act, the trustees of the charity passed a resolution appointing the applicant clerk & solr. to the charity at a salary of £63 a year, but without fixing any period as the duration of his appointment. He claimed that his appointment was a freehold office, & not tenable only at the pleasure of the trustees; & accordingly, that he had a "vested interest" under the Act:—Held: the office in question was not contemplated by the scheme, the trustees had no power whatever to create it as a freehold office, & if they intended to create such an office by their resolution it was a breach of trust, & appct. had not a vested interest in any of the charity property.—Re ST. 1754. —— Enabled to receive & give good discharge for money vested in him—Not capable of holding lands—Private Act.]—By 31 Geo. 2, c. ii., it was enacted that £3,274 7*s.* 6*d.* South Sea Annuities should be transferred to the rector of S. & his assigns to the intent that the dividends might be received by the rector & his successors towards his & their maintenance, but not to be transferred, sold or disposed of unless for such purpose & with such licence as therein mentioned, & which stock should on the death or removal of the rector, vest in the succeeding rector; & it was declared that when a proper & convenient purchase of lands for the benefit of the rector could be found, it should be lawful for the rector for the time being, with the consent of the bishop, to sell & lay out the money in the payment of the purchase-money of such lands, & same should be settled & assured to the use of the rector, & his successors for & towards his & their maintenance. By 16 Vict. c. 23 all persons who did not assent to conversion of the South Sea stock into Govt. stock were paid off at par, & under that Act D., the then rector, received £3,524 6*s.* 7*d.* In 1880 D. resigned & paid his successor I. £3,524 6*d.* 7*s.* with a year's interest. I. invested part of the money in the purchase of ground rents at L. & took a conveyance to himself, his heirs & assigns. I. resigned in 1892, & conveyed the unsold portion of the L. estate to H., his successor, for a nominal consideration. In 1893 H. sold the property by auction, & the deft. bought part for £310. H. misappropriated the purchase-money & resigned in 1899. The present rector claimed a declaration that the conveyance to deft. was void under 13 Eliz. c. 10, & that the hereditaments formed a part of the endowment of S. In the alternative, he asked a declaration that the deft. took with notice that the property was subject to a trust for the rector of S. for the time being:—Held: (1) the rector as a corpn. sole was not capable of holding lands, but was authorised by statute to receive & give a good discharge for the money representing the South Sea stock; (2) the investment of the money in real estate being irregular, it was H.'s duty to reconvert the real estate; (3) the sale to deft. was regular & proper, & his payment to H. discharged him from all liability.—POWER v. BANKS, [1901] 2 Ch. 487; 70 L. 1781. Under Local Government Act, 1894 (c. 73)—Power of parish council to appoint—Whether charity "ecclesiastical."]—The founder of an eleemosynary charity by her deed of endowment declared that the objects of the charity should be selected by the trustees thereof, one of whom was to be the rector of the parish, from amongst poor men & women resident in a certain parish who should have regularly attended divine service in the church of the parish for a fixed period, been partakers of the Holy Communion & lived a godly, righteous & sober life to the glory of God's Holy Name; & she also declared that the lay trustees should always be members of the Church of England:—Held: (1) the charity was one for the benefit of members of the Church of England "as such," i.e., in their character of members of that church, & to the exclusion of non-members thereof, & was accordingly an ecclesiastical charity within s. 75 of above Act, & the parish council had no power, under s. 14 (1) of the Act, to appoint trustees of it; (2) in s. 75 (2) (e), of the Act, the words "or otherwise for the benefit of any particular church or any members thereof as such" are not to be construed as limited to religious "benefit," to the exclusion of mere temporal benefit; (3) there may be a charity in the legal sense for purposes which are both eleemosynary & ecclesiastical or religious.

Testatrix by her will, made in 1799, devised a rentcharge to be paid to the churchwardens for the time being of the parish of B. on a certain day in every year for ever, & to be laid out in the purchase of garments to be given to "six old & poor widows of the parish whom they shall judge the properest objects to receive the same with preference to those who not being disabled by infirmity or sickness are most constant in their attendance on the public service of the church":—Held: (4) the charity thus created was not an ecclesiastical charity within the meaning of the above Act; (5) s. 14 (2) of that Act had application to the case of a non-ecclesiastical charity, the only trustees of which were churchwardens, & the parish council had power to appoint trustees of such a charity in place of the churchwardens.—Re PERRY ALMSHOUSES, Re ROSS' CHARITY, [1899] 1 Ch. 21; 68 L. 1782. —— —— —— Parish school.]—S. by his will, made in 1558, directed his exors. to erect an almshouse for ten poor persons, & gave his exors. the rents of certain real estate for five years after his death, for the purpose of founding & maintaining the intended almshouses, & gave his residue to his exors. on condition that they should procure the creation of a corpn. to enable the corporators to take on themselves his real estate for the finding of such poor persons. Some time after the death of testator legal proceedings were taken & the money recovered from the exors. was invested in lands at M. A deed was executed declaring the trusts of the property to be for the relief of poor lame, & impotent people dwelling within A. or otherwise to employ same for the raising & maintenance of a school according to the statute in that behalf made so as & where same should be thought convenient by the greatest number of inhabitants being also the most chargeable to the relief of the poor until a charter of incorporation should be obtained. Until 1818 the income was applied in aid of the rates for the relief of the poor. In 1818 the vestry of A. resolved to erect a school, & since 1819 the rents of M. were applied in supporting the school which was then erected. The governors of the school, who were trustees, now retired, & the parish council appointed new trustees in their place. The churchwardens now petitioned against the decision of the Charity Comrs. that the parish council had power to appoint. They said in 1819 the income had been definitely appropriated to educational purposes, & trustees of the income of a permanent endowment of a school were in the same position as trustees of a school. Secondly, it was said that the charity was ecclesiastical:—Held: (1) s. 66 of the Act did not include trusteeship of property temporarily devoted to the use of the school; (2) the charity was not ecclesiastical.—Re SPENDLUFFE'S CHARITY (1900), 83 L. 1836. Appointment by master—Court will adopt—Unless trustees proved to be objectionable.]—When a reference has been made to the master to appoint trustees of a charity, it is the rule of the ct. to adopt the master's appointments, unless the persons appointed can be shown to be objectionable; & the ct. will not enter into the question of the fitness of other persons whom the master has refused to appoint. Where, however, under Municipal Corpns. Act, 1835 (c. 76), a reference had been made to the master, to appoint new trustees of charity property, in the stead of the old corpn., who had been the former trustees, & the master had received evidence which tended to show that there was a suspicion of the old trustees having exercised their trust for political purposes, & had declined to reappoint any of the old trustees, & had written a memorandum, stating that he had come to that determination in consequence of the case made against the old trustees, the ct. entered into the consideration of the propriety of the master's conduct in rejecting all the old trustees:—Held: the existence of a general suspicion of impropriety on the part of the old trustees in the exercise of their trust, whether that suspicion were well or ill founded, justified the master in declining to reappoint any of the old trustees.—Re NORWICH CHARITIES (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 275; 40 E. c. Trustees not liable—After allocation orders under Churches (Scotland) Act, 1905.]—A. directed his trustees to pay annual income of his estate for the promotion of the H. Mission of the Free Presbyterian Church with power for his trustees to engage Free Church missionaries in the promotion of the mission as they might think proper either through the church or independent of it. The trustees independently of the Church appointed & paid a licensed probationer & ordained preacher of the Free Church to conduct a mission in B. By allocation orders under the Churches (Scotland) Act, 1905, the funds left by the testator were allocated to the Free Church. The trustees continued to expend the income on the mission in B., & after such orders the church was entitled to payment of the income & the trustees discretionary power to administer the trust estate, independently of the church, ceased. The trustees thereafter paid the income to the church :—Held : the trustees were not personally liable to repay the expenditure by them independently of the church on the mission at B. either before or after the date of the allocation orders.—FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND v. MACKNIGHT'S TRUSTEES (1915), 53 Sc. 1936. —— —— "Particular & specific trust"—"Any building registered as place of meeting for religious worship."]—In 1811 land was conveyed to trustees upon trust to erect thereon a Wesleyan chapel, & to collect money by pew-rents, contributions, or otherwise, & to stand possessed of the same, & also all rents, issues & profits of the chapel & other erections which should be built on the land, upon trust to pay thereout the principal & interest of money borrowed in respect of the trust premises, & to apply the surplus for the support of the preachers for the time being stationed in the circuit of the chapel ; & upon further trust, if necessary, to sell the property & apply the proceeds of sale in the purchase or erection of another more convenient chapel, & hold the same upon the like trusts. On the site so conveyed a chapel was erected, & used, & registered as a place of religious worship. Subsequently, adjoining pieces of land were purchased & conveyed to the trustees upon the same trusts. The purchase-money for the additional land was raised partly by subscriptions & collections, partly by money borrowed at interest, & partly by sale of other portions of the property. On the property so acquired buildings of various kinds were erected by means of legacies, subscriptions, & collections. One of such buildings was let by the trustees, & yielded a considerable rent. In 1881 on the application of the trustees, a scheme was settled by the Charity Comrs. for the future regulation of the charity, directing that the property should be held upon the trusts of the Wesleyan chapel model deed, which were somewhat wider than those of the original deed of 1811, & provided for the application of surplus income towards the general objects of Wesleyans. The Comrs. sought to compel the trustees to render accounts of the income & expenditure of the trust property. The trustees claimed exemption from the jurisdiction of the Comrs. under 1853 Act, s. 62 :—Held : (1) the exemption in the sect. of "any building registered as a place of meeting for religious worship" only extended to the chapel itself, & not to the other buildings & property held therewith ; (2) notwithstanding the extent of the objects for which the surplus income & the proceeds of sale were applicable, the property, other than the chapel, was, in substance, held on "a particular & specific trust," & constituted an "endowment" within the sect. ; (3) the property did not fall within either of the other exemptions in the sect. ; (4) the trustees must render accounts of all the trust property except the chapel itself.—Re ST. JOHN STREET WESLEYAN METHODIST CHAPEL, CHESTER, [1893] 2 Ch. 618 ; 62 L. J. Ch. 927 ; 69 L. T. 105 ; 9 T. L. R. 431 ; 37 Sol. Jo. 456.

1937. —— —— Trustees with absolute discretionary power—Not "mixed charity."]—Testator bequeathed his residuary personal estate to trustees upon trust to apply the same in such manner as they should "in their absolute & uncontrolled discretion think proper" for the benefit of a charity, which was not supported by any voluntary subscriptions :—Held : (1) notwithstanding this absolute discretionary power of dealing with the trust funds, the bequest was an "endowment" of the charity within 1853 Act, s. 66 ; (2) the charity, not being a "mixed charity," was not exempted by s. 62 from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs., who were therefore entitled to demand from the trustees accounts of the property & income of the charity.

(3) On motion to commit the trustees for refusing to render accounts, the trustees were ordered to pay the costs of the motion.—Re GILCHRIST EDUCATIONAL TRUST, [1895] 1 Ch. 367 ; 64 L. J. Ch. 298 ; 71 L. T. 875 ; 43 W. R. 234 ; 13 R. 228.

1939. —— Charity not "wholly maintainable by voluntary contribution"—Charity supported entirely from property received from original donation.]—A founder by deed of gift gave real & personal property to trustees for the purpose of founding a hospital. The deed of gift provided for the sale of the property, & that £10,000 of the capital & income thereof should be applied for or towards the erection & equipment of the hospital, & the residue of the capital & income towards the general purposes of the charity. The hospital had been erected, & had been partly equipped out of the sums realised by the sale of part of the property. No other donations or subscriptions had been received by the trustees of the charity. The Charity Comrs. claimed the right to have the accounts of the charity submitted to them:—Held: as at present, the charity derived its support entirely from the property which it received from the original donation, it was not a charity "wholly maintained by voluntary contribution," & was not exempt, under 1853 Act, s. 62, from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs.—Re RICHARD MURRAY HOSPITAL, [1914] 2 Ch. 713; 84 L. SECT 2.—FOUNDATION.

1972. General rules—Incorporation under royal charter—Meaning of "foundation."]—By royal letters patent dated June 22, in 9 Jac. 1, reciting an Act, 9 Jac. 1. entitled, "An Act to confirm & enable the erection & establishment of an hospital & free grammar school, done & intended to be done by S. & C. . . . & also that S., during his life, & after his death, the governors . . . for the time being, & their successors, should have full power, at his & their wills & pleasures respectively, from time to time, to place therein such master of the hospital, as to S. during his life, & after his death to the governors . . . should seem convenient," a licence was granted to S. to found an hospital for the relief of poor, etc. & a free school ; &, in a subsequent part of the same letters patent, fifteen persons were appointed by name, " & the master of the hospital, & such person as should from time to time be master . . . to be the first & present governors of the lands, etc. of the hospital." S. on Oct. 30, in the same year, appointed H. to be the first master of the hospital, to have & to hold the said office at the will of S. :—Held : (1) no hospital, etc. was founded by the Act itself ; (2) the incorporation ought to precede the founding the hospital ; (3) the King by his charter of incorporation might, at the petition of the founder, make the house & inheritance of the petitioner to be an hospital, & might give it a name ; (4) the words in the charter, "that the said house & other the premises shall from henceforth for ever hereafter be, remain, &c. & shall for ever hereafter be named & called the Hospital of King James, founded in the Charter-house," were a sufficient naming of the place of the corpn. : a known name was sufficient to found an hospital, & it need not be described by metes & bounds ; (5) an objection to the validity of the incorporation, that the King by his letters patent intended to make a present corpn., which his words expressly imported, but that no incorporation could be until S. had named a master, & that nomination being subsequent to the letters patent, the latter were repugnant to themselves & void could not be sustained ; (6) the incorporation might exist before the hospital was actually founded ; (7) the word "foundation" was taken in two different senses "fundatio incipiens" & "fundatio perficiens ;" as to the politic capacity, the act of incorporation was metaphorically called the foundation, but as to the dotation, the first gift of the revenues was called the foundation, & he who gave it was the founder in law : if the King had incorporated the poor of the hospital, S. need not have made any instrument comprehending any foundation, erection, &c. but his gift of the land being the first gift, had made him founder, & the very first donation was all the foundation which was requisite in law ; & to the erection of an hospital, nothing was required by the law but incorporation & donation.—SUTTON HOSPITAL CASE (1612), 10 Co. The governors who contended that they had a discretion as to appointing a person so recommended, refused to appoint a person recommended by the Lord Mayor & Aldermen:—Held: (1) the word "recommendation" in clause 19 must be construed as a nomination upon which the governors were bound to act; (2) in the circumstances, mandamus was the proper remedy to compel the governors to perform the duty of appointing the person recommended.—R. v. CHRIST'S HOSPITAL (GOVERNORS), Ex p. DUNN, [1917] 1 K. Exempt—Gift of land to mixed charity at date of determination of question by commissioner—Not mixed charity at time of donation.]—A piece of land within the area of Land Transfer Acts was conveyed to trustees of a deed which had been entered into with a view to the establishment of a trust for charitable purposes generally. An application for the registration of the land was made to the Acting Chief Registrar, who decided that registration must be refused, unless the consent of the Charity Comrs. was obtained, & that if such consent was obtained a restriction must be entered that no disposition be registered without the consent of the Charity Comrs.:—Held: (1) at the time when the question was under consideration by the ct. (that being the time for determining the nature of the charity) the charity was a charity which was being maintained partly by subscriptions & partly by income arising from endowment (i.e., a "mixed" charity); (2) the gift of land was a donation "unto or in trust for any such charity as last aforesaid," within the proviso contained in 1853 Act, s. 62, & was not subject to the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs.; (3) the transfer ought to be registered without the restriction suggested.—VILLIERS v. A.-G. 2159. Time for consent—Need not be obtained before beginning of action.]—The master of a charity school founded under School Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38), brought an action in the Ch. Div. against the managers of the school for an injunction to restrain them from dismissing him from his office, & from appointing any other person to such office, & from ejecting him from the schoolhouse. The managers had purported to dismiss pltf. under the discretionary power conferred upon them under s. 17 of the Act, & the question raised by the action was whether the managers had been properly appointed. Pltf. had not obtained, under 1853 Act, s. 17, the leave of the Charity Comrs. to bring the action:—Held: (1) although the action might incidentally involve the consideration of the deed of trust of the charity, it was not such an action as required the consent of the Charity Comrs.; (2) even if the consent of the Charity Comrs. were necessary, it was not necessary to obtain it before the commencement of the action, & it would not be right to dismiss the action without giving pltf. the opportunity of ascertaining whether the Comrs. would give their consent.—RENDALL v. BLAIR (1890), 45 Ch. 2175. —— Action to restrain removal of medical officer—If brought with any object beyond preventing plaintiff from being excluded.]—Pltf. had been appointed in pursuance of certain rules framed by the committee of a hospital established by a trust deed of Mar. 1879, under the powers conferred by the deed, resident medical superintendent of the institution for life, subject to his removal on three months' notice by the committee on proof to them of neglect of duty; & he was let into possession of a house which was annexed to the office. The funds of the hospital not being sufficient to maintain a resident medical officer, the committee gave pltf. three months' notice of removal, no charge of neglect of duty being brought against him. The committee gave the notice with the intention of applying for a new scheme which would render the office unnecessary. Pltf. commenced an action against the committee for a declaration that he was entitled to hold his office during good behaviour, & for an injunction to restrain them from ejecting him from his residence & from otherwise interfering with the tenure of his office:—Held: if the object of the action was anything beyond preventing defts. from excluding pltf., it required the sanction of the Charity Comrs.—BENTHALL v. KILMOREY (EARL) (1883), 25 Ch. At a subsequent date the then trustee of the endowments transferred them to the Charity Comrs. & defts. as Official Trustees of Charitable Trusts received the income arising from the funds. The school board brought an action against defts. to recover the sums so received by them & for an inquiry as to the trust funds:—Held: the claim of pltfs. was under the trusts affecting the endowments & not a relief sought adversely to a charity & they were not entitled to bring the action without the consent of the Charity Comrs. under 1853 Act, s. 17.—LLANBADARNFAWR SCHOOL BOARD v. CHARITABLE TRUSTS OFFICIAL TRUSTEES, [1901] 1 K. SUB-SECT. 4.—PARTIES.

A. The Attorney-General.

(a) In General.

2213. General rule stated—Represents all absent charities—When general gift to charity—Presence not always necessary when charities specified.]—It is difficult to lay down any general rule, which shall be adapted to every case; there must be a great deal of discretion in these matters. The general principle which regulates them I take to be something of this description: the A.-G. represents all absent charities, & it is sufficient to have him here to represent all absent charities. But absent charities may obviously be of two different characters: they may either be under gifts to specified individual charities, or to charity generally. In case the gift is for charity generally, no one can represent it but the A.-G., & he must be here to represent such general charities. When there are specified individual charities, then the A.-G.'s presence is not universally necessary; but it is required by the ct. upon various occasions, as, for instance, where any rules are required for the regulation of the internal conduct of the charity itself, such as the establishment of a scheme & the like; there the A.-G. is necessary for the purpose of aiding & assisting the ct. in directing & sanctioning the general system & principle that ought to govern charities of those descriptions. But there are other cases where there is no question as to the conduct or management of the charities, but only whether the charity is entitled to a particular legacy or not. In those cases, the A.-G. is rather in the nature of a trustee for those charities, & the ct. prefers having before it the charities beneficially interested, for the purpose of putting their interests before the ct. in the light which they consider most favourable to them. In those cases I think it preferable that the charity itself should appear, rather than that the A.-G. should represent it. There may be mixed cases in which it is impossible to lay down a rule beforehand, & in which the ct. must act on the matter before it in such manner as, according to the best exercise of its discretion & judgment, it may think best calculated to promote justice (ROMILLY, M.R.).—WARE v. CUMBERLEGE (1855), 20 Beav. 503; 3 Eq. 2301. —— —— Binding on charities voluntarily absent.]—Testator by codicil, admitted to probate in circumstances hereinafter stated, bequeathed a number of legacies to charities & the residue of his estate upon trust for division among institutions to be selected by his trustees. On Mar. 21, 1908 he was found lunatic by inquisition & the Official Solr. was appointed committee of his person. Shortly afterwards he was removed to an establishment maintained for him under the authority of the Master in Lunacy & O. was appointed by the committee of the person to have charge of the establishment. Testator died in 1915, & shortly after his death one of defts. commenced an action in the Probate Div. claiming as heir-at-law & sole next of kin that the ct. should pronounce against the codicil & for the will & five earlier codicils under which the residue would be undisposed of. The A.-G. was a party to the proceedings, & a citation was issued to the charities, which, however, did not appear. Ultimately a compromise signed by the A.-G. & other counsel was arrived at between the parties present at the hearing under which the sixth codicil was admitted to probate on the terms that the will & six codicils were to be admitted to probate; that the beneficiaries under the sixth codicil were to relinquish in favour of pltf. in that action one-third of their legacies under that codicil; & that pltf. was to receive one-third of the residue of the estate in addition to the amounts relinquished in his favour. The charities were at once informed of the compromise & no complaint was ever made: —Held : the compromise having been assented to by the A.-G. on behalf of the charities absent by their own choice they were bound by it; but, even if they were not bound, yet, as they claimed to stand by the probate of the sixth codicil, not to set it aside, & as it was only admitted to probate as part of the compromise, they must if they wished to take advantage of the agreement, bear their portion of the burden of it.—Re KING, JACKSON v. A.-G., [1917] 2 Ch. 420; 87 L. SUB-SECT. 2.—ENUMERATION.

See, also, cases in Part V., Sect. 9, sub-sect. 1, A. (a), ii., post.

4. Agreement—Unstamped.]—An unstamped agreement, which may be rendered valid by being impressed with a stamp, is a chose in action.—R. v. WATTS (1854), Dears. C. C. 326; 23 L. J. M. C. 56; 22 L. T. O. S. 292; 18 J. P. 87; 18 Jur. 192; 2 W. R. 233; 2 C. L. R. 604; 6 Cox, C. C. 304, C. C. R.

5. Annuity—Chattel interest in land.]—Testator bequeathed a leasehold estate to trustees upon trust as therein mentioned, & he charged the estate with the payment of an annuity to his daughter, during all his interest in the estate. The daughter afterwards mortgaged her annuity, first to A. & afterwards to B.; B. gave the trustees notice of his mtge. before A. did:—Held: (1) the annuity was not a chose in action, but a chattel interest & not subject to the rules affecting choses in action; (2) B. had not gained any priority over A.—WILTSHIRE v. RABBITS (1844), 14 Sim. 76; 13 L. J. Ch. 284; 8 Jur. 769; 60 E. R. 285.

Annotations:—As to (2) Consd. Consolidated Investment & Insce. v. Riley (1859), 1 Giff, 371. Generally Refd. Lee v. Howlett (1856), 2 K. & J. 531; Ward v. Duncombe, [1893] A. C. 369; Taylor v. London & County Banking Co., London & County Banking Co. v. Nixon, [1901] 2 Ch. 231.

6. Bank-notes.]—On a motion to set aside an execution on a judgment confessed, for irregularity:—Held: bank-notes, etc., cannot be taken in execution; for though they are assignable over, yet they remain, in some measure, choses in action, & the sheriff or his bargainee, cannot bring an action on them without assignment.—FRANCIS v. NASH (1734), Cunn. 51; Lee temp. Hard. 53; 94 E. R. 1056.

See, generally, BANKERS & BANKING, Vol. III., pp. 196 et seq.

7. Barrister's fees—In hands of solicitor.]—Fees received by a solr. for payment to a barrister for professional services are not a debt, & therefore garnishee proceedings cannot be used to attach them in the hands of the solr.

It is clear on the authorities that these fees are not properly to be described as debts at all. I have grave doubts whether they could be made the subject-matter of an equitable assignment, but it is clear from the provisions of 1873 Act that they are not choses in action (EVANS, P.).—WELLS v. WELLS, [1914] P. 157; 83 L. J. P. 81; 111 L. T. 399; 30 T. L. R. 545; 58 Sol. Jo. 555, C. A.

See, generally, BARRISTERS, Vol. III., pp. 331 et seq.

8. Charterparty.]—MANGLES v. DIXON, No. 349, post.

See, generally, SHIPPING & NAVIGATION.

9. Lessee's right to be relieved from forfeiture of lease.]—The right of a lessee to be relieved from the forfeiture of a lease is a chose in action which vests in his trustee in bkpcy., & the trustee is entitled to sell such right & to assign it to a purchaser.—HOWARD v. FANSHAWE, [1895] 2 Ch. 581; 64 L. J. Ch. 666; 73 L. T. 77; 43 W. R. 645; 39 Sol. Jo. 623; 13 R. 663.

See, generally, LANDLORD & TENANT.

10. Mortgage deed.]—Mtge. deeds which are subsisting securities for money, & therefore choses in action, are not properly described in an indictment as goods & chattels.—R. v. POWELL (1852), 2 Den. 403; 21 L. J. M. C. 78; 18 L. T. O. S. 279;

PART I. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

a. Every assignable interest in real & personal property—Debts.]—The term "chose in action" includes every assignable interest in real or personal property, debts, & the right of action incidental to debts.—KING v. JOHNSTON, 3 J. R. N. S. 94.—N.Z.

PART I. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

5 i. Annuity.]—The receiver in an administration suit was ordered to pay out of the rents to H., devisee of the real estates, an annuity of £400:—Held: the annuity was not a chose in action.—ROCHARD v. FULTON (1844), 1 Jo. & Lat. 413; 7 I. Eq. R. 131.—IR.

b. Chattel bailed.]—The owner of a corporeal chattel which is in another man's possession, either through bailment or otherwise, has not a mere chose in action. He is said to own the thing itself, as distinguished from having a mere right of action.—Re MCLEAN (1904), 23 N. Z. L. R. 504.—N.Z.

12. Partnership—Share in.]—B. as trustee & exor. of his father's will, became entitled to one half share in a distillery business lately carried on in partnership between his father & another. In pursuance of a provision in the will, B. continued the partnership business & afterwards purchased the interest of the beneficiaries under the will, & executed mtges. to secure the purchase-money, by one of which, dated Sept. 1872, B. assigned all his beneficial interest under his father's will as a security for payment of the money due, & by the same deed charged all his share & interest in the distillery partnership, & in the goodwill of the business, with the repayment of the money due. New articles of partnership were then entered into between B. & the old partner, in which the former appeared as the owner of one half the business. In June 1877, B. was adjudicated bkpt., & his share in the partnership had since been sold to the other partner:—Held: as between B.'s trustee in bkpcy. & the mtgee., the mtge. of B.'s share & interest in the partnership was a charge upon a chose in action, & as such, was not affected by Bkpcy. 29. —— Relates to procedure only.] — The above sub-sect. relates to procedure only. It does not enlarge the class of choses in action the assignability of which was previously recognised either at law or in equity. It is designed to avoid the necessity of going first to a Ct. of Equity & then to a Ct. of Law. Some limit must be put upon the words used. It is plain that there are many contracts of such a personal nature that they do not admit of being assigned, e.g. a contract to paint a picture. Even where the personal element did not come in, the old Ct. of Ch. did not, any more than the Cts. of Common Law, regard the burthen of a contract as assignable. There was an exception in the case of contracts of which specific performance could be granted. (2) The above sub-sect. applies to equitable as well as legal choses in action. (3) The tenant for life of a moiety of the residuary estate under a will assigned his interest by way of mtge. & the assignees gave notice of the assignment to the trustees. Subsequently the tenant for life brought an action against the trustees for account. The assignees were added as defts. to the action & did not oppose the taking of the account. The money was advanced by the bankers, & the customer then gave them a letter addressed by him to the tenant of the farm, by which he authorised & requested the tenant, when his Michaelmas rent became due, to pay £200 to the bankers. The letter contained no reference to the loan, & did not show that any consideration had been given for the authority. The bankers sent the letter to the tenant. The customer was adjudicated a bkpt. upon an act of bkpcy. committed in Aug. :—Held : as the rent was an interest in land, the agreement was one which, by Stat. SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

NOTE.—In considering the following cases regard must be had to the effect of 1873 Act, s. 25 (6).

47. Chose in contract—Assignable in satisfaction.]—H. was indebted to F. in the sum of £100 under a bond. F. being indebted to S. in the same sum, assigned to S. his suit against H. in full satisfaction of his indebtedness, & also delivered the bond to S. & empowered him to sue in F.'s name. F. died intestate & S. sued H. in the name of F.'s administrators. H. subsequently brought an action against S. for maintenance:—Held: liability under a chose in contract might be assigned in satisfaction & maintenance of the action was justified.—HORN v. FOSTER (1455), Y. 48. At common law—Chose in action not formerly assignable.]—First was observed the great wisdom & policy of the sages & founders of our law, who have provided, that no possibility, right, title, nor thing in action, shall be granted or assigned to strangers, for that would be the occasion of multiplying of contentions & suits, of great oppression of the people, & chiefly of terre tenants, & the subversion of the due & equal execution of justice. As they cannot be granted by the act of the party; so a right in action shall not be transferred by act in law (per CUR.).—LAMPET'S CASE (1612), 10 Co. Rep. 46 b; 77 E. R. 994.

51. In equity—Chose in action assignable for valuable consideration.]—A sum of money was under a settlement of lands to be raised for daughters' portions; one of the daughters married & died before her portion was paid; her husband took administration to her, & assigned all his interest in the portion to his son by a former wife. The son, the father being dead, sued in equity for this money:—Held: there was a considerable difference between the assignment of the party & of the administrator, where the administrator was a stranger, or had not right before, & no colour of right but merely by the administration. In this case the administration was pro formâ only, for here he had a right to the money, as a portion or provision for his wife, & every man hath not ready money to give daughters, but their portions are to be provided for by this means, & it is reasonable to advance or promote the establishing of them, so that they might be disposable by the husband as money itself may be.—HURST v. GODDARD (1670), 1 Cas. in Ch. 169; 22 E. At the time of giving this direction all the instalments which were due had been paid by deft. to G. Notice in writing of the above-mentioned instrument was given to deft., but he refused to be bound by it, & afterwards paid to G. the balance of the price of the vessel, amounting to more than £100:—Held: the instrument in writing constituted a valid assignment of £100, part of the moneys due or to become due from deft. to G., & pltf. was entitled to recover that amount from deft., notwithstanding the subsequent payment by him to G.

67. —— —— Not operative to pass legal right to part assigned.]—The assignment of part of a debt does not operate to pass the legal right to that portion of the debt, as it is not an assignment within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6). But such an assignment does operate in equity to transfer the part assigned, & it constitutes the assignee a creditor in equity of original debtor.—Re STEEL WING CO., LTD., [1921] 1 Ch. 349; 90 L. 68. —— Part of judgment debt.]—A judgment creditor having assigned part of the judgment debt for valuable consideration, the assignee applied under R. S. C., Ord. 42, r. 23, for leave to issue execution:—Held: the assignee was not entitled to such leave, on the ground (1) (BRAY, J.) that there cannot be an absolute assignment within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6) of a definite part of an existing debt or other legal chose in action; (2) (CT. OF APPEAL) that, as the original judgment creditor could only issue a single execution upon his judgment, & could not split up the judgment debt & issue separate executions upon the different parts, he could not give to an assignee of a part of the judgment debt a right which he did not himself possess.—FORSTER v. BAKER, [1910] 2 K. 70. ——.]—The assignment for a valuable consideration of a future or contingent debt is effectual to pass the property therein; & when the debt comes into existence, it is payable to the assignee of the original creditor.

L. requested pltf. to supply him with wine, which he intended to sell to M., & it was agreed between L., M. & pltf., for a valuable consideration given by pltf. to L., that if M. accepted the wine, the price of it should be paid to pltf. instead of L. The agreement was made in Dec. 1873, & pltf. accordingly supplied the wine, which was delivered to M., & accepted by him in Jan. 1874:—Held: although the debt did not exist at the time when the agreement was made, the property in the debt vested in pltf., & upon the acceptance of the wine by M. the price thereof became payable to pltf. instead of to L.—PERCY v. CLEMENTS (1874), 43 L. & costs had been recovered against deft. The costs had been duly taxed, but the amount thereof was not entered upon the record. While the record was in this form the judgment was assigned to pltf. by deed without consideration, & notice in writing of the assignment was duly given to deft. In an action by pltf. as assignee to recover the amount of the costs:—Held: there was a valid chose in action in existence capable of legal assignment from the date of the judgment, or of the taxing master's certificate, and the assignment was not an equitable assignment of a future debt, for which consideration would be necessary.—HAMBLETON v. BROWN, [1917] 2 K. 72. Unascertained amount — Architect's commission—"As then was or should become due."]—Deft., being indebted to pltf. in £150, & being employed by T. to perform works for which he was receiving a percentage, wrote an order to T. to pay pltf. £150 out of the first moneys due to deft. Afterwards, being indebted to B. in £997, he executed a deed reciting the above facts, assigning & transferring to B. such sums as then were or should become due to him, deft., from T., in trust, first to pay pltf. the £150, &, secondly, to retain the residue towards payment of the £997; with covenants that he would not receive the money, nor revoke, etc., that he had right to assign, had not incumbered, & for further assurance. Deft. afterwards received £150 from T.; & pltf. sued him for money had & received, & on an account stated:—Held: (1) the action lay for the £150, though no proof was given of T.'s assent to the order, & though, at the time of making the order, nothing was due from T., & though, at the time of making the deed, there was not £150 due from T., & it was, at such times, uncertain to what extent deft. would be employed by T., & though pltf. was not a party to the deed; (2) the deed was not a mtge. but an absolute assignment of the deft.'s earnings.—POOLEY v. GOODWIN (1835), 4 Ad. & El. 94; 1 Har. & W. 567; 5 Nev. & M. 73. —— Balance at bank—"Then or thereafter to be standing to credit of assignor."]—By a deed of assignment all moneys then or thereafter to be standing to the credit of the assignor at a bank were assigned to a trustee, on trust for the assignor for his life, & after his death on other trusts. At the date of the assignment the assignor's balance at the bank was £48, at his death it was £217. Notice of the assignment was not given to the bank until after the assignor's death. In an action by the trustee against the bank to recover the balance of £217:—Held: (1) the bank, being a stranger to the assignment, could not set up the defence that it was voluntary & invalid in equity: (2) the balance at the time of the assignor's death was a debt or legal chose in action within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6); (3) notice after the death of the assignor was sufficient, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—WALKER v. BRADFORD OLD BANK (1884), 12 Q. (deft., in whose employment he then was) "as shall be necessary & requisite for payment to you of the sum of £22 10s., or of any further or other sums in which I may hereafter become indebted to you." In an action by pltf. as assignee to recover two months' salary due from deft. to the assignor, who in turn was alleged to be then indebted to the pltf. in a larger amount:—Held: the assignment, not being of a definite & ascertained amount, was not such an assignment as was contemplated by 1873 Act, s. 25 (6), & pltf. could not maintain the action in his own name.

75. Future rents—Arrears due at death — No specific lien created.]—A. being bound to pay S. a sum of money within a year after his death, gave a note by way of collateral security, that the money should be paid out of such arrears of rent as should be due at his death; the benefit whereof pltf. now prayed by the bill:—Held: this assignment or agreement was utterly void, for it could not create any specific lien, because the thing itself, namely, the arrears, was not then in being, nor was it to take effect till A.'s death, & then it was too late, for the arrears then became part of his assets liable to his debts generally; & this differed from the case of off-reckoning or of pay, due or to become due, etc., because in those cases the thing assigned was certain, & the assignee had a certain interest, but notwithstanding the assignment or agreement, A. had it still in his power to receive all the arrears, & so to defeat his own assignment.—GRAY (LADY) v. HAMILTON (DUCHESS) (1730), 2 Eq. 76. —— Surrender of lease — No rents accruing due.]—Pltfs. sublet a portion of premises, of which they had a lease, to deft. They afterwards assigned their interest in the premises to B., & agreed, in writing with B., that notwithstanding this assignment they should receive the rent due from deft. for the remainder of her lease, & notice of this agreement was given to deft. Deft. afterwards surrendered her lease to B. In an action for rent claimed as accruing after the surrender:—Held: even if there was a valid assignment of a chose in action, still pltfs. could not recover, for the assignment was of rent to become due, whereas no rent had accrued due after the surrender, & deft. could not be prevented by the agreement between pltfs. & B. from surrendering her lease to B.—SOUTHWELL v. SCOTTER (1880), 49 L. P. made a second mtge. of the same property to pltfs., to secure £1,000 & further advances up to £2,500, & assigned to them his right, under the contract in the first mtge., to call for & require payment from defts. of the further advances therein mentioned, & the full benefit of the contract. Pltfs. gave notice of this assignment to defts., but notwithstanding the notice defts. subsequently made a further advance of £500 to P. Pltfs. brought an action to recover from defts. personally the sum of £500 so paid by them to P., or damages for breach of contract:—Held: (1) no money or fund was bound by the contract to make further advances, which created no debt; (2) whether the assignment did or did not fall within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6), pltfs. could not sue for damages in their own right, but only in the right of their assignor P., who, on the facts, had sustained no damage.—WESTERN WAGON & PROPERTY CO. v. WEST, [1892] 1 Ch. 271; 61 L. 80. —— ——.]—(1) Deft. entered into an agreement with a builder under which certain houses were to be erected by the builder at his own expense, & upon completion of which deft. was to grant leases of same to the builder. After the building operations were commenced deft. entered into a verbal agreement with the builder to make advances to him up to £250 to enable the builder to complete the buildings. By a letter addressed to deft. & given to pltfs., the builder authorised & requested deft. to pay to pltfs. £50 "out of the moneys due or to become due," to the builder. Notice in writing of this assignment of £50 was given to deft. by pltfs.:—Held: the agreement by deft. to advance money to the builder did not create any debt or other legal chose in action which could be assigned within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6).

(2) A legal chose in action is something which is not in possession, but which must be sued for in order to recover possession of it. Deft. after the assignment to pltf. refused to perform his contract:—Held: the assignment, was an assignment of a legal chose in action within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6) & pltf. was entitled to sue deft. for damages for the breach of contract.

Subsequently R. assigned the guarantee to the co., & served notice of the assignment upon D. In an action against D. on the guarantee, in which both R. & the co. were joined as pltfs.:—Held: the guarantee was assignable as an ordinary chose in

82. To buy beer from particular brewery—Brewer's lease.]—In 1892, A. executed under seal an agreement to take an hotel as yearly tenant to B. & Co.. & thereby covenanted to purchase all his beer of B. & Co. " & their successors in business." The covenant did not mention " assigns." B. & Co. did not execute the agreement, & there was nothing on the face of it to show that they were brewers. They were, in fact, brewers, & A. occupied the hotel under the agreement as their tenant & purchased beer of them. In 1899, B. & Co. sold & conveyed their brewery, tied houses, including the hotel, & business to C. & Co., who were brewers, & who incorporated B. & Co.'s business with their own. After the sale B. & Co. ceased to carry on business. Notice of the change of ownership was given by C. & Co. to A., & for a time he purchased beer of them. C. & Co. brought an action to restrain A. from committing a breach of the covenant :—Semble : the benefit of the covenant was a chose in action, assignable in equity before 1873 Act, & by s. 25 (6) of that Act, the covenant could, after an absolute assignment thereof in writing & due notice given, be sued upon by the assignee.—MANCHESTER BREWERY Co. v. COOMBS, [1901] 2 Ch. 608; 70 L. 84. —— Against unpaid calls on shares—Whether assignable by married woman.]—Pltf. co. recovered judgment against a married woman in respect of unpaid calls on shares against which deft. had indemnified her. Not having any separate property, she assigned the benefit of her right of indemnity to pltf. co., who, after written notice of the assignment, sued deft. for the full amount of their judgment :—Held : although the married woman had paid nothing, nevertheless she was entitled to have the amount of the calls paid by deft. either to pltfs. or to herself, & this right was capable of assignment, & pltfs. as assignees were entitled to have it enforced by order directing payment to themselves.—BRITISH UNION & NATIONAL INSURANCE Co. v. RAWSON, [1916] 2 Ch. 476; 85 L. 86. —— —— —— Assignable—Right of action connected with enjoyment of property.]—A freehold messuage & tenement were the subject of the following leases : (a) a head lease which expired on Dec. 25, 1917; (b) an underlease which expired on Dec. 18, 1917; (c) a sub-underlease which expired on Dec. 15, 1917. All three leases contained onerous covenants to repair the premises & to keep them & yield them up in good repair. The sub-underlease became vested by assignment in deft. On Dec. 18, 1917, pltf., who had been a tenant to deft. of same premises, & was liable to him under a covenant to repair less onerous than those in the three leases above mentioned, agreed to purchase, & on May 1, 1918, took a conveyance of the fee simple of the premises together with the benefit of the covenants in the head lease. At the expiration of all the leases the premises were out of repair & deft. was threatening pltf. with an action on his covenant. Thereupon pltf. obtained an assignment of the full benefit of the lessee's covenants to repair contained in the sub-underlease, & commenced an action against deft. as assignee of the sub-underlease for breaches of the lessee's covenants therein :—Held : the assignment was free from objection on the ground of maintenance or champerty, the right of action on the covenants being so connected with the enjoyment of property as to be more than a bare right to litigate.—ELLIS v. TORRINGTON, [1920] 1 K. 98. Claim to set aside settlement—For fraud—Not assignable.]—PROSSER v. EDMONDS, No. 56, ante.

99. —— —— ——.]—Under his father's will, G. was tenant for life of certain property, & his son, E., was first tenant in tail. G. had incurred debts at his father's request which he had expected to discharge out of his father's estate, which was, however, all settled. Before E. attained twenty-one years he had agreed that these debts should be provided for on a resettlement of the property. E. was independently advised not to provide for the debts. By a resettlement made in 1902, shortly after E. had attained twenty-one years, the property was settled upon trust to raise £7,000 for G.'s benefit, & then, subject to two annuities of £500 & £200 already charged on the property, was settled upon trust for G. for life, & then as to one third for E. absolutely, & as to the other two thirds for E. for life, with remainder to his children, & in default of children for his sister & her children, with power for E. upon marriage to revoke the trusts as to the two thirds. G. covenanted to pay to E. an annuity of £100 for five years, & afterwards an annuity of £150. The £7,000 was applied in the payment of G.'s debts. In 1906 E. was in financial difficulties, & a receiving order was made against him, & the meeting of creditors was adjourned for fourteen days with a peremptory notice that if money was not then forthcoming to pay the debts in full bkpcy. would ensue. E. had no assets except his interests under the resettlement, which were valued by an actuary at £2,600 if sold to a member of the family, but as of very doubtful value to an outsider. The debts & costs amounted to £1,200. G. was unable to provide the money, but a friend of the family offered to advance sufficient to pay the debts & costs if G. purchased the interest outright. E. was independently advised that he ought not to accept less than £2,000, but agreed to accept G.'s offer to purchase for £1,200. An agreement for purchase by G. at that price was entered into, & the debts & costs were paid. E. went abroad, giving a power of attorney limited to a year. The assignment of the interests was not executed by the attorney until the year had expired. In 1913, E. borrowed £1,000 from B. on the security of his interests under the resettlement without disclosing any of the transactions in 1906. B. did not give notice to the trustees for six months, & was then informed of the purchase. E. never repudiated the purchase, but B. alone brought an action to set aside the resettlement so far as related to the payment of £7,000, on the ground of undue influence: & to set aside the purchase by G. so as to stand only as security for the money paid, on the grounds of inadequate price, that the interests were reversionary, that the agreement to purchase was only executory, & that G. was a trustee purchasing & was dealing with his son. Three actuaries gave evidence that the value of the interests in 1906 did not exceed £1,200:—Held: (1) B. could not sue without joining E. as a co-pltf.; (2) what was assigned by E. was a bare, naked right to possess himself of property by an action in a ct. of equity seeking to set aside the assignment to G., &, in these circumstances, no right of action passed to pltf. by the mtge. under which he claimed.—BRUTY v. EDMUNDSON (1915), 85 L. SECT. 12.—WAGES.

133. General rule — Moneys due under contract of personal service.]—Moneys due under a contract of personal service can be assigned notwithstanding that a contract for personal service is not assignable. The fact that a contract is assigned as a security does not necessarily prevent the assignment from being an absolute assignment.—RUSSELL & Co., LTD. v. AUSTIN FRYERS (1909), 25 T. L. R. 414, D. SECT. 13.—SALARIES, PENSIONS, ALLOWANCES, ETC.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

135. Grounds of non-assignability.] — A canon of W. granted the canonry & the profits, etc., to pltf. to secure a sum of money. So far as it appeared on an interlocutory application, the estates were vested in the corpn., & the canon was entitled to an aliquot share of the profits. There was no cure of souls, & the only duties were residence within the castle, & attendance in the chapel twenty-one days a year:—Held: the security was valid, & a receiver of the profits was appointed.

There are various cases in which public duties are concerned in which it may be against public policy that the income arising for the performance of those duties should be assigned & for this simple reason, because the public is interested, not only in the performance, from time to time, of the duties, but also in a fit state of preparation of the party having to perform them. Such is the reason in the cases of half-pay where there is a sort of retainer, & where the payments which are made to officers, from time to time, are the means by which they, being liable to be called into public service, are enabled to keep themselves in a state of preparation for performing their duties. So also, where a pension or remuneration is given for a purpose which tends less directly to the public benefit (LORD LANGDALE, M.R.).—GRENFELL v. WINDSOR (DEAN & CANONS) (1840), 2 Beav. 544; 48 E. 136. Full pay — Of military officer — Assignment with power to redeem.]—A., major of a fort, borrowed £225 of B. &, for securing to B. an annuity of £30 during A.'s life, assigned over his pay of 8*s.* a day, with a power to redeem. B. showed this assignment to C., the pay-agent, who refused to take notice thereof. Wherefore B. brought his bill against A. & C.:—Held: the pay should be secured to B. but C., as agent, was not bound to take notice but from the time of the filing the bill, because of the inconveniency.—GOMEZ v. GRAHAM (1742), 9 Mod. 137. —— ——.]—Pltf. had bought an annuity from an officer on full pay, secured by bond & judgment, & by an assignment of his pay, with notice to defts., the agents of the regiment, to pay it over to pltf. accordingly. The assignor being abroad on service, pltf. demanded payment of the arrears from defts. They objected till they should hear from the regiment that he had not taken up his pay abroad. Pltf. filed this bill. Defts. proved that by the rules of the army the officers are at liberty to take up their pay from the regimental paymaster abroad, & that the agent is answerable over to him:—Held: the annuity should be discharged by defts. only out of what should remain in their hands after the demands of the paymaster.—SPENCER v. COX & DRUMMOND (1773), 2 Anst. 535, n.; 145 E. 148. What is pension — Not money paid to retired military officer for commutation of pension.] —(1) The money paid to a retired officer of Her Majesty's forces for the commutation of his pension does not retain its character as pension so far as to prevent it from being taken in execution.

(2) An officer in the army who had retired on a pension having become bkpt., an order was made, under Bkpcy. Act, 1883 (c. 52), s. 53, directing the payment of a portion of his pension to the trustee in bkpcy. The bkpcy. having afterwards been annulled, a surplus was left in the hands of the trustee, part of which consisted of money paid under this order :—Held : the money was still pension, & equitable execution of it would not be granted, since, by Army Act, 1881 (c. 58), s. 141, it was not assignable.—CROWE v. PRICE (1889), 22 Q. 149. —— Not moneys paid over by Paymaster-General—Army Act, 1881 (c. 58), s. 141.]—A retired officer of His Majesty's forces kept a separate account at a bank for the sums received by him as pension. On Jan. 1, 1909, there was standing to his credit in this account the sum of £6 13*s.* 8*d.*, being the balance of pension money already received. On the same day the officer sent to the bank a document supplied by the Paymaster-General & signed by the officer, which was on the face of it a receipt for a sum of £17 12*s.* 6*d.* due to the officer as pension. The document had the following note at its foot: "This receipt must be presented for payment by a London banker, but may be negotiated in the country or abroad, & is to be left by the banker at the Paymaster-Generals office one day for examination." Upon the receipt of this document the bank credited the officer with the £17 12*s.* 6*d.* on Jan. 1, but did not collect the sum in question from the Paymaster-General until Jan. 7. On Jan. 1, a garnishee order was served on the bank by a judgment creditor of the officer:—Held: (1) the sum of £6 13*s.* 8*d.*, having been paid over by the Paymaster-General, had lost its character of pension, & was liable to be attached under the garnishee order notwithstanding the provisions of the above sect., which prohibits the voluntary alienation of his pension by a retired officer; (2) the document deposited with the bank was not a negotiable instrument, & the sum of £17 12*s.* 6*d.* had not, on Jan. 1, lost its character of pension so as to become attachable under the garnishee order of that date.—JONES & Co. v. COVENTRY, [1909] 2 K. 151. Government pension to grantee & assigns—Payable by Treasurer of Navy—Out of certain funds.]—A., by marriage settlement, covenanted for payment within four years, to the trustees, of £4,000, the dividends whereof, & of other funds thereby settled, were made payable to himself for life. He afterwards obtained a pension from Govt., by warrant of the Treasury, made payable to him & his assigns by the Treasurer of the Navy out of a certain fund, during the life of the grantee. A. subsequently absconded, being largely indebted to the Crown, & not having paid the £4,000 according to the covenant. Upon his departure, the pension was withdrawn by Order of Council, & the trustees of the settlement stopped payment of the dividends of the other funds to which he was entitled for life under the settlement. A. having granted annuities secured by assignment of his pension & of these dividends, on a bill by the annuitants against the Treasurer of the Navy and the A.-G., for recovery of what was in the hands of the former on account of pension, & against the trustees of the settlement for dividends accrued since A.'s departure:—Held: (1) as to the first, the ct. had no jurisdiction, &, as to the second, the trustees, who had no notice of the assignment, were entitled to retain the dividends in satisfaction of the covenant; the equity of the trustees was to stop the dividends, not only immediately on failure of performance of the covenant, but at any time after, at their discretion; (2) the assignee of a chose in action takes it subject to all the equities to which it was liable in the hands of the original grantee.

Default being made in payment by deft., an application was made by the pltfs. to the Paymaster-General, who refused to make any payment to pltfs. Deft. subsequently became insolvent, & presented his petition to the Insolvent Ct., & the Chief Comr. made an order recommending that £50 a year, part of the pension, should be paid by the Paymaster-General to the official assignee. Pltfs. filed a bill, stating that they had not proved, & did not intend to prove, against the estate of E. for their debt, & praying for an injunction to restrain him from receiving the pension, or the balance thereof after such payment to the official assignee, who was not made a party to the suit:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to an injunction to restrain deft. from receiving the pension, except so much of it as had been recommended by the comr. to be paid to the official assignee.—LLOYD v. EAGLE (1858), 28 L. 173. General rule.]—A. executed a deed, conveying & assigning his property to trustees, for the benefit of creditors. The operative part of the deed was in these words: "All & sundry superiorities, lands & heritages, debts heritable & movable, & whole goods, gear, sums of money, & effects; & in general my whole means & estate, heritable & movable, of whatever nature or denomination or wherever situated, presently belonging to me":—Held: these words did not pass the profits of a public office at that time filled by the grantor.

Semble: the profits of a public office cannot be assigned for the benefit of creditors.—HILL v. PAUL (1841), 8 Cl. & Fin. 295; 8 E. R. 116, H. L.

174. Private secretary to Secretary of State—Office not within Sale of Offices Act, 1551 (c. 16) ss. 2, 3.]—The office of private secretary to a Secretary of State does not fall within the meaning of the above sects., & may be assigned. So an assignment of the profits of all offices which deft. might acquire is legal, as it will be taken to mean of all offices that may be legally assigned.—HARRINGTON v. KLOPROGGE (1785), 2 Chit. 475; 2 Brod. & Bing. 678, n.; 6 Moore, C. 175. Clerk of the Peace.]—An assignment by deed to trustees, of all the income, emoluments & profits, which during the life of the assignor, & his continuing to hold the office of Clerk of the Peace for W. should arise or become due to him as such clerk in respect of his office, after deducting the salary or allowance of his deputy for the time being, upon trust to pay interest, which should become due to A. & B. on certain debts due from the assignor to them, & from time to time to render & pay the surplus & residue of the income, emoluments & profits to the assignor, after satisfying the trusts, is not a good or effectual assignment, nor valid in law, & the trustees are not entitled to receive such income & profits under such assignment.—PALMER v. BATE (1821), 2 Brod. & Bing. 673; 6 Moore, C. P. 28; 129 E. R. 1125.

176. Coroner—Personal covenant to pay percentage of clear profits.]—Deft., being coroner, covenanted with pltf. to pay him a sum of 20 per cent. out of the clear profits of every fee paid to deft. for every inquest which he should hold during nine years, & to make the payment immediately after the receipt of the fee from the county:—Held: the covenant was not illegal.

I do not think that this is a covenant for the sale of an office; it is a mere personal covenant to pay a sum of money measured in a particular manner (LORD CAMPBELL, C.J.).—PUGH v. CARTTAR (1851), 17 L. T. O. S. 107; sub nom. HUGH v. CARTARR, 15 J. P. Jo. 322.

177. Share of partner—Passing to survivor.]—Where joint adventurers enter into a covenant that, on the death of any, his part shall survive to the rest, effect will be given to the covenant, & an assignment of a share, at any rate if not supported by valuable consideration, will be ineffectual upon the death of the assignor.—HAYES v. KINGDOME (1681), 1 Vern. 33; 23 E. 181. Lien on title deeds deposited—As security for debt.]—Where a debtor deposits a title deed with his creditor, as security for a debt, the interest which the creditor thereby acquires in the deed may be assigned by him to a third person.—HOBSON v. MELLOND (1841), 2 Mood. & R. 342, N. P.

182. Ticket in Derby lottery.]—A ticket in a Derby lottery, by the rules of which the holder of the winning horse is to receive a certain amount, is not transferable so as to give any party a right to sue the stakeholder for money had & received.—JONES v. CARTER (1845), 8 Q. 183. Contract in bill of lading.]—By the law of England, a chose in action is not transferable; by the custom of merchants it is transferable in one instance, that of a bill of exchange; but there is no authority to show that a bill of lading is transferable under such a custom, so as to enable a party to bring an action upon it (PARKE, B.).—THOMPSON v. DOMINY (1845), 14 M. & W. 403; 14 L. 185. Profits of college fellowship.]—An assignment by a fellow of the profits of his fellowship, by way of mtge., for securing the repayment of a sum of money advanced to him, & interest thereon, is not contrary to public policy, in respect of the duties incident to the situation or office; neither is there anything in the nature of the income of the fellowship from which it can be inferred that the emoluments are not assignable in equity.—FEISTEL v. KING'S COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE (1847), 10 Beav. 491; 16 L. 186. Calls on shares not yet payable—Railway company not expressly prohibited by special Act.]—Defts. signed judgment against a railway co. on Feb. 9, 1866, & on July 31 obtained a garnishee order nisi under C. L. P. Act, 1854 (c. 125), whereby it was ordered that all debts due & owing or accruing due from Lord P., a shareholder in the co., should be attached to answer the judgment. On May 12, pltfs., the contractors for the line, received from the co.'s engineer a certificate in the form agreed on by the co., that £96,200 was due to them for work done & materials supplied under the articles of agreement, one of the clauses of which authorised the engineer from time to time to "ascertain the extent & value of the works then executed & the materials then provided for the works by the contractors." Of this a sum of £11,000 represented materials provided for, but not actually affixed to, the line. On June 4, 1866, the co. issued to pltfs. paid-up shares to the amount of £56,200 in part satisfaction of the sum so certified to be due. On June 11 they made a call for £5 per share, payable on July 14, & on July 13 they, by a deed reciting that they were indebted to pltfs. in £40,000, assigned the call to them by way of security, with a power of sale at any time after Oct. 13. Before the garnishee order was made absolute, pltfs. claimed from Lord P. £1,000, being the amount of the call due upon 200 shares held by him; & the judge directed an issue, to try the validity of the assignment. Lord P. had no actual notice of the assignment, but he was present as a director at the board meetings at which it was resolved that the assignment should be made:—Held: (1) it was not illegal for a railway co., unless expressly prohibited from doing so by its special Act, to assign, by way of mtge., as security for a debt owing by the co., a call which though made had not become payable, & such assignment was not void by reason of the deed containing a power of sale by the mtgee., since such power might be separated from the rest of the deed; (2) if notice were necessary in such a case, which the ct. inclined to think it was a. Option to purchase given to beneficiary under will.]—A testator directed his trustees on the death of his wife to "offer to sell & convey to his sons P. M. & J., or such of them as might be then living, as tenants in common," for £1,000, B. property. The testator died in 1878 & P. in 1881. J. in 1889 assigned his interest under the will to pltfs. The testator's widow died in 1891 & the trustees refused to recognise pltfs. in the matter:—Held: J.'s interest was assignable.—JACOBS v. LARKIN (1892), 13 N. S. W. Eq. 62.—AUS.

187. Right to sum charged on real estate—Not yet due.]—Trustees of a term in land held the term on trust by sale, demise or mtge. to raise £2,000. H., who was entitled to a part of the £2,000, created an incumbrance on his share. The incumbrancer gave no notice to the trustees of the term. H. afterwards became bkpt.:—Held: the assignees in bkpcy. were entitled to the share of H., in priority to the incumbrancer, because the interest of H. was not an interest in the land itself, but in the nature of a chose in action, & notice to the trustees was necessary to complete the incumbrancer's title.—Re HUGHES' TRUSTS (1864), 2 Hem. & M. 89; 4 New Rep. 455; 33 L. 188. Allowance to committee for lunatic—No obligation to account.]—An order was made that the brother of a lunatic, who was committee of his estate, should be allowed to retain the family mansion & grounds & the heirlooms therein for his own occupation & use, & that of his unmarried sisters, & that £4,000 a year should be allowed him for his expenses in reference thereto. The committee with his sisters occupied the mansion accordingly, & incurred heavy &, as it was alleged, unreasonable expenses about the establishment. The income being insufficient to pay the allowance, it fell into arrear, & the committee mortgaged the arrears. He subsequently was removed from being committee & became bkpt., & a large amount of bills incurred in keeping up the establishment remained unpaid. A surplus having arisen applicable to payment of the arrears, the new committee presented a petition for direction as to its application:—Held: although the allowance was made to the former committee without any obligation to account, & with an intention indirectly to confer a benefit on him & his sisters, still it was an allowance made to a person in a fiduciary position for a particular purpose, & which he had no right to mortgage, & the mtgee. could stand in no better position than the committee himself.—Re WELD (1882), 20 Ch. SUB-SECT. 1.—ORDERS TO PAY.

189. Cheque—Mere order to pay.]—A cheque is a mere order to pay & is not an assignment of anything. 190. Direction to tenant to pay rent to third party—Until order countermanded.]—A landlord borrowed money of pltf., & gave him a letter addressed to his tenant, of which the tenant had notice, directing him to pay to pltf. the rent until the order should be countermanded by pltf.:—Held: this was an absolute assignment under 1873 Act, s. 25 (6) & pltf. could sue the tenant for the rent.—KNILL v. PROWSE (1884), 33 W. R. 163, D. C.

191. Written instructions to trustees by beneficiary—To pay balance due to third party.]—Defts., who were exors. & trustees under a will, sent to G., one of the residuary legatees, a statement of account showing a balance to be due to him on account of his share of the residuary estate. G., who lived in Australia, sent this account to pltf., his daughter, with the following direction on it in his handwriting: "I hereby instruct the trustees in power to pay to my daughter, L., the balance shown in the above statement. . . ." Notice in writing of this document was given by pltf. to defts., who agreed to act upon it provided they were satisfied pltf. could give a proper receipt for the money, but they subsequently refused to be bound by it:—Held: whether this transaction was to be regarded as an equitable or legal assignment, as the assignor had done all in his power to complete it, & the trustees had accepted the obligation, the assignment was effectual.—HARDING v. HARDING (1886), 17 Q. c. How "absolute" character decided.]—The question whether an order to pay is an "absolute" assignment or not so as to fall under Judicature Ordinance, s. 10, sub-s. 14, must be decided by reference to its form & not to the particular fact which gave rise to the assignment or the consideration upon which it is founded.—WILTON v. ROCHESTER GERMAN UNDERWRITERS AGENCY CO., [1917] 2 W. W. R. 732; 35 D. L. R. 262.—CAN.

192. Indorsement of insurance policy—Gift incomplete.]—The owner of a life policy gave it to his housekeeper with the following signed indorsement: "I authorise [naming her] my housekeeper & no other person to draw this insurance in the event of my predeceasing her this being my sole desire & intention at time of taking this policy out & this is my signature." The assignor paid the premiums until his death:—Held: the assignment was inoperative on the ground that the assignment was an incomplete gift, being either (1) a revocable mandate or authority which was revoked by the death of the assignor, or (2) if taking effect on the death, a testamentary document not duly executed.—Re WILLIAMS, WILLIAMS v. BALL, [1917] 1 Ch. 1; 86 L. 193. Order to bank to pay assignee sum on deposit—Accompanied by unindorsed deposit receipt—Letter to assignee—No notice to bank till after death of assignor.]—(1) About a year before his death, which happened in 1917, testator handed to his landlady, Mrs. G., an envelope addressed to her describing it as a present to her. She was about to open it, when he took it from her hand & said he would keep it for her & locked it up in his despatch box. After testator's death there was found in his despatch box an envelope containing a deposit receipt for £500 deposited with his bank in 1914, an order in writing signed by testator directing the bank to pay to Mrs. G. the sum of £500 then on deposit, & a letter addressed to Mrs. G.: "You have been very kind to me & I desire to make some return by giving you the amount of £500 now on deposit at the . . . bank as per receipt enclosed." The deposit receipt was not indorsed by testator & no notice was given to the bank of any assignment till after his death, the interest on the sum on deposit having been carried by the bank to his current account:—Held: there was a valid & complete gift to Mrs. G. of the sum on deposit by way of assignment under 1873 Act, s. 25 (6).

(2) Although before 1873 Act, the rule was that equity would only grant its aid to compel an assignor to allow the assignee to sue at law in his name when valuable consideration had been given for the assignment, s. 25 (6) of that Act has not only improved the position of the assignee as regards procedure by enabling him to sue in his own name, but has also enabled him so to sue in regard to a debt which has been assigned voluntarily.—Re WESTERTON, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. GRAY, [1919] 2 Ch. 104; 88 L. 194. Mortgage of debts—Proviso for redemption & reconveyance.]—By a mtge. deed in 1877 premises were assigned to secure payment of £1,380 due from the mtgor. to the mtgee. with interest, & the mtgor. covenanted to pay debt & interest six months thence. The mtgee. in 1878 deposited the deed with his bankers as security for the balance of his banking account, & by deed in 1879 assigned & transferred to them the sum of £1,380 due on the mtge. deed, & all interest thenceforth to become due, & all securities for principal & interest & all benefit & advantage thereof, & all his right, title, interest, & property, therein to secure repayment to the bankers of £939 then due to them on his banking account, & any further sum not exceeding £1,200 which might thereafter become due to them from him, with a proviso for reconveyance of the premises if the assignor should on a day named pay them back the £939 & any further sum not exceeding £1,200 which might be due with interest. The bank having given notice in writing of this assignment to the mtgor. sued him for £984 then due on the assignor's banking account:—Held: the assignment to the bank by the deed of 1879 was not an "absolute assignment (not purporting to be by way of charge only)" within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6), & the action could not be maintained.—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK v. HARLE (1881), 6 Q. Pltfs. gave notice to R. & brought this action against him to recover the amount:—Held: the document was not "an absolute assignment (not purporting to be by way of charge only)" within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6), & pltfs. could not recover in the action.

200. —— Whole right & interest in moneys payable under building contract.]—A contractor for certain building works executed an instrument in writing, by which, in consideration of bankers continuing a banking account with him, & by way of continuing security to them for all moneys due or to become due to them from him on the said account, he assigned to them all moneys due, or to become due, to him from the building owners under the building contract, & he thereby empowered them on his behalf, & in his name, to settle & adjust all accounts in connection with the works, to give effectual receipts for the moneys thereby assigned, which should discharge the person paying the same from being concerned to see to the application thereof, & also, if necessary, to sue for, or take such other steps as they might think necessary for enforcing payment of the moneys thereby assigned, & he further thereby undertook at their request & his own cost to do & execute all such further acts, deeds, & things as they might reasonably require for giving full effect to the security thereby created. Notice in writing of this assignment was given to the building owners:—Held: the above-mentioned instrument having the effect of passing the whole right & interest of the assignor in the moneys payable under the building contract to the assignees by way of security, it was an absolute assignment (not purporting to be by way of charge only) within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6).—HUGHES v. PUMP HOUSE HOTEL CO., [1902] 2 K. SUB-SECT. 1.—EXPRESSION OF INTENTION.

A. In General.

205. Form immaterial—Where intention to transfer debt to third person clear.]—Pltfs., who were as bankers financing a firm, which imported india-rubber, had accepted bills drawn by the sellers abroad for the price of india-rubber bought by the firm, & afterwards resold by them to defts. When the india-rubber was delivered to defts., the firm sent to pltfs. a document consisting of two parts, which were detachable from one another, & were in substance as follows. The first part was a letter signed by the firm, & addressed to defts., requesting them to sign & forward to pltfs. the attached letter, which formed the other part of the document. That letter was addressed to pltfs., & stated that the undersigned begged to confirm that they would remit the price of the india-rubber due from them to the firm direct to pltfs. for account of the firm. Pltfs. forwarded the document to the works belonging to defts., where the letter attached was signed by defts.' manager, who returned it to pltfs. The manager had no authority from defts. to sign such a document. He omitted to advise defts. of the fact that he had signed the letter, & they consequently paid the price of the india-rubber to the firm, who afterwards became bkpt. In an action brought by pltfs. against defts. for the price of the india-rubber :—Held : (1) there was evidence of an equitable assignment of the debt to pltfs. with notice to defts., & pltf. could recover the debt from defts.

(2) To constitute a good equitable assignment of a debt all that is necessary is that debtor should be given to understand that the debt has been made over by the creditor to some third person, & if debtor disregards such notice he does so at his peril.

An equitable assignment does not always take the form of an assignment. It may be addressed to debtor. It may be couched in the language of command. It may be a courteous request. It may assume the form of mere permission. The language is immaterial if the meaning is plain. All that is necessary is that debtor should be given to understand that the debt has been made over by the creditor to some third person. If debtor ignores such a notice, he does so at his peril. If the assignment be for valuable consideration & communicated to the third person, it cannot be revoked by the creditor or safely disregarded by debtor (LORD MACNAGHTEN).

(3) [1873 Act] does not forbid or destroy equitable assignments or impair their efficacy in the slightest degree. Where the rules of equity & the rules of the common law conflict, the rules of equity are to prevail. Before the statute there was a conflict as regards assignments of debts & other choses in action. At law it was considered necessary that debtor should enter into some engagement with the assignee. That was never the rule in equity (LORD MACNAGHTEN).—BRANDT'S (WILLIAM) SONS & CO. v. DUNLOP RUBBER CO., [1905] A. C. 454 ; 74 L. J. K. B. 898 ; 93 L. T. 495 ; 21 T. L. R. 710 ; 11 Com. Cas. 1, H. 228. Authorising debtor to pay specified sum to assignee—Out of amount due—Acceptance of authority by debtor.]—Messrs. K. were indebted in the sum of £100 to pltfs., who declined to allow time for payment unless they received further security. Deft. was indebted to Messrs. K. in respect of work done by them for him. In consequence of negotiations between Messrs. K. & pltfs., K. on July 31, 1879, brought to deft. a document signed by Messrs. K., & authorising him to pay to pltfs. the sum of £100., to be deducted from the money due from deft. to Messrs. K. Deft. wrote on the document, "I accept this authority," & on the following day Messrs. K. handed it to pltfs. On Aug. 2, deft. received a notice from Messrs. K. to the effect that pltfs. having taken bills in satisfaction of the debt, they cancelled the authority given by them to deft. Messrs. K. subsequently failed, & deft. who had no previous communication with pltfs., received from them a notice that they held the document in question, & requested payment of the amount. Deft. refused to pay, &, in an action for the amount, judgment was entered for pltfs.:—Held: (1) the document of July 31 was in itself a sufficient equitable assignment of the debt due from deft., but (2) an account should be taken by an official referee, who should report to the ct. as to what was, in fact, due from deft. to Messrs. K., at that date.—GREENWAY v. ATKINSON (1881), 29 W. R. 560, C. A.

B. consigned a cargo to defts., & sent to them the bill of lading in a letter, saying: "The present serves to cover bill of lading for, &c., shipped per C., against which we have valued on you at six months in favour of F., for £1,200 which please kindly protect." On the same day B. sent to F. the bill of exchange which was drawn on deft. to the order of F., & concluded "place the same with or without advice to account consignment per C." After the bill of lading arrived F. presented the bill, but defts. refused to accept it. Shortly afterwards B. stopped payment, & afterwards the cargo arrived :—Held : it was effectually appropriated to meet the bill & F. had a lien upon it in priority to the claim of defts. for the balance due to them on their general account as consignees.—FRITH v. FORBES (1862), 4 De G. Letter of credit — Conditional on receipt of certificate.]—A letter from a banker stating that a special credit for a specified amount has been opened in favour of a particular person, does not constitute an equitable assignment of, or impress a trust upon funds in the banker's hands to that amount.

Resp. entered into a contract in E. with the F. Govt. for the supply of a large number of cartridges, to be paid for through the ambassador upon the production of certificates of approval from the agents of the govt. The contract specified the times & quantities of each delivery, & time was to be of the essence of the contract. Applts., bankers in E., who had in their hands funds belonging to the F. 246. —— Mere request to pay insufficient.]—A trader wrote to resp., one of his debtors, asking him to pay a sum of money to a third party, & saying simply, "& debit our account." There was no evidence as to the state of accounts between the trader & resp., although resp. admitted he was indebted to the trader. A second letter was written by the trader to resp. asking him to pay another sum of money to the same third party "out of the balance of our account with you." Both the letters were written before the act of bkpcy. on which the receiving order was made, & when resp. had no notice of any available act of bkpcy.:—Held: (1) the first letter was not a good equitable assignment, as it was a mere request to pay, &, there being no evidence of the state of accounts, there was no subject-matter to be assigned; (2) the second letter was a good equitable assignment, as it did specify such a fund.—Re GUNSBOURG, Ex p. TRUSTEE (1919), 88 L. 251. Directions to consignee to sell & pay proceeds to assignee—No notice to assignee—Mandate revocable at pleasure of consignor.]—H. of Madras made a consignment of pearls to B., with directions to sell & pay the proceeds to P., to whom H. was at the time indebted, on account. B. acknowledged the receipt of the consignment, & undertook to perform the directions, but no notice was given by either party to P. H. subsequently wrote to B., requesting the pearls to be sent to America, & there disposed of, & afterwards, being insolvent, made an assignment of all his effects in trust for the benefit of his creditors :—Held : the directions accompanying the consignment did not constitute an appropriation, but amounted to no more than a mere mandate, revocable at the pleasure of the consignor, which was actually revoked by the subsequent disposition of the property.—SCOTT v. PORCHER (1817), 3 Mer. 652 ; 36 E. H. & J. were in the habit of consigning goods to defts., to be sent abroad to their foreign houses for sale, & the proceeds were remitted to defts. on account of H. & J. H. & J. being indebted to R., wrote to defts. as follows : "We now authorise you to pay to R., having revoked the former order in their favour, after you have paid yourselves the balance we owe you from the net proceeds of our shipments to your foreign establishments to the present date, one half of the remainder of the proceeds of said shipments, provided same shall not exceed the sum of £3,000." Defts. thereupon wrote to R., stating they would pay the money accordingly on receiving their guarantee, which R. thereupon gave. Before the proceeds were received by defts., H. & J. became bkpts., & their assignees gave defts. notice not to pay anything on account of bkpts. :—Held : on the goods being afterwards received & sold by defts., the proceeds were not recoverable by the assignees, as the letter of H. & J. contained a specific appropriation or an equitable assignment to R., which was not revocable by bkpts. or their assignees.—HUTCHINSON v. HEYWORTH (1838), 9 Ad. & El. 375 ; 1 Per. & Dav. 266 ; 1 Will. 255. Letter authorising agents to hold proceeds at disposal of assignee—Conditional agreement by agents—Notice to assignee.]—A mercantile firm at C., by a letter dated Jan. 16, 1841, directed their L. correspondents to hold a sum of money payable on Nov. 19 following out of remittances & consignments on the general account at the disposal of a creditor of the C. firm in P. The C. firm at the same time acquainted the creditor of the directions which they had given. The L. firm informed the creditor that they had received & registered the order, & after stating that they were in advance for the C. firm, & declining to accept bills for any part of the amount, said, that if remittances should come forward to enable them to meet the wishes of the C. firm, they would lose no time in advising the creditor. The L. firm also, in acknowledging to the C. firm the receipt of the order, said that the state of the accounts did not then warrant them in meeting the requisition, but they would meet it, if in a position to do so, before Nov. :—Held : the correspondence raised no case of equitable assignment.—MALCOLM v. SCOTT (1850), 3 Mac. & G. 29 ; 20 L. 256. Directions to agent to sell & pay moiety of proceeds to assignee—Authority revoked after assent of agent.]—M. & Co. & B. entered into an agreement to purchase gold-dust on a joint speculation, the purchases of each to be disposed of in a certain manner, & that M. & Co. should give to B. half the profits of that which they purchased, & that B. should give to M. & Co. half the profits of that which he purchased. In pursuance of this agreement M. & Co. purchased 728 oz. of gold-dust, & B. purchased 365 oz. A second agreement was come to that the gold-dust so purchased should be consigned to pltf. invoiced as property in which M. & Co. & B. were jointly interested, with direction to sell it, & to divide the net proceeds between M. & Co. & B. Pltf. received the 728 oz. consigned by M. & Co. with a direction from them to sell them, & to give a moiety of the proceeds to B. B. consigned the 365 oz. of gold-dust to pltf. for sale, & this parcel was sold by him, & a moiety of the proceeds of such sale was paid over to M. & Co. B. having neglected to give pltf. authority to credit M. & Co. with a moiety of the proceeds of the sale of the 365 oz. which he had consigned to pltf. on Feb. 4, 1852, one of the partners of M. & Co. wrote to pltf. as follows : "I have no doubt that B. has written that half the profits of the 365 oz. of gold-dust shipped to you is to go to M. & Co. in the same way as half of the profits of the 728 oz. is to go to his credit. If, however, he should not . . . have done so, you will not pass the half profits of the 728 oz. to his credit." M. & Co. became bkpt. & pltf. refused to give B. half the profits of the sale of the 728 oz. received from M. & Co. but credited the latter with the whole profits from such sale, claiming that the letter of Feb. 4 was a revocation of the authority previously given by M. & Co. to pltf. as to the disposal of the proceeds of the 728 oz. In an action for money lent, etc. :—Held : that which passed between M. & Co. & pltf. amounted to an equitable assignment of such moiety to B.—ELKIN v. BAKER (1862), 11 C. B. N. S. 526 ; 31 L. J. Before either of the letters arrived in England the firm in South America became bkpt. & the syndic in the bkpcy. telegraphed instructions to defts. which amounted to a revocation of the directions given in the letter of the consignors as to the disposal of the proceeds of the sale of the cargo :—Held : upon the posting of the letters in South America there was a binding equitable assignment of the balance of the proceeds to pltf. which remained unaffected by the supervening bkpcy. of the consignors.—ALEXANDER v. STEINHARDT, WALKER & Co., [1903] 2 K. 269. —— To hold debt due from third party at disposal of creditor—No notice to third party.]—A limited co. being indebted to H. on an acceptance, wrote to H. a letter in Jan. 1885, in the following terms:—"We hold at your disposal the sum of £425 due from C. for goods delivered by us to them up to Dec. 31, 1884, until the balance of our acceptance for £660 has been paid." No notice was given by H. to C. until Nov. 5, 1885, which was after a petition for winding up the co. had been presented:—Held: the letter was an immediate equitable assignment to H. of all the debt due from C. to the amount of £425, & was complete, as between the assignor & the assignees without any notice to C.—GORRINGE v. IRWELL INDIA RUBBER & GUTTA PERCHA WORKS (1886), 34 Ch. 270. —— Debtor promising to pay half of commission received—Mere personal contract to pay.]—T. an undischarged bkpt., who had, prior to his bkpcy. been a wine merchant, while not a professional public-house broker, had since his bkpcy. habitually endeavoured to earn money by introducing buyers to vendors of public-houses, introduced to R. a purchaser for R.'s public-house, & on Apr. 20, 1897, obtained a judgment against R. for £258 commission. On May 6, 1897, the trustee in bkpcy. gave notice to T. & R. claiming the money for the estate, & on May 7, obtained a stop-order. The trustee was subsequently informed of two claims by C. & V. against this fund. C.'s claim was based on a letter by T. promising C. one half the commission earned by T. on the sale by T. of public-houses introduced by C. to T. V.'s claim arose out of a written assignment by T. of his claim against R. executed two days prior to the trial of T.'s action against R. Neither C. nor V. had given notice of assignment to R., but R. in the course of the action became informed of C.'s claim:—Held: C.'s claim was not a charge or assignment on the particular fund, but a mere personal contract to pay money in certain events. —MERCER v. VANS COLINA (1897), [1900] 1 Q. 273. —— For payment of commission, etc., from salary.]—An artist who had obtained employment with M. through pltfs.' agency, gave pltfs. a letter in the following terms:—"In consideration of your having procured for me an engagement (which I agree to accept through you) with M. . . . I hereby agree to pay you or your assigns 10 per cent. commission on [my] salary & on all moneys which should accrue under the said engagement or a prolongation of the same . . . and hereby authorise M. to deduct & pay the commission from my salary in any manner you may deem expedient. . . ." Notice of this letter was given to M.:—Held: the letter constituted a valid equitable assignment.—SHAW & CO. v. MOSS EMPIRES, LTD. & BASTOW (1908), 25 T. L. R. 190.

274. Promise to pay—When debtor receives debt due from third person.]—A promise to pay money when the debtor receives a debt due to him from a third person, does not constitute an equitable assignment, so as to charge the debt in the hands of such third person.

A. having a cargo of wheat brought by the M. in the hands of a factor for sale, obtained from B. a loan of £500, for which he gave B. his acceptance at two months, describing the consideration to be "value received in wheat ex M.," & they verbally agreed that the bill was to be renewed from time to time until A. should receive from the factor the proceeds of the wheat:—Held: this did not charge the fund in the hands of the factor, so as to amount to an equitable assignment of, or an equitable charge upon, the fund.—FIELD v. MEGAW (1869), L. Having made a will in 1880, by which he gave the income of his property to his wife B., he fell ill in 1887, &, while in anticipation of death, signed the following document: "Mar. 1887, I give all my insurance money that is coming to me to my wife B., for her own use as well as £200 in the bank. This is my wish. Witness, C." This document was placed at A.'s request with his will, & remained there until his death in Apr. 1887: —Held: effect could not be given to the document as an immediate assignment by A. to B. of the property therein mentioned.—Re HUGHES (1888), 59 L. 277. Garnishee orders—Not operative as assignments—As between garnishor & garnishee.]—A garnishee order does not create, as between the garnishor & garnishee, any debt either at law or in equity.

A person who has obtained a garnishee order absolute, directing a co. to pay to him a debt due by them to a creditor of his against whom he had recovered judgment, does not thereby himself become a creditor of the co.—Re COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTISING MACHINE CO. p. Order charging interest in administration suit.]—A. instituted proceedings against B. & her first husband, B. took out administration to her late husband. A. obtained judgment against B. & her second husband, & an order was made in that action charging B.'s interest in the administration suit with the amount of A.'s judgment debt:—Held: this order amounted to an equitable assignment of B.'s interest in the estate of her late husband.—M'EVOY (DECEASED). ELLIOTT v. M'EVOY (1900), 34 I. L. T. 154.—IR.

278. —— —— ——.]—A garnishee order does not amount to an assignment, either absolute or by way of security, of the garnished debt. Its effect is to direct the garnishee to pay, not the debt itself, but a sum equivalent to it, to the garnishor. But the debt remains the property of the judgment debtor, & the right of the garnishor is subject to the rights & equities existing over it when the garnishee order is obtained.

A co. had issued debentures giving a floating security over all its property, & a receiver was appointed in a debenture-holders' action two days after a judgment creditor of the co. had served a garnishee order nisi attaching a debt due to the co. Held: the receiver was entitled, as against the garnishor, to payment of moneys which had been paid into ct. by the garnishee, under an order, to abide further order.—NORTON v. YATES, [1906] 1 K. Communication to debtor or fundholder.]—See Part V., post.

280. Necessity for communication to & assent by assignee—To make assignment between assignor & assignee.]—(1) Where A., having money in the hands of B., directs a payment generally to C., & B. consents, C. may enforce payment against B., but it is necessary that A.'s order should be communicated to C.

(2) Where A., having money in the hands of B., directs him to pay a sum out of that particular fund to C., this amounts to an equitable assignment, & the assent of B. is unnecessary to give it validity.

(3) By an order in a suit, A. was ordered to pay a sum to B. After A. had appealed, B.'s bankers induced B. to enforce the order & pay the amount to his account, the bankers undertaking to repay it if, on the appeal, B. should be ordered to repay it. The order was reversed, & B. directed his bankers to pay the amount to A., but the direction was not communicated to A. The bankers had also said they were quite ready to pay the money to A., & B. had said, "There it is for you," viz., at the bankers. B. became bkpt.:—Held: neither the agreement, nor the order, nor the statements so made, gave to A. any claim upon the fund in the hands of the bankers.—MORRELL v. WOOTTEN (1852), 16 Beav. 197; 31 E. 281. —— To make assignment valid in garnishee proceedings—Against judgment creditor—Relation back.]—An assignment by a judgment debtor may be valid in garnishee proceedings against the claim of the judgment creditor, although at the date of the garnishee proceedings the assignment has not yet been executed by the assignee, provided that he afterwards assents to & executes it, when its validity relates back to the date of its execution by the assignor.—EDMUNDS v. EDMUNDS, [1904] P. 362; 73 L. 282. Effect of communication acted on by debtor —Creates trust in favour of assignee.]—Where a consignee undertakes with his consignor to make certain payments mentioned, to creditors of the consignor out of the produce of property consigned to him from abroad, & in pursuance pays an annuity to one of the creditors named, a trust is created by such payment in favour of the annuitant, & the consignee cannot afterwards discontinue such payment, so long as he has any proceeds of consignments in his hands.

An annuity, though from its nature payable by instalments is, nevertheless, an entire sum; & a payment of one instalment in the above circumstances creates a trust which a court of equity will enforce in favour of a stranger.—KIRWAN v. DANIEL (1847), 5 Hare, 493; 16 L. M., owing £404 to T., became bkpt. Deft. advanced £105 to T., who was then solvent, on a bonâ fide verbal agreement that he should be repaid out of the debt from M. to T., & the dividends thereon; & A., the solr. to M.'s commission, was privy to the bargain; but it did not appear that A. acted for M.'s assignees in the transaction, or communicated it to them, or that they knew of it, till after T. was taken in execution on a judgment recovered against her in an action commenced more than three months after the time of the agreement. Within three months before the arrest, & before the verdict in the action but after its commencement, T. gave deft. a written order on M.'s assignees to pay the £105 to deft. After the verdict, but before the arrest T. assigned in writing to deft. the debt due to her from M., & the dividends; &, on the same day, T., for the first time, proved her debt against M.'s estate. The dividends amounted to £80, which deft. received from M.'s assignees. Pltf.'s wife then died, & pltf., as the administrator of her estate, brought an action against S. & M. to recover the amount:—Held: (1) there was a good equitable assignment of the £100 as there was sufficient consideration to support it, & the action failed.

295. Sufficiency of — Forbearance to sue assignor.]—A. was indebted to B. in £20 & C. was indebted to A. in £30. A., in satisfaction of the debt, which he owed to B., assigned the debt of £30, which C. owed to him, & made a letter of attorney to sue in his name. A. & B. acquainted C. with the agreement, & C. promised to B. in consideration that he would forbear till such a day that he would pay him the money. Upon that promise B. brought an action against C., who pleaded non assumpsit, & judgment was given for pltf. — Held: the consideration was not sufficient, for B. had only an authority to sue, which was at all times countermandable by A., & judgment should be entered for deft.—POTTER v. TURNER (1621), Win. 8; Palm. 185; 124 E. 297. —— Payment of debts of & annuity to assignor.] — One of the presumptive next of kin assigned the share to which he might become entitled in the personal estate of a lunatic who was then living, on trust to pay the costs, & any sums which might be advanced for the purposes of the trust, then to pay an annuity to the assignor, & afterwards to pay his debts. No creditor was party to the deed. The trustees made some payments in advance. On the death of the lunatic, the trustees of the deed filed a bill against the administrator & the assignor for payment of the assignor's share:—Semble: there was a sufficient consideration for the deed.—HINDE v. BLAKE (1840), 3 Beav. 234; 9 L. 300. —— Of interest in sum invested in consols —Increase in value.]—Testator directed his exors. to invest £20,000, & pay the interest to his wife for life, & after her death to pay £2,000 part thereof amongst the children of J. living at the death of the widow. Pltf. being one of the two children of J. put up for sale by public auction what he described to be £1,000 principal money, part of £20,000 principal money invested in consols. Deft. became the purchaser, & pltf., by an indenture, which recited the will, investment, & purchase, assigned £1,000 sterling part of the legacy of £20,000. At the death of the tenant for life, the £1,000 in consols were worth £1,420:—Held: deft. was entitled to the whole £1,420.—LUCAS v. BOND (1837), 2 Keen, 136; 6. L. J. Ch. 259; 48 E. 301. —— Of moiety of annuity—Not books & papers lodged with solicitor to sue for annuity.]—A solr. being employed to prosecute a suit for the recovery of an annuity, afterwards took an assignment of a moiety thereof. Pltf. in the cause employed another solr., & gave notice to the former solr. to deliver the bill to be taxed, & obtained an order upon payment to deliver up books & papers. It was objected that the books & papers belonged to the solr., the assignee of the moiety of the annuity, as much as to pltf., that he could employ & hand them over to another solr. to prosecute the suit for his interest, & that they could not be given up without his consent:—Held: the assignment of the moiety did not assign books & papers.—FRASER v. PIPPARD, FRASER v. RUDD (1839), 3 Jur. 815, L. 303. —— Of all assignor's interest under will—All money or property paid or appropriated by trustees to assignor.]—Testator directed his trustees, after the death of his wife, to apply the income of his estate "in & towards the maintenance, education, & advancement of my children in such manner as they shall deem most expedient until the youngest of my children attains the age of twenty-one years," & on the happening of that event he directed them to divide his estate equally among all his children then living. Testator left four children, two of whom at the death of the widow in 1884 were of age, & the youngest was in his seventh year. After the decease of the widow the trustees paid each of the adult children one-fourth of the income, & applied the other two-fourths for the benefit of the minors equally till 1886, when J., the eldest son, made an absolute assignment for value of all his interest under testator's will to H. The trustees declining to pay one-fourth of the income to H., he took out a summons to have the construction of the will determined:—Held: (1) no child of testator was entitled, prior to the attainment of twenty-one by the youngest of testator's children, to the payment

On Jan. 1, 1888, H. held bills & cheques which had been given to him by debtors to the business before that date. H. subsequently received the proceeds of the bills & cheques:—Held: (1) debts which had been paid conditionally or unconditionally at the date of the taking over of the business by the co. did not pass to the co. under the terms of the agreement; (2) the debts in respect of which the bills & cheques had been given were conditionally paid at the date of the taking over of the business, & the conditions having been fulfilled by the bills being honoured & the cheques met, the debts must be taken to have been paid as from the date the bills & cheques were given; (3) the bills & cheques were not "securities" for debts in the sense in which the word was used in the agreement, in which the term "securities" meant those held for debts which had not been paid either conditionally or unconditionally at the date of the taking over of the business.—HADLEY (FELIX) & CO. v. HADLEY, [1898] 2 Ch. 680; 67 L. 315. To defeat title of trustee in bankruptcy—Assignment of reversionary interest in trust fund—Indian Insolvency Act, 1847 (c. 21).]—By deed poll, dated in Nov. 1847, A., for valuable consideration, assigned a reversionary interest, contingent upon his surviving a tenant for life in a trust fund, to which he was entitled under testator's will, to B., & in Apr. 1849, while resident at Bombay, A. became insolvent there. He thereupon petitioned the Insolvent Ct. at Bombay for his discharge from prison, & by an order of the ct. made on Apr. 16, upon that petition, all his estate & effects became, under the above Act, s. 7, vested in the official assignee of the ct. In 1850 the tenant for life of the fund died, & then B., for the first time, gave notice of the deed of assignment of Nov. 1847, to the surviving trustee of the fund:—Held: as against the official assignee, B. was entitled to the fund comprised in her security.—Re POLE'S TRUST, Ex p. HULME (1856), 3 Sm. & G. 325; 25 L. 324. —— Sole executor afterwards renouncing.]—In 1897 D. charged his expectant interest in a legacy bequeathed to him by the will of his father, who was then living, in favour of S., & in 1898 he charged it in favour of B. The father died in 1902, D. being named his sole exor. In Jan. 1903, D., who had never acted as exor., renounced probate, & on Mar. 4 administration, with the will annexed, was granted to his sister. On the following day B. gave notice to the administratrix of his charge. On Mar. 12 S., who then became aware for the first time of the grant of administration, gave the administratrix notice of his charge. Subsequently the legacy, which had been in ct., was paid out to the administratrix:—Held: (1) although S.'s delay in giving notice to the administratrix was not due to any negligence on his part, yet, applying the rule in Dearle v. Hall, No. 393, post, B. was entitled to priority through his having been the first to give notice to the administratrix as being the first person having legal dominion of the fund after it had come into existence by the death of the testator; (2) the case was governed by Johnstone v. Cox, No. 404, post, & the circumstance that on the death of testator, when the fund charged came into existence, there was no trustee or other person having the legal dominion of the fund to whom effective notice could be given, was immaterial to alter the priority obtained by notice given to the person who subsequently had such legal dominion.

(3) Notice given by an assignee of a fund to the person who is himself the assignor is not an effectual notice so as to alter priorities.

340. Notice to some of several trustees—Death of such trustees—Bankruptcy of assignor—Failure of trustee in bankruptcy to make inquiries before such death.]—The assignee in insolvency of a person entitled to a reversionary fund vested in trustees, one of whom at the time of the insolvency had notice of a prior assignment, is affected with notice of the assignment, so that if he delays making inquiry until, through changes in the body of trustees, none remain who have notice of the assignment, want of actual notice & circumstances of subsequent diligence on his part will not entitle him to the fund as against the prior assignee.

A. being entitled to a reversionary fund under a will in 1844 assigned it for value to C., who gave notice in writing of the assignment to the then sole trustee of the will. In 1848 C. assigned the reversion to L., who gave notice of his assignment to H. & R., two of the then trustees, but not to the remaining trustee, B. In 1852 A. became insolvent. The official assignee in whom his property vested made no inquiry of either H. or R. respecting the charges on the fund, & was not aware of the assignment. The survivor of H. & R. died in 1870. 341. Notice to surviving trustees.]—Funds belonging to L. M. were, on her marriage in 1834, vested in three trustees, one of whom died in 1840, in trust for her life for her separate use, without power of anticipation, & after her death for the children of the marriage, & in case there should be none, for such persons, if she should die in her husband's lifetime, as she should appoint. In 1843 the husband & wife executed a deed to secure payment of money due from him, & the wife appointed that in case there should be no child of the marriage, & if she should die in the husband's lifetime, the trustees of the settlement of 1834 should, out of the trust funds, raise sufficient to pay the husband's debt. Notice was given of the deed of 1843 to the two surviving trustees of the settlement. In 1848 the wife & the sole surviving trustee of the settlement, who desired to retire, appointed three new trustees, & assigned to them the trust funds. One of those trustees died, & the two surviving trustees & the survivor of them, at the request of the husband & wife, dealt with some of the trust funds, which ultimately were much diminished. A portion of the funds was invested in the purchase of leasehold premises, which were held upon the trusts of the settlement. The wife died in Mar. 1870, without having had any child. The husband survived. The survivor of the trustees of 1848 in May, 1870, received a notice from R. L. of a charge on the leaseholds in his favour, dated Oct. 5, 1864, & in Oct. 1870, he received a notice of the deed of 1843:—Held: (1) R. L. was not entitled to priority over the trustees of the deed of 1843, & the persons claiming under the deed of 1843 were entitled to the funds which remained in part satisfaction of the money due to them.

(2) Assignees of an equitable interest should, if they desire to be perfectly secured, obtain a distringas on the funds, or have their deed indorsed on the original deed, or obtain a transfer of the funds in ct.

(3) Semble: new trustees of trust funds in settlement are not bound to inquire of the old trustees whether they have received notice of any incumbrance, & it has never been the practice of the ct. on appointing new trustees of funds to make such an inquiry.—PHIPPS v. LOVEGROVE, PROSSER v. PHIPPS (1873), L. C., being entitled to the reversion of the above sum, sold his interest in 1820 to D., & in 1824 to E., who immediately served each of the four trustees with notice. D. alleged that he had previously given notice in 1820 by leaving with A. written notices to the four trustees:—Held: the case rested entirely upon the question of fact whether B. had, or had not, notice of the assignment of 1820, & as all the facts favoured the presumption that there would be notice to B., inasmuch as A. with whom the original notices were left, was the solr. of B., the assignment of 1820 was entitled to priority.—Re DURAND'S TRUST (1859), 1 L. The solrs. wrote accepting the notice on behalf of the trustees. A member of the firm deposed that at the close of a meeting held at his office two months afterwards, with reference to the winding-up of the Ch. suit, & lasting above three hours, the notice was read to the trustees. Two of the trustees positively denied this, & the third denied all recollection of it. There was no further proof of their having received notice of it until after notices of other incumbrances had been duly given to them:—Held: (1) notice to the solrs. was not good notice to the trustees; (2) evidence of parol notice having been given to the trustees in the course of conversation at the end of a meeting called upon other business, could not be relied upon as fixing the trustees with notice in opposition to their denial of having received it; (3) pltfs. must be postponed to the subsequent incumbrancers; (4) the solrs. in accepting service of the notice on behalf of the trustees were not guilty of a misrepresentation of fact for which they could be made liable, but were acting under an opinion common to both parties, but which was erroneous in point of law, that their employment as solrs. enabled them effectually to accept service of

349. General rule.]—(1) The assignee of a chose in action, or security of any kind, where there has been no fraud, stands in exactly the same situation as the assignor as to the equities arising upon it. He must be taken to be cognisant of them. It is his duty to make inquiries, &, as a general rule, the creator of the security thus assigned is not bound, on receiving a simple notice of the assignment, to volunteer information. If a loss arises, it falls upon him whose duty it is to make the inquiries & who has not made them. But if the notice given by the assignee discloses, on the face of it, that which induces the belief that he has been deceived in accepting the assignment, the creator of the security is bound to inform the assignee of the real circumstances, & if he should not do so, he will be bound to perform the stipulations of the security, & cannot be allowed to take advantage of the equities existing as between the assignor & himself.

(2) This is the assignment of a chose in action, that is, of a charterparty, which is not assignable at law, but may be assigned in equity (LORD ST. LEONARDS, C.).—MANGLES v. DIXON (1852), 3 H. L. Cas. 702; 19 L. T. O. S. 260; 10 E. R. 278, H. L.

By omitting to give that information the trustee will not lose his priority.—Re LEWER, Ex p. WILKES (1876), 4 Ch. D. 101; 35 L. T. 557; 25 W. R. 64; *affd. sub nom. 354. —— To inform cestui que trust—What incumbrances have been created—To answer inquiries of stranger about to deal with cestui que trust.]—Although it is the duty of a trustee to give his cestui que trust, on demand, information with respect to the dealings with & position of the trust fund, it is no part of his duty to assist his cestui que trust in selling or incumbering his beneficial interest by telling him what incumbrances he, the cestui que trust, has created, nor which of his incumbrancers have given notice of their respective charges; & it follows that the trustee is under no obligation to answer the inquiries of a stranger about to deal with the cestui que trust.

If the trustee takes upon himself to answer the inquiries of a stranger about to deal with the cestui que trust, he is not under any legal obligation to do more than to give honest answers to the best of his actual knowledge & belief: he is not bound to make inquiries himself. Provided he answers honestly, he incurs no liability to the inquirer, unless he binds himself by a statement amounting to a warranty, or so expresses himself as to be estopped from afterwards denying the truth of what he has said.

B., being entitled under a settlement to a life interest in a trust fund, applied to pltf. for a loan on the security of such life interest, at the same time referring pltf. to deft., one of the trustees of the settlement, for information as to his, B.'s, means & position. Pltf. thereupon wrote to deft. inquiring what the trust fund consisted of, & whether B.'s life interest was subject to any incumbrances, but not stating that B. had applied for an advance. Deft. replied that the life interest was subject to certain incumbrances, mentioning them, but did not say there were no others. Pltf. then made an advance to B., on the security of a mtge. by B. of his life interest. Subsequently pltf. discovered that the life interest was subject to several incumbrances prior to his own, besides those deft. had mentioned, but the existence of which, as was admitted by pltf., deft. had forgotten when replying to pltf.'s inquiries, though he had had notice of them. Pltf.'s security being insufficient, he brought an action against deft. to have him declared liable for the amount due on the security, alleging that the advance to B. was made upon the faith of deft.'s written representations :—Held : deft. was not liable either on the ground of fraud, breach of duty, warranty, or estoppel.—LOW v. BOUVERIE, [1891] 3 Ch. 82 ; 60 L. 359. —— ——.]—As between two assignees of a possible future fund, notice, before the fund has come into existence, to a person who is merely a potential future trustee or stakeholder is ineffectual to disturb the usual order of priorities.

An officer in the army upon his marriage covenanted with trustees that any money which should be received from the sale of his then or any future commission, etc., should be paid to the trustees upon the trusts of his marriage settlement. He subsequently became indebted to the regimental agents ; he then gave them authority to apply for the sale of his commission, & he charged the proceeds with payment of the debt. The trustees shortly afterwards gave the agents notice of the settlement, & of their claim to the proceeds. The commission was subsequently sold & the money was paid to the agents. Upon a bill by the trustees of the settlement :—Held : the charge of the agents upon the proceeds arising from the sale of the commission was entitled to priority over the settlement, since, if notices given before receipt of the sale money were to be regarded as effectual, the army agents had notice of their own security before receiving any notice of the settlement ; & if as ineffectual, then the first notice after the receipt of the sale money, & the first effectual notice, was also that of their own claim.—SOMERSET v. COX (1864), 33 Beav. 634 ; 3 New Rep. 682 ; 33 L. Six days after the notices had been given, a letter was sent from the Horse Guards, the purport of which was communicated by the agents to the officer, requesting the agents to transfer £450 from the fund to the officer. The first assignee then gave a second notice. The agents sent a form of receipt to the officer, which was returned by him signed, before which the £450 was not issuable by the agents. A trustee, who saw in a newspaper an advertisement relating to a petition by his cestui que trust as an insolvent debtor, believed, correctly, that the cestui que trust was insolvent, & treated such insolvency as a fact in a transaction independent of the trust. The cestui que trust two years afterwards made an equitable assignment of his interest in the trust fund by way of mtge., of which the mtgee. gave formal notice to the trustee. 384. Notice in writing—Letter from solicitor of trustee of deed of arrangement—Asking for account of dealings between assignor & debtor.]—On Dec. 5, 1907, deft. owed £808 to A. On that day A. by a deed of arrangement absolutely assigned to B. & C., the trustees of the deed, all his personal property. On Apr. 8, 1908, the trustees' solrs. wrote to deft. saying that "the trustees of the deed of arrangement dated Dec. 5, 1907, & executed by A., have instructed us to apply to you for an account showing all dealings between yourself & A. The reason of this application is that there appears from A.'s books to be a considerable debt due from you to him for money advanced." On June 24, 1910, D. was by deed appointed a new trustee of the deed of Dec. 5, 1907, in substitution for C., but no notice of this deed was given to deft. In an action brought by B., C., & D. to recover the debt of £808 from deft.:—Held: the letter of Apr. 8, 1908, constituted an express notice in writing of the assignment of the debt of £808 within 1873 Act, s. 25 (6), inasmuch as, although not worded with the precision of a formal notice, it indicated with sufficient certainty to deft. that A. had executed a deed which assigned to the then trustees the debt formerly due to him, & that the debt, when the amount was ascertained, must be paid to the trustees & not to A., & the names of the assignees were sufficiently disclosed, as there was an express & accurate reference to the deed to which the trustees were parties.—DENNEY, GASQUET & METCALFE v. CONKLIN, [1913] 3 K. 385. —— Debtor unable to read.]—(1) On the assignment of a debt the assignee cannot recover the debt in an action, if no notice in writing has been given to debtor as provided by 1873 Act, s. 25 (6), although such notice has not been given owing to the inability of debtor to read, a fact known to the assignee, & other means have been employed to bring the assignment to his knowledge & attention, & to explain the nature & effect of it to him.

(2) If debtor pays anything on account, this does not raise an estoppel against him so as to prevent him, on being sued for the debt, from relying on the words of the sect. requiring notice of the assignment to be in writing.—HOCKLEY & PAPWORTH v. GOLDSTEIN (1920), 90 L. 386. Two charges in one deed—Notice referring only to one charge.]—Where two charges on a chose in action are contained in one deed, & a notice is given to the trustees which specifies one only, the trustees have not constructive notice of the contents of the deed, so that notice of both the charges is to be imputed to them.

A., having a contingent reversionary interest in a fund vested in trustees, sold & assigned a portion of it to B. The assignment contained a covenant on the part of A. to insure his life against the contingency, & to pay the premiums, &, in default, to charge the fund therewith. B. gave the trustees notice of the deed so far as related to the purchase only, but not as regarded the charge for the insurance:—Held: as to subsequent incumbrancers on the fund who had given due notice, B. had priority to the extent only of his purchase, & not in respect of the charge for insurance.—Re BRIGHT'S TRUSTS (1856), 21 Beav. 430; 25 L. 391. Lis pendens—Registration.]—The doctrine of lis pendens does not apply to personal property other than chattel interests in land.

A firm of traders assigned their book debts to pltfs., who gave notice of the assignment to debtors. Pltfs. brought an action against the firm to enforce their security, which they registered as a lis pendens, & obtained an injunction & a receiver, but no notice of the action was given to debtors. The firm then assigned the same book debts to a banking co., who gave notice of their security to debtors. The banking co. had no notice of the action or of the order for an injunction & a receiver, unless the registration of the lis pendens amounted to constructive notice:—Held: (1) the banking co. were not affected with notice by the registration of the lis pendens, & their security had priority over that of pltfs. Semble: (2) even if the registration had given the banking co. notice of the lis pendens, pltfs. would have lost their priority by their laches.—WIGRAM v. BUCKLEY, [1894] 3 Ch. 483; 63 L. i. In General.

393. Statement of rule.]—A person having a beneficial interest in a sum of money, invested in the names of trustees, assigned it for valuable consideration to A., but no notice of the assignment was given to the trustees. Afterwards, the same person proposed to sell his interest to B., & B., having made inquiry of the trustees as to the nature of the vendor's title, & the amount of his interest, & having received no intimation of the existence of any prior incumbrance, completed the purchase, & gave the trustees notice:—Held: (1) B. had a better equity than A., to the possession of the fund, & the assignment to B., though posterior in date, was to be preferred to the assignment to A.; (2) it was of no importance in the question as to the priority of title acquired under the assignments, whether the interest of the vendor were vested or contingent, present or reversionary.—DEARLE v. HALL, LOVERIDGE v. COOPER (1828), 3 Russ. 1; 38 E. 406. —— Second assignment taken from legal personal representative of assignor to first assignee.]—Upon the principle in Dearle v. Hall, No. 393, ante, the right to priority which a second assignee of an equitable interest in a fund, who has given notice of his assignment to the trustees, possesses over a first assignee who has failed to give notice, subsists equally where the second assignee has taken his assignment from the legal personal representative of the cestui que trust, & not from the cestui que trust himself.

A. assigned to B. his equitable interest in a fund under the will of X., but omitted to give notice to the trustees. A. died, having by will bequeathed all his property to his extrix., who then assigned to C., a purchaser for value without notice of the prior assignment, all the property under the will of X. to which she was entitled as A.'s legal personal representative, & C. thereupon gave notice of his assignment to the trustees of X.'s will. (2) But it is otherwise, if the estate is vested in the trustee by a devise to him in trust to sell & to divide the proceeds among several persons of whom the mtgor. is one, & the mtges. are of the mtgor.'s share in such proceeds, because then, although the mtges. may have been made before any sale took place, the subject of them could only, as regarded the mtgor.'s interest therein, be considered a chose in action.—LEE v. HOWLETT (1856), 2 K. & J. 531; 4 W. The solr. paid interest on the amount of the specified mtge. debt to the client, down to the client's death in 1885, & to the client's exors. down to his own death in 1888. Shortly before his death the solr. deposited the title deeds of the mortgaged property with his own bankers to secure the overdraft of his account ; & he died leaving his account overdrawn to an extent exceeding the value of the mortgaged property. Immediately after the solr.'s death the bank gave notice to the mtgors. of the deposit of the deeds with them. At the date of the deposit the bank had no notice of any claim on behalf of the client, & their notice was prior in point of date to any notice given the exors. of the client :—Held : the principle of *Dearle v. 421. —— Land in Middlesex.]—(1) The Local Registry Acts are intended to apply only to dealings at law or in equity with the land itself. Accordingly, an incumbrancer upon a share in the proceeds of real estate in Middlesex devised in trust for sale obtains no priority over other incumbrancers on such share by registering his mtge. deed, & the priorities of such incumbrancers rank according to the dates of their respective notices to the trustees.

(2) Although formal notice to the trustee of the proceeds of real estate devised in trust for sale or of a chose in action, of an incumbrance thereupon does not give priority over an earlier incumbrance of which the trustee may have obtained accidental notice, the converse proposition that incumbrances are to rank not in the order of notices given by the incumbrancers but of accidental knowledge obtained by the trustees, does not hold good.

(3) A judgment creditor cannot, by giving notice to the trustee, put himself in a better position than the judgment debtor ; & a judgment creditor who has obtained equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver subject to existing incumbrances :—Held : to have obtained no priority by giving notice of the appointment to the trustee of the judgment debtor.—ARDEN v. ARDEN (1885), 29 Ch. The annuity was paid, but some of the payments were made by C. out of his own money. Subsequently E. obtained an assignment of the life interest for a debt due to him, & upon obtaining it, inquired & found that the annuity was duly paid. Afterwards the exor. paid the legacy into ct., together with an accumulation of interest accrued due thereon, & stated that he received notice of the annuity, then of E.'s assignment, & lastly of C.'s advances :—Held : C. had priority over E., because as E. had notice of the annuity-deed & assignment to secure it, it was sufficient to put him upon inquiry, in which case he would have found that there was a contemporaneous deed giving C. a charge for any payments he should make.—Re CAWTHORNE, Re HARWOOD (1849), 18 L. 430. —— Notice of document which may or may not affect property.]—A joint stock co. issued debentures, charging its undertaking & all its property, both present & future, one of the conditions of the debentures being that the charge thereby created was to be a floating security, but so that the co. was not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge in priority to the debentures. Subsequently the co. entered into negotiations with pltfs. for a loan upon the security of an assignment of certain insurance money coming due to the co. in respect of a fire that had occurred upon their premises. In the course of the negotiations pltfs.' solr., who acted for them in the matter, became aware that the co. had issued debentures, but he was informed by the managing director of the co. that the debentures did not affect the proposed assignment, & pltfs.' solr. accordingly did not ask to see the form of the debentures, & received no further notice of their contents. The assignment was thereupon executed, & notice of it was given to the insurance office. The debenture-holders subsequently gave notice to the insurance office that they claimed the insurance money in priority to pltfs. Upon the trial of an interpleader issue it was proved that debentures might be in one of three forms, (1) a simple acknowledgment of a debt, (2) an instrument acknowledging the debt, & charging the property of the co. with repayment, & (3) an instrument in the same form as the second, but, in addition, restricting the co. from giving any prior charge :—Held : as pltfs.' solr. only had notice of the existence of debentures which might or might not affect the property to be assigned, & was told that they did not affect it, pltfs. could not be fixed with constructive notice of the contents of the debentures, & the assignment to them had priority.—ENGLISH & SCOTTISH MERCANTILE INVESTMENT CO. v. BRUNTON, [1892] 2 Q. Crown—Seizing assigned stock under writ of extent.]—Two partners in a trading firm executed a trust conveyance of part of their shares in the partnership stock to certain co-obligants in bonds of credit at the bank, under the conditions (1) that before any sale or transfer of the stock should take place, the trustees should be bound to give three months' intimation of their intention to the assignors, & (2) that the trustees should be bound to apply the proceeds of the stock in paying whatever should be due on the bonds of credit at the time of sale of the stock. The assignors intimated such assignation, by having the stock transferred in the books of their firm to the names of the assignees. A writ of extent was afterwards issued against the assignors as crown debtors, at which time the value of the stock so assigned was £960 4*s.* 8*d.*, & the debt due on the bonds of credit was £1,200. 439. Assignee giving notice after having fraudulently obtained discharge of sequestration order.]—A person who has obtained improperly the discharge of an order of sequestration affecting a chose in action, cannot avail himself of that discharge to establish a claim to the chose in action against the sequestrators as a subsequent purchaser thereof for value without notice.

C. was decreed to pay certain sums to W. & on her absconding without payment, a sequestration was issued against her estate. Some years later, M., her brother-in-law, obtained improperly & without the knowledge of W. the discharge of the order for sequestration, & subsequently C. became entitled to a fund, part of an intestate's estate, which fund she assigned to M. as security for an advance of about equal value made by him to her. On bill filed by W. against the administratrix & M. & C. :—Held : (1) W.'s claim had priority over that of M. ; (2) the bill was a proper proceeding for enforcing the sequestration against the chose in action ; (3) the absence of C. was no bar to dealing with the chose in action, the real debtor, the administratrix, being a party to the cause & appearing ; (4) the administratrix must pay the fund into ct. after deducting thereout the amount of her costs.—WARD v. BOOTH (1872), L. 440. Solicitor—Assignment by plaintiff of judgment debt to third party—No notice of solicitor's lien given to assignee.]—Pltf. in an action assigned the judgment debt for value to a person who had been a witness in the action, & notice of such assignment was given to the solr. who had acted for pltf. in the action. The solr., who had not given notice to the assignee of his lien for costs, thereupon obtained a charging order under Solrs. Act, 1860 (c. 127), s. 28, on the amount recovered in the action :—Held : inasmuch as notice that the subject-matter of the assignment was the subject-matter of the action amounted to notice to the assignee of the existence of the solr.'s right to a lien on the "property recovered" in the action, the assignee was not a "bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice" within s. 28, & such lien took priority of the assignment by pltf.—COLE v. ELEY, [1894] 2 Q. A., who was entitled to a residuary fund in the hands of his father's army agents, charged it to the agents, & afterwards to M. without notice. The agents voluntarily paid the whole fund into ct. in an administration suit. 445. —— Over first assignee himself trustee of fund.]—A trustee, who has himself made advances on a fund which is being administered by the ct., should obtain a stop order on the fund, & not having done so was postponed to another incumbrancer, who had obtained a stop order.

A. & B made advances to C. upon his share in a fund which was being administered by the ct. A.'s advance was made long prior to B.'s, but A. did not obtain a stop order, & B. did. Between the date of B.'s advance, & the date of his stop order an order was made directing payment to A. of part of the fund in ct. in part satisfaction of A.'s debt. B., who was pltf. in the cause, had the carriage of the order. On the question whether the debt of A. or B. had priority:—Held: as B. had notice of A.'s debt by the order directing payment to him, A. was entitled to priority over B.—ELDER v. MACLEAN (1857), 29 L. 441 ii. ——.]—By assignment Dec. 21, 1910, a contractor assigned to a third party, with notice to his employer on same day, moneys due or to become due to him for building. The assignment was security for material supplied & sub-contracts taken by the assignee under the contract. A sub-contractor in Jan. 1911, commenced work on the house under sub-contract with the contractor, & finished work on July 12, 1911. Notice of intention to claim a charge by the sub-contractor on the unpaid contract-moneys was served on the employer on Aug. 10, 1911:—Held: the charge of the sub-contractor was subject to & must be postponed to the claim of the assignee.—COLLINS v. COOPER (1911), 31 N. 441 iii. —— Banker's equitable charge —Anticipatory orders for payment.]—On completion of a contract with the Crown the balance due to the contracting co. was determined by arbitration. To enable the award to be taken up, the co.'s creditors advanced a sum of money, & a deed of assignment in their favour over all moneys payable under the award was executed. The assignees had notice that the co.'s bank claimed to have an equitable charge over the moneys with priority over the deed. The limit of the bank overdraft was fixed at £4,000, & the same limit was imposed upon future anticipatory orders. The co. subsequently gave an order authorising the bank "to obtain the countersignature of a cheque of the Paymaster-General for the sum of £1,000 or any other sum payable to me, & to sign on my behalf a receipt for that amount." Notice of the order was given to the Treasury by the bank:—Held: the assignees under the deed had notice of the bank's claim to an equitable charge; & this charge took priority over the deed.—BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES v. R., [1913] N. An order was subsequently made for the distribution of the fund, & the share of the mtgor. was carried over to the account of him & his incumbrancers. B., a mtgee. subsequent in time to A., then obtained a stop order on the fund so carried over to a separate account:—Held: B. did not thereby gain priority over A.—LISTER v. TIDD (1867), L. 453. Form of stop order—Order in general terms—Limited to assignment in respect of which obtained.]—A stop order upon a fund in ct., however general it may be in its terms, must, so far as respects any operation equivalent to that of notice to the trustee of the fund, be limited to the assignment or incumbrance in respect of which it was obtained.

Where A. purchased & took an assignment of the shares of three parties in a fund in ct., & obtained a general stop order upon the whole fund, & afterwards purchased another share & took an assignment thereof without obtaining a stop order in respect of that assignment:—Held: a subsequent assignee of the last-mentioned share, who had obtained a stop order in respect of that share was to be preferred to A.

A stop order ought to show on the face of it the person by whom the assignment in respect of which it was obtained was made.—MACLEOD v. BUCHANAN (1864), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 265; 3 New Rep. 623; 33 L. J. Ch. 306; 10 L. T. 9; 10 Jur. N. S. 223; 12 W. R. 514; 46 E. R. 921, L. JJ.

454. —— —— On "share" of mortgagor—Whether capital or income affected.]—In ascertaining the effect of a stop order upon a fund in ct., the ct. is not bound to confine its attention merely to the language of the order itself, but may have recourse to what appears from any part of the order.

Having regard to the practice which prevails in the Paymaster-General's Office of treating stop orders on funds in ct. as not affecting income except where income is mentioned on the face of such orders, care should be taken in drawing up stop orders to express on the face of them plainly whether capital or income or both are to be restrained.

The mtgees. of the interest of a tenant for life of a fund in ct. obtained a stop order, general in terms, upon "the share" of the mtgor.:—Held: the stop order affected the income, & gave the mtgees. priority over the trustees of a prior settlement not disclosed by the mtgor., who had obtained no stop order upon the fund.—MACK v. POSTLE, [1894] 2 Ch. 449; 63 L. 455. Stop order not necessary—Notice given to trustee—Assignment of interest in proceeds of sale—Part of real estate unsold.]—A trustee for sale of testator's estates sold part of them & paid the proceeds into ct. A party entitled to a share of testator's property assigned his interest to S. by way of mtge., & S. gave notice of the assignment to the trustee, but did not obtain a stop order. The remainder of the estates was afterwards sold & the proceeds paid into ct. under the decree in the suit. Subsequently the assignor became insolvent:—Held: the notice given to the trustee was sufficient to take the assigned share out of the order & disposition of the assignor.—MATTHEWS v. GABB (1845), 15 Sim. 51; 6 L. Afterwards, the real estates were sold, & the proceeds paid into ct., to the credit of the cause generally. A creditor, who had entered up a judgment against the cestui que trust subsequently to the assignment, obtained an order charging the fund in ct., with respect to which the assignee had not obtained a stop order, or taken any other proceeding:—Held: the judgment creditor did not thereby acquire a priority over him.—BREARCLIFF v. DORRINGTON (1850), 4 De G. & Sm. 122; 19 L. 459. Priority obtained by notice—Assignment of reversionary interest by widow of Scotchman domiciled in Scotland.]—Testator, resident & domiciled in England, by his will, made in the English form, directed that all his property should be converted into money, that a sum should be set apart to answer an annuity, & that after certain legacies the residue should be divided amongst his brothers & sisters, & appointed English exors., who proved the will in England. A., one of the sisters, was married to a Scotchman, & was, with her husband, domiciled in Scotland at the time of the death of testator. The husband died soon after testator. The exors. paid A., after she was a widow, her share of the residue. By Scots law the representatives of the husband were entitled to be paid such residue. A., when a widow, assuming to be entitled to a reversionary interest in the sum set apart to answer the annuity, assigned such interest to B., a domiciled Englishman, for value:—Held: the rights of the representatives of the husband & B. would depend on the priority of notice, given to the exors., of Scots law in this respect, or of the assignment.—LESLIE v. BAILLIE (1843), 2 Y. & C. 460. —— Arrestment of calls on shares held in Scotland.]—A bank held debentures issued by the Q. Co., which was domiciled in Queensland, charging the unpaid capital in respect of shares in the Q. Co. After such capital had been called up, but before it had been paid, the A. Co. commenced an action against the Q. Co. in Scotland for damages, & arrested the calls on the Q. Co.'s shares held in Scotland; the holders of such shares had no notice of the debentures. The Q. Co. was ordered to be wound up in Queensland & also in England. An order was made in the English winding-up restraining the A. Co. from prosecuting the action in Scotland, but without prejudice to the security, if any, which they had acquired upon the amounts payable on the Scotch shares by the proceedings in Scotland; & an order was also made by the Ct. of Session in Scotland recalling the arrestments & restraining the proceedings in Scotland, but subject to the further order of the ct. It was in evidence that under Scots law the arrestment was equivalent to an assignment with notice to debtor, & took priority over an earlier assignment without notice; &, further, that according to Scots law & the jus gentium as administered in Scotland, the Scotch arrestments would, in the circumstances, have priority over the assignment by the debentures, notwithstanding the fact that the creditor was domiciled in Queensland & the place of payment was in England, whatever the law of those countries might be:—Held: the question of priority on the proceeds of the Scotch shares must be regulated by the law of Scotland, & the ct. was bound to have regard not only to the municipal law of Scotland, but to the administration of the jus gentium by the Scotch cts., & the A. Co had the first charge on such proceeds.—Re QUEENSLAND MERCANTILE & AGENCY CO., Ex p. AUSTRALASIAN INVESTMENT CO., Ex p. UNION BANK OF AUSTRALIA, [1892] 1 Ch. 219; 61 L. J. Ch. 145; 66 L. 461. —— Assignment in New York of reversionary interest—English trust fund settled by will of English testator—No notice necessary by law of New York.]—By a deed of June, 1891, A., being then domiciled in New York, assigned to his wife absolutely his reversionary interest in his late father's estate, which was invested in English trust securities. According to the law in New York, notice to the trustees of the will was not necessary to complete an assignment of a chose in action or reversionary interest in personalty, & notice of the assignment was not sent to the English trustees. By a deed of Aug. 1894, A., being then in England, assigned his reversionary interest in his father's estate to pltf. by way of mtge. to secure £400. Notice of the assignment was forthwith given by pltf. to the trustees of the will. In Sept. 1903, notice of the first assignment was given to the trustees by the wife. In an action to settle the priorities of the two assignments:—Held: as the ct. was administering an English trust fund settled by the will of an English testator, the rights of claimants to that fund must be regulated by English law, & pltf. was entitled to priority by virtue of the notice he had given to the trustees.—KELLY v. SELWYN, [1905] 2 Ch. 117; 74 L. 462. Priority obtained by stop order—Over ketubah—Assignment thereby of wife's reversionary interest.]—Upon the marriage in Morocco in 1865 of a Jewish husband & wife, the husband being domiciled in that country, a document called a ketubah was executed, under which it was alleged that the children of the marriage took an interest in the property of the wife. By the will of an English testator, who died in 1858, a sum of £10,000 consols was bequeathed to trustees, upon trust for the wife's mother for her life, with remainders to her children in equal shares. At the time of the marriage the wife was, subject to her mother's life estate, entitled to one-fourth of the fund The fund was in ct. in a suit to administer testator's estate, & stood to the separate account of the mother & her family. In 1878 the wife died intestate, & the husband took out administration in England to her estate. He, in 1885, as her administrator, assigned her share of the fund for value to a reversionary society, & they obtained a stop order upon that share of the fund. The society had no notice of the ketubah, & no notice had been given to the trustees of the will, & no stop order had been obtained on behalf of the persons entitled under it. In 1898 the tenant for life died. Upon a petition in the suit by the society for payment of one-fourth of the fund to them:—Held: the husband having the legal title to dispose of his wife's interest in the fund, the society had by means of the stop order obtained priority, & the wife's share of the fund must be paid out to them.—MONTEFIORE v. GUEDALLA, [1903] 2 Ch. 26; 72 L. J. Ch. 442; 88 L. T. 496; 19 T. L. R. 390, C. A.

See, generally, EXECUTION.

463. Arrestment—Notice given against creditor—Of assignment—As security.]—A party held an intimated assignation, as a security for certain specified debts & relief of specific obligations; another party, creditor of the grantor of the assignation, used arrestments in the hands of the assignee, & of debtor in the assigned debt:—Held: the assignee, in accounting with the arrester, was entitled to take credit (1) for the amount of the debts & obligations specified in the assignation, & all expenses relating thereto; (2) for all sums paid to or for behoof of & for all furnishings made by him to the common debtor prior to the arrestment, & (3) for all sums which, though paid for behoof of the common debtor after the date of the arrestment, were paid in virtue of obligations contracted prior thereto.—CLYNE'S TRUSTEES v. DUNNET (1839), Macl. & Rob. 28; 9 E. R. 11, H. L.

464. Charging order—No notice given against creditor—Of equitable assignment—Of interest in consols.]—A., an attorney, employed by B. to invest money, lent it to C. on an agreement, by which C., as a security, charged his interest in £5,000 consols, standing in the names of trustees in trust for C. A. neglected to give notice to the trustees. A judgment creditor of C., subsequently to that loan, obtained a charging order under Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), s. 14, notice of which was given to the trustees. C. became insolvent. B. brought an action against A. for negligence; on the trial, the judge directed the jury, in estimating the damages, to consider that, as no notice had been given to C.'s trustees of the charge in favour of B., the subsequent charge created by the judge's order had priority over it:—Held: (ERLE, J., diss.) the direction was correct, & the judgment creditor had the same rights as a subsequent incumbrancer without notice, & was to be preferred in equity to A.—WATTS v. PORTER (1854), 3 E. & B. 743; 23 L. 468 i. Garnishee order—No notice given against creditor.]—Orders upon a garnishee to attach & pay over were set aside, on its being shown that the debt in question had been assigned by the judgment debtor before the judgment creditor had obtained his judgment; but no costs were given, as the assignees had neglected to give notice of the assignment to the garnishee.—GRANT v. MCDONELL (1876), 39 U. 468 ii. —— No notice of prior assignment.]—A suit by A. against B. was dismissed with costs. C. obtained an order setting aside the ex parte decree, allowing him to come in and defend the suit on deposit in ct. of the sum sued for. At the re-hearing the suit was again determined in favour of A. B. thereupon, in execution of his decree for costs, attached the moneys in ct. in the suit of A. against C. D. obtained an interim injunction restraining B. from meddling with the money, & put in his claim under the assignment:—Held: the incomplete equitable title of D. could not prevail against the right of B., the attaching creditor.—GREESH CHUNDER SEIN v. GUDADHUR GHOSE (1880), I. or sums of money which might become payable in the action to the assignor. A new trial was obtained, & pltf. became the solr. in that action, which terminated in a verdict for pltf. in that action for the same amount as before. Deft., who was a judgment creditor of pltf. in the action in the Mayor's Ct., obtained a garnishee order attaching the amount recovered in that action. In an interpleader to determine whether pltf. as assignee or deft. as garnishee was entitled to the fruits of the judgment:—Held: whether the assignment of the first verdict covered the amount of the second verdict or not, the intention of the assignment & covenant was to secure to pltf. the fruits of the litigation, & as pltf. in that action could not deal with the amount recovered without violating the rights of his assignee, the assignment took priority over the garnishee order.—DAVIS v. FREETHY (1890), 24 Q. 473. Assignment as security—Forbearance of debtor by assignee—Right of assignor to recover loss so incurred -Assignment of bond.]—Where a bond is assigned by the obligee towards satisfaction of a debt owing from him to another person, the assignee is chargeable for wilful default in forbearing the obligor, to the amount of any loss incurred by such forbearance.—Ex p. MURE (1788), 2 Cox, Eq. 474. —— —— —— Assignment of judgment.]—A. assigned to B., as security for a debt due to him from A., a judgment recovered by A. against C. B. sued out execution upon the judgment, but, instead of levying the whole amount, entered into negotiations with C. & received part of the sum due upon the judgment, but C. died insolvent before the residue of it was obtained:—Held: B. must be restrained from suing A.'s representatives, upon his covenant for the residue, & B. must account to A.'s representatives, not merely for what he received upon the judgment, but for what, without his wilful default, he might have received.—WILLIAMS v. PRICE (1824), 1 Sim. & St. 581; 2 L. 475. Vendor's lien—Sale of reversionary interest in trust fund.]—(1) The doctrine of vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money is as applicable to a sale of personal estate, such as a reversionary interest in a trust fund, as to a sale of real estate; & accordingly an unpaid vendor of personal estate is entitled to all such remedies for enforcing payment of his purchase-money & interest as he would have been entitled to under an express mtge. or charge.

(2) No Stat. Limitations is applicable to a charge on personal estate, whether by way of vendor's lien or otherwise; consequently the right to the recovery of the debt is not barred by lapse of time, & interest is recoverable for the whole period from the date on which the debt was incurred.

In 1874 a son, being entitled in reversion upon the death of his father to a trust legacy of £5,000 under a will of which the father was sole surviving trustee & exor., sold & assigned his reversionary interest to his father by deed absolutely for £1,500. The deed expressed that the £1,500 was paid as the consideration money by the father to the son, & a receipt for the money was indorsed on the deed, but in fact the money was never paid. In 1900 the father died, whereupon the son claimed a lien for the £1,500 upon the £5,000 legacy, which was then in the hands of the father's exors., together with interest from the date of the assignment:—Held: the son was entitled to enforce his claim on the grounds (a) the doctrine of vendor's lien on real estate was equally applicable to personal estate, (b) a vendor's lien on personal estate was not subject to any statutory or other bar, & (c), the father having been in the position of trustee of the legacy as well as purchaser, his exors. were bound, in due course of administration, to satisfy the son's claim out of the legacy.—Re STUCLEY, STUCLEY v. KEKEWICH, [1906] 1

C. having brought an action in the names of A. & B. against a debtor whose debt was stated in the schedule to be £250, & having obtained a capias to hold him to bail, A. caused the sheriff to discharge debtor. In an action against A. upon the implied covenant in the deed that he would do no act in derogation of his grant, A. pleaded that debtor was, without his knowledge, or consent, wrongfully & unlawfully held to bail for a much larger amount than was then owing by him to A. & B., & for a much larger amount than the £250 mentioned in the schedule as due from him, &, therefore, deft. ordered him to be discharged :—Held : no answer to the action.—GERARD v. LEWIS (1867), L. 478. —— Assignment of partnership assets—Failure to transfer bill of exchange.]—The first count alleged that deft. & L. carried on business in co-partnership, & that, by indenture between deft. & L. of the first part, pltfs. of the second part, etc., it was witnessed that deft. & L., & each of them, granted, assigned, & transferred to pltfs. all the co-partnership stock, debts, sums of money & all other the personal estate & effects & property of them, deft. & L., as such co-partners. It then averred that, at the time of the making of the indenture, deft. was indebted to the co-partnership in £240, being part of the debts, sums of money & personal estate & effects & property of deft. & L., as such co-partners ; & it assigned, for a first breach, non-payment of the £240. There was a second breach, alleging that, at the time of the making of the indenture, a bill of exchange for £120, payable to the order of deft., & then being in the possession of deft., was part of the personal estate & effects & property of deft. & L. as such co-partners, & that deft. made default in transferring the bill of exchange, & the right to the money therein specified, to pltfs., &, after the making of the indenture, incapacitated himself from so doing, & from conferring on pltfs. any right or title to receive the money specified in the bill, by then parting with the possession of the bill in such manner & on such terms as so to incapacitate himself, & thereby deft. prevented pltfs. from acquiring or having any right or title to the money, contrary to the indenture :—Held : there was no implied covenant on the part of deft. to pay to pltfs. the sum due from him to the co-partnership, & deft. was entitled to judgment on the first breach, but there was an implied covenant on his part not to do anything in derogation of his deed, & pltfs. were entitled to judgment as to the second breach.—AULTON v. ATKINS (1856), 18 C. 479. —— Assignment of pension as security—Revocation of power of attorney to assignee to receive pension—Interference by court.]—Deft., a retired officer in the army, having received a grant from the Crown of a pension for wounds, assigned it to pltf. to secure payment of an annuity to him. He also executed a power of attorney in the form employed by the War Office, empowering pltf. to receive the pension & pay himself the annuity. After two payments of the pension deft. revoked the power by himself personally going to the office & receiving it :—Held : deft. must execute a proper power of attorney for the purpose of enabling pltf. to receive the pension, & a perpetual injunction must be granted against his revoking the power, or doing any act whereby pltf.'s right might be interfered with.—KNIGHT v. BULKELEY (1859), 33 L. C. took up the award & paid the costs. The award directed £30 to be paid by B. to A., & that the costs of the reference should be equally divided between the parties. A., having received from B. the £30 & the moiety of the costs :—Held : C. might recover the amount so received by him in an action for money had & received.—SMITH v. JONES (1842), 1 Dowl. N. Deft. sought to add the contractors as parties in order that they might be bound by the accounts:—Held: the contractors could not be made defts. in an action in the Q. B. 493. —— Injunction at instance of assignee.]—In an unsuccessful railway speculation a member, who was a provisional & managing committeeman of the intended co., together with the rest of the parties interested, became indebted to an advertising agent to a considerable amount. The agent being indebted in a larger amount to another person, assigned the debt due from the co. to his creditor, for better securing his demand against him. An action was brought by the agent against the provisional & managing committeeman for the debt due to him from the co., & a bill was filed to enjoin such agent from proceeding in the action, making the assignee & others parties. The assignee, by his answer, denied giving instructions for the action:—Held: the injunction must be allowed.—WEBSTER v. PARRATT (1849), 13 L. T. O. S. 399.

495. —— Plea of assignment—Replication of reassignment.]—Declaration for wages & on an account stated. Plea, that the debts in the declaration mentioned were contracted by defts. jointly with B. & others; that B. resided in the State of C. & within the jurisdiction of the district ct. of the fourth judicial district of that State; that the law of the State was, that a creditor might assign to another a debt due to such creditor, & that the person to whom such debt was assigned might in his own name sue debtor & recover the debt; that that ct. had jurisdiction to hear & determine any suit brought by such assignee; that after the accruing of the debt in the declaration mentioned, pltf. then being in the State did, according to the law, assign same to R. then also being in the State; & that afterwards R., in his own name, sued defts. & the other joint debtors in the district ct. for the debts & other debts, & recovered the debts in the declaration mentioned & the other debts; whereupon & whereby defts. & their joint debtors became & still were indebted to R. in the amount of the debts in the declaration mentioned, & liable to be sued in this country for same upon & by virtue of the judgment; & that the judgment was for one entire sum; & that afterwards the judgment was partly satisfied by the levy of a sum of money less than the amount of the judgment, & not applicable to any one of the debts recovered more than to any other. Replication that the law of the State was, that the assignee of a debt might reassign or give up & relinquish to & for the benefit of the creditor by whom the assignment had been made, such debt or so much thereof as, at the time of the reassignment or giving up & relinquishing, remained unsatisfied or unpaid & unlevied; & that such creditor might in his own name sue debtor & recover such debt, or so much thereof as should then remain unlevied & unsatisfied & unpaid, & retain same in like manner as if no such assignment had been made; & that, notwithstanding that, in the meantime such assignee might have sued debtor & have recovered same & caused execution to be issued, unless the whole amount thereof should have been levied. The replication then alleged a reassignment by R. to & for the benefit of pltf. before he had received the debts or any part thereof, & before same or any sum applicable thereto had been levied; & that R. had never received or levied same or any money applicable thereto; & that by reason thereof pltf. became entitled to sue in his own name & recover the debts:—Held: the plea was good, but the replication was a sufficient answer to the plea, & showed that the right to maintain the action was revested in pltf.—THOMPSON v. BELL (1854), 3 E. & B. 236; 23 L. 496. —— Equitable plea of assignment.]—To an action for money due on an award deft. pleaded, on equitable grounds, that pltf. assigned the debt to D. & Co., who gave notice to deft., & that the assignment still remained in force, & that deft. still remained liable to pay D. & Co.; that the action was not brought for the benefit of D. & Co., nor with their consent: & if pltf. recovered in the action, deft. would nevertheless be obliged to pay D. & Co.:—Held: the plea was good, as a ct. of equity would grant an unconditional injunction to restrain pltf. from suing for his own benefit.—JEFFS v. DAY (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 372; 7 B. & S. 250; 35 L. J. Q. B. 99.

Plea, that after the making of the bond, the partnership of obligees was dissolved, & a new partnership formed, by the retiring of one of the old partners and admitting a new partner, with which new partnership M. & N., with the privity of the retired partner, kept an account, & that at the time of the dissolution of partnership, a balance of £5,000 was due from M. & N. to the partnership for such overdrawing, but the partnership did not at any time demand payment of it, but, on the contrary, at & after the dissolution discharged M. & N. from making such payment, & consented that the balance should be, & it was transferred to the account between M. & N. & the new partnership, & became incorporated in their account:—Held: the plea was ill, for the assignment of a chose in action was no discharge of an obligation.—PARKER v. WISE (1817), 6 M. & S. 239; 105 E. On the day subsequent to the date of the judge's order he made an assignment of debts for the liquidation of the amount so due to pltf. Default was made in payment under the judge's order, & he was again imprisoned. On motion for his discharge, on the ground that the assignment of debts was an agreement which superseded the judge's order, & that he had been taken in violation of good faith:—Held: the assignment had not such operation.

An agreement was entered into for an assignment of debts, but it contained nothing which showed that the judge's order was to be abandoned (WILDE, C.J.).—Re RAY (1849), 12 L. T. O. S. 377.

The husband had brought into settlement £5,000, secured by mtge. of the estates. By deed the husband for value assigned his life interest under the settlement in the mtge. debt to S. There was a remainderman under the settlement in existence. There was little evidence as to the circumstances of the assignment:—Held: at the date of the assignment there was an equity in the remainderman against the husband, which vested in the trustees on payment into ct. of £4,000 rentcharge stock, & apart from special circumstances, which had not been shown, the assignment was subject to that equity.—BOLTON v. CURRE (1894), 70 L. The contract turned out to be a fraud on the purchaser & went off, &, on the purchaser applying to A. for the return of the deposited bond, he was informed that A. had placed it in the hands of B., to secure a debt due from himself to B. B. had no notice of the terms upon which A. held the bond:—Held: the deposit & assignment of the bond by the purchaser to A. for the purpose above mentioned did not make A. in the events which happened, a constructive trustee for pltf., &, as B. was a bonâ fide purchaser of the bond for value without notice, he could not be restrained from dealing with it.—ASHWIN v. BURTON (1862), 32 L. All right of set-off & adjustment of equities between the legatee & the exor. existing at the date of the notice have priority over the charge, but the trustees can create no new charges or rights of set-off after that time.

Exors. granted a lease of part of testator's property to a legatee, who afterwards incumbered his legacy. A second action was brought on the award by B., for the benefit of F., to which A. pleaded a set-off of matters that had not been brought forward at the time of making the award:—Held: A. was entitled to do so, & it was not a good reply in equity, that the matter might have been brought forward at the time of making the award, & that F. had thereby been induced to think there was no further set-off.—BAKER v. ALEXANDER (1866), 35 L. 592. —— Price of commission received by army agents—Overdrawn current account.]—K., an officer in the army, mortgaged to R., to secure £5,000, all money which should be realised by sale of his commission. In Dec. 1877, K. obtained leave to retire from the army, & his commission was valued at £3,000, which on Dec. 6 was paid by the Paymaster-General to C. & Co., the army agents of the regiment, & was carried to the deposit account kept by C. & Co. with the Army Purchase Comrs., there to remain till K.'s retirement was gazetted. K. kept an account current with C. & Co. as his bankers, which was overdrawn to the amount of £647. K.'s retirement was gazetted on the evening of Dec. 18, & as soon as C. & Co.'s office opened on the 19th, R. gave them notice of his security. R. having claimed payment of the £3,000, C. & Co. claimed to retain out of it the £647:—Held: (1) as soon as K.'s retirement was gazetted the £3,000 became money had & received by C. & Co. for his use, & for which he could have brought an action at law, & they had a right to set off the balance due to them against this demand; (2) the set-off was equally available against R., of whose security C. & Co. had no notice until after their right to set off had arisen.—ROXBURGHE v. COX (1881), 17 Ch. To that plea pltf. replied that, before the recovery of the judgment, he for a good consideration assigned the debt of £45 to S.; that deft. before the recovery of the judgment had notice of the assignment; & that he, pltf., was suing as trustee for S.:—Held: the replication was bad, as disclosing no legal answer to the plea.—WATKINS v. CLARK (1862), 12 C. 599. —— Assignment of debt due by company—Whether subject to subsequent calls on shares—Whether assignee bound by compromise made by liquidator of company.]—Assignees of a chose in action take it subject to any right of set-off which may be enforced against the assignor.

A. assigned to B. a debt due from the co., of which he was director, for fees. Calls were made & the co. was subsequently wound up, & a compromise was made by the official manager, by which A. was released from all liability on his relinquishing all claims against the co.:—Held: B., who, although he had given notice of the assignment, had not sued for the debt before the calls were made, was bound by the compromise under which the official manager had set off the debt against A.'s liability for calls.—Re NATIONAL ALLIANCE ASSURANCE CO., ASHWORTH'S CASE (1862), 7 L. 601. —— Debts due under instruments of different dates—Debts payable on different dates.]—When an equitable chose in action has been assigned, debtor cannot set off against the assignee a debt which has accrued due to him from the assignor since the notice of assignment, though resulting from a contract entered into previously, unless from the nature of the transaction it appears to have been intended between the original parties that the one should be set off against the other.

The assignees of a Lloyd's bond sued the makers in the name of the original bondholder; the makers sought to set off arrears of rent due from the original bondholder, which had accrued due since notice of the assignment, upon a lease granted after the making of the bond, but before notice of assignment. In consideration thereof the Govt. covenanted (a) to pay the co. upon the construction & continuous operation of the line an annual subsidy for thirty-five years, such subsidy to attach in proportionate parts & form part of the assets of the co. as & when each five-mile section was completed & operated; (b) to grant to the co. in fee simple five thousand acres of land for each one mile of railway completed, on completion of each section of five miles. In a suit by the co. & its assignees of a division of the railway & of the rights relating thereto:—Held: (1) by the law of the Colony the Govt. were entitled to set off a counterclaim for unliquidated damages for the co.'s breach of contract in not completing the line; (2) the set-off availed against the assignees of the co., the claim & counterclaim having their origin in the same portion of the same contract, the obligations which gave rise to them being closely intertwined.—NEWFOUNDLAND GOVERNMENT v. NEWFOUNDLAND RY. 607. For fraudulent misrepresentation by assignor—Against claim for balance of purchase-money assigned.]—Defts. entered into a contract for the purchase of a newspaper for a sum of £1,000, of which £200 was paid on completion of the contract, & the balance of £800 was to be payable by certain instalments. Defts. were induced to enter into the contract by fraudulent misrepresentations made to them by the vendor. The vendor for valuable consideration assigned the balance of the purchase-money by deed absolutely to pltf., & notice in writing of that assignment was given to defts. Pltf. at the time of the assignment had no notice of the fraud on the part of the vendor. In an action by pltf. against defts. for the debt of £800 so assigned, defts. pleaded, by way of defence, in substance, that they were induced to enter into the contract for the purchase of the newspaper by the fraud of the vendor, & that by reason thereof they had sustained damage exceeding £800 & no money was due from them at the date of the assignment to the pltf., &, in the event of their being held liable to pay the sum claimed by pltf., they counterclaimed against the vendor damages for fraud to an equal amount. Defts. were not in a position, & did not claim, to rescind the contract for the purchase of the newspaper. At the trial the jury found that defts. had been induced to enter into the contract for purchase of the newspaper by fraud of the vendor, & had thereby sustained damage to the amount of £800. The judge on those findings gave judgment for defts. on the pltf.'s claim & judgment for defts. against the vendor for £800 damages upon the counterclaim, but stayed execution on the latter judgment:—Held: defts. could not set up the claim to £800 damages for the fraud of the vendor by way of defence against the claim of pltf., & pltf. was entitled to judgment against defts. for £800.—STODDART v. UNION TRUST, LTD., [1912] 1 K. In actions brought by C. & S. in the name of pltf. against defts. on the assigned debentures, defts. pleaded a set-off on the ground that calls on pltf.'s shares in their co. were due & unpaid :—Held : as pltf. & defts. must have contemplated the assignment of the debentures, as no assignment of them could practically be made if they were to remain subject to pltf.'s liabilities, & as defts. had in their dealings with C. & S. treated them as the substantial owners of the debentures, equity would restrain defts. from availing themselves of the plea of set-off.—HIGGS v. ASSAM TEA CO. After that the solrs. & their London agents applied for an order charging the fund with their costs in the action & in the arbn. :—Held : (1) the mere fact that the solrs. acted for D., as well as for pltf., in the matter of the mtge., did not disentitle them to priority ; (2) pltf.'s letter was a direction to the solrs. that money to come to their hands from the property was to be applied in the first place in paying D., & they having forwarded the letter to D. was bound by the direction, & could not set up a claim of their own in opposition to it, & were in no better position as to money in ct. than as to money which actually came to their hands, & their charge must be postponed to D.'s mtge.—MACFARLANE v. LISTER (1887), 37 Ch. 617. Whether effectual or complete—Assignment of expectancy—Operating only as agreement to assign.]—Testator bequeathed a sum of money to trustees in trust for his daughter for life, & in case she died without leaving issue, for her next of kin, exclusive of her husband. During the lifetime of the daughter, her mother, as presumptive next of kin, by a voluntary deed assigned her expectant interest in reversion to the husband:—Held: on the death of the daughter, without leaving issue, the assignment operated only as an agreement to assign, &, being voluntary, a Ct. of Equity would not enforce it.—MEEK v. KETTLEWELL (1843), 1 Ph. 342; 13 L. 618. —— —— Imperfect declaration of trust.]—(1) A covenant by a settlor to transfer, convey & assure property, if any, which he might thereafter acquire, if of a certain value, does not amount either to an imperfect declaration of trust, or to an incomplete assignment of the property, if any, which afterwards came to be acquired, upon which this ct. will operate.

W., by a post-nuptial settlement, in consideration of natural love & affection, & for divers other good causes & considerations, covenanted to transfer & convey & assure all property to which he might thereafter become entitled "at any time or times, by gift, descent, succession, or otherwise, from or through his mother," if of a certain amount in value at any one time, to trustees upon the trusts of that settlement. At the date of the settlement he was entitled to certain interests in remainder, subject to his mother's life interest. Afterwards he became entitled in reversion to another fund, subject to a life interest given to his mother. Lastly, his mother died, leaving him property by will:—Held: none of these funds were in equity affected by the trusts of the settlement by virtue of the covenant.

Qu.: whether any & which of such funds are comprised in the covenant at all.

(2) It is immaterial by what form of conveyancing, whether by assignment, declaration, &c., the equity of a fund be conveyed. Any of such modes, if anything be done that can be done, & if the intention be clear, will convey the equitable interest in the fund. But a covenant to convey the fund in a certain contingency will not, when that contingency arises, be held to amount to a conveyance of the equitable right.—WILKINSON v. WILKINSON (1857), 4 Jur. N. S. 47.

619. —— —— Mere spes successionis.]—The decision in Meek v. Kettlewell, No. 617, ante, has not been overruled by Kekewich v. Manning, No. 624, post.

A mere spes successionis is not capable of valid assignment & any purported assignment thereof operates only by way of covenant, which will not be enforced in favour of a volunteer.

L., having an expectation of succeeding by will or under intestacy to property belonging absolutely to her brother & sister respectively, executed a voluntary settlement, purporting to assign to trustees all the real & personal estate to which in the event of their respective deaths she might become entitled by will or under intestacy. On the death of the brother, intestate & a bachelor, L., an heiress-at-law & sole next of kin, obtained letters of administration to his estate:—Held: the trustees of the settlement could not compel her to hand over the property to them.—Re ELLENBOROUGH, TOWRY LAW v. BURNE, [1903] 1 Ch. 697; 72 L. 620. —— Assignment of insurance policy—Covenant for further assurance—No notice to grantor—Policy not delivered.]—(1) A trustee under a voluntary settlement of chattels, policy of assurance & mtge., filed a bill against the representatives of the settlor for the recovery thereof:—Held: if the property was legally vested in pltf., he might recover it at law & apply it on the trusts, but if otherwise, then as the deed was voluntary, the ct. could afford pltf. no assistance in recovering it.

(2) In the case of an imperfect voluntary deed, neither the assignor nor his exor. can be compelled to permit the assignee to use his name for the recovery of the debt.

(3) Held: neither a voluntary assignment by deed of a mtge. debt, accompanied by a grant, not specifying the particular estate, but of all estates held in mtge., & by a covenant for further assurance & without delivery of the mtge. deed or notice to the mtgor., nor the voluntary assignment of a policy of assurance retained in the hands of the assignor, & without notice given to the grantor, though accompanied by a covenant for further assurance, can be considered as a complete & effectual assignment, to be acted upon & enforced by the assignee, without any further or other act to be done by the assignor.—WARD v. AUDLAND (1845), 8 Beav. 201; 14 L. (2) It was the duty of the assignee, not of the assignor, to give notice to the office.

(3) The letter contained an undertaking by the assignor, which was not performed, to discharge the mtge.:—Held: the assignment could be given effect to independently of this undertaking. —Re KING, SEWELL v. KING (1879), 14 Ch. D. 179; 49 L. J. Ch. 73; 28 W. R. 344.

624. —— Assignment of equitable reversionary interest—Notice to tenant for life.]—Residuary estate, consisting of money in the funds, was bequeathed to a mother & daughter in trust for the mother for life & afterwards for the daughter absolutely. By a settlement made in contemplation of the daughter's marriage, the daughter assigned her interest under the will to trustees, upon trust for the issue of the intended marriage & for a niece of the daughter & the issue of the niece. The daughter's husband died soon after the marriage, of which there was no issue. The mother was not a party to the settlement, but had notice of it before the husband's death:—Held:

There was no consideration for the indorsement & delivery, but such indorsement & delivery were made by the payee with the intention of vesting in L. the beneficial interest in the money represented by the note. The payee died before the note fell due & bequeathed to one of the makers of the note all the moneys she should die possessed of or entitled to, & appointed him exor.

even if the settlement was voluntary as regards the trusts in favour of the niece, it was a complete alienation, so as to be capable of enforcement at the instance of the trustees of the settlement against the daughter, & the trustees of another settlement which she made upon a second marriage inconsistent with the former settlement.

Some consols belonging beneficially to A. for life, with remainder to B., stood in the names of two trustees, of the survivor of whom B. was the representative. Soon after the marriage D. died intestate, without having had a child :—Held : B., who had taken out administration to D., & possessed himself of her property, in which was included a reversionary interest, was entitled to it for his own benefit, no declaration of trust in favour of the next of kin having been created by this agreement to execute a future instrument.—POWNALL v. ANDERSON (1856), 2 Jur. L. held at the time a general power of attorney authorising him to transfer M.'s shares, & M., after the execution of the settlement, gave him a further power of attorney authorising him to receive the dividends on his shares in the bank. M. lived three years after the execution of the deed, during which period the dividends on the shares were received by L. & remitted by him to pltfs., sometimes directly & sometimes through M. :—Held : (1) as it was the intention of the settlor to constitute himself a trustee of the shares, but to vest the trust in L., there was no valid trust of the shares created in the settlor ; (2) no valid trust of the shares was created in L., for although he held a power of attorney under which he might have vested the shares in himself, he did not do so, & was not bound to do so without directions from the settlor, since he held the power only as agent for the settlor ; (3) the disposition of the shares failed, as being an imperfect voluntary gift.—MILROY v. LORD (1862), 4 De G. 636. —— Assignment of debts secured by bills of sale—No express assignment of bills of sale or chattels comprised therein—No notice to debtors.]—P. by a voluntary settlement assigned to trustees certain debts specified in the schedule thereto owing to him on the security of certain bills of sale in such schedule also specified, & all interest thereon respectively. He directed the trustees to get in the debts, & empowered them to do whatever was necessary for that purpose. The settlement contained no express assignment of either the bills of sale or the chattels comprised in them. No notice of the assignment was ever given to the debtors. P. died, having received from the debtors the debts in question :—Held : (1) the settlement amounted to a complete assignment of the debts, within the principle of Kekewich v. Manning (No. 624, ante) ; (2) the fact that notice of the assignment was not given to the debtors did not make the gift incomplete ; & the settlor's estate was liable to account to the trustees of the settlement for the amount of the debts that he had got in.

Qu. : whether the settlor could have been sued at law by the trustees on the ground of his having the fund, entitled to a sum of £431 out of the fund. The regulations prohibited the assignment, by any contributor, of his interest in the fund, save to the bank. By indenture dated Oct. 30, 1900, the testator purported, for natural love & affection, to assign his interest in the fund to pltfs. :—Held : the indenture was an incomplete disposition in favour of volunteers & could not be enforced.—VIZE v. FITZMAURICE (1905), 39 I. Part I.—Nature of a Club.

1. Not an association or partnership for making trade profits.]—(1) Clubs are not partnerships or associations within Joint Stock Cos. Winding-up Acts.

(2) No one can receive profit, in the sense of profit from trade, from a club (LORD ST. LEONARDS, C.).

(3) The law is now settled, that no member of a club is liable to a creditor, except so far as he has assented to the contract in respect of which such liability has arisen (LORD ST. LEONARDS, C.). —Re ST. JAMES' CLUB (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 383; 19 L. T. O. S. 307; 16 Jur. 1075; 42 E. R. 920, L. C.

2. ——.]—A society was formed in 1844 for the promotion of "moral & intellectual improvement by means of libraries for circulation & reference, newspapers & periodical publications, lectures, discussions, & classes for instruction & improvement in literature & the arts & sciences." The society consisted of life members who had subscribed £20, of shareholders & annual subscribers, & its property was vested in trustees. No trust deed was executed, & the society was not registered under Cos. Acts. A petition having been presented by shareholders, life members, & directors of the society for a winding up order:—Held: this was not a society which came within Joint Stock Cos. Acts.

This is a club, & cannot be wound up (KAY, J.). —Re BRISTOL ATHENÆUM (1889), 43 Ch. D. 236; 59 L. J. Ch. 116; 61 L. T. 795; 38 W. R. 396; 6 T. L. R. 83; 1 Meg. 452.

1 i. Not an association or partnership for making trade profits.]—The committee of management of an Italian band, not formed for the purposes of gain, sued the bandmaster for the recovery of band instruments & music:—Held: the instruments & music were the property of the band, which was not a partnership but a voluntary association governed by the law applicable to the ordinary unincorporated members' club.—DEMARCHI v. SPARTARI (1914), 27 W. 7 iii. —— —— —— ——.]—A cup was presented to the curling clubs of D. for competition as a trophy; these clubs, which were not incorporated, framed rules under which the cup was to become the property of the club winning the cup twice in succession. The cup was so won by A. club. At a meeting of that club, it was resolved by a majority of members present, to present the cup to M., who had been "skip" of the rink which obtained the highest score on the occasions on which the club had won the cup. In an action brought against M. by members of the club, who had objected to the presentation:—Held: (1) the cup was the joint property of all the individual field, at an annual rent & under an agreement between the club, by name, & the owner of the soil, a certain close, were present at a match played there by eleven members of the club with eleven members of the B. cricket club, at the invitation of the A. club. A part of the close was tabooed off, & only the players, of whom deft. was one, & pltf. was not one, were at liberty to go within that part. Pltf. went within that part to take the place of a player who was called away; & thereupon a dispute as to the manner in which pltf. had come to take a part in the game arose between him & deft., which ended in deft. removing pltf. by violence from the close:—Held: (1) an issue on the joint possession of the close by pltf. & deft. together with the other members of the A. club, was properly found for pltf.; (2) a plea of justification framed on a joint possession of the twenty-two members of the two clubs actually playing could not be supported, as the members of the B. club were on the close on invitation only, & not in the exercise of any right of possession in them.

Semble: a plea framed on the right to exclude pltf. from the part of the close tabooed off would have been an answer to the declaration.—HOLMES v. BAGGE (1853), 1 E. & B. 782; 22 L. J. Q. B. 301; 21 L. T. O. S. 256; 17 J. P. 631; 17 Jur. 1095; 118 E. R. 629.

Part II.—Jurisdiction of the Courts.

9. Interference with rules.] —Save for the due disposal & administration of property there is no authority in the cts. either of England or of Scotland to take cognisance of the rules of a voluntary society entered into merely for the regulation of its own affairs. But if funds are settled to be disposed of amongst members of a voluntary assocn., according to their rules & regulations, the ct. must necessarily take cognisance of these rules & regulations, for the purpose of satisfying itself as to who is entitled to the funds (LORD CRANWORTH).

A ct. of law will not interfere with the rules of a voluntary assocn. unless to protect some civil right or interest which is said to be infringed by their operation (LORD COLONSAY).—FORBES v. EDEN (1867), L. R. 1 Sc. & Div. 568, H. L.

10. When committee acts according to rules—Stock Exchange.]—By the rules of the Stock Exchange, the committee for general purposes have in each year the duty of admitting all such candidates & re-electing all such existing members as they may deem eligible for membership during the ensuing year:—Held: the rules giving authority to the committee form a contract binding upon every member, & in the absence of any evidence that the committee have acted dishonestly or unfairly their discretion is absolute & cannot be interfered with by the ct.

Semble: when a similar tribunal with like powers chooses to advance a reason for its action the ct. may inquire into the sufficiency of that reason.—CASSEL v. INGLIS, [1916] 2 Ch. 211; 85 L. J. Ch. 569; 114 L. T. 935; 32 T. L. R. 555.

11. —— ——.] —Under the rules of the Stock Exchange the committee for general purposes re-elect in Mar. such members as they deem eligible for the ensuing year. If, acting under this rule, they refuse to re-elect a member, & act fairly & honestly, & there is no evidence to show that they are actuated by mala fides, or that their procedure is contrary to law or natural justice, the ct. has no power to enquire into or interfere with the exercise of their discretion.

The exercise of such discretion by the committee is an ordinary act of management, & not a judicial or quasi-judicial act (SWINFEN EADY, L.J.).—WEINBERGER v. INGLIS (No. 2), [1918] 1 Ch. 517; 87 L. b. —— Incorporated—Whether proprietary—8 Edw. 7, c. 48, s. 14.]—A club, to encourage & promote billiards, was incorporated. The members were all shareholders in the capital stock of the club. Premises, whereon there were billiard tables, were leased by the club in T. Fees were paid by the members for games played on the billiard tables; such fees went into the club funds, & were used for paying the expenses of managing & carrying on the club. A police bye-law of T. passed pursuant to above sect. provided that a license should be taken out by every proprietary club, having in its possession or on its premises a billiard table; the club had no license for billiard tables:—Held: the club was not "proprietary" within above sect.—R. v. DOMINION BOWLING & ATHLETIC CLUB, LTD. 12 i. When right of property involved.]—A voluntary assocn. was formed "to promote & establish uniformity in commercial usages, & for the exchange of information of advantage to the members." An annual subscription was paid by the members "to defray expenses." Pltf., who had been a member of the assocn., brought suit for an injunction to restrain the committee from refusing to accept his subscription & from turning him out of the assocn. The only property possessed by the assocn. at the date of the suit was £35 being the balance of subscriptions over expenses:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, as the assocn. was a purely voluntary one, & no right to property was in question.—AMOS v. BRUNTON (1897), 18 N. & his position in that respect was similar to that of a member of a club :—Held : an injunction must be refused.

When a club was formed it was by means of the subscriptions of members which were expended in the purchase or hire of certain property, & each member had a right to use that property & had an interest in it. SUB-SECT. 2.—ALTERATION.

17. Whether authorised—Where rules contain no provision for alteration—Raising amount of annual subscription.]—A club which is governed by rules prescribing the amount of the annual subscription, but not containing any provision for the amendment or alteration thereof, cannot by a resolution passed by a majority of the members present at a general meeting raise the amount of the subscription so as to bind existing members, & the ct. will interfere by injunction to restrain the expulsion of a dissentient member for refusing to pay the increased subscription.—HARINGTON v. SENDALL, [1903] 1 Ch. 921 ; 72 L. J. Ch. 396 ; 88 L. T. 323 ; 19 T. L. R. 302 ; sub nom. HARRINGTON v. SENDALL, 51 W. R. 463 ; 47 Sol. Jo. 337.

18. —— To provide for expulsion of member—General meeting empowered to alter rules affecting "general interests" of club.]—(1) The ct. will not interfere against the decision of the members of a club professing to act under their rules, unless it can be shown either that the rules are contrary to natural justice, or that what has been done is contrary to the rules, or that there has been mala fides or malice in arriving at the decision.

(2) One of the rules of a club provided that a general meeting might alter any of the standing rules affecting the general interests of the club, provided this was done with certain formalities & by a certain majority :—Held : a rule providing for the expulsion of members who should be guilty of conduct injurious to the interests of the club was within the regulation, & could be validly passed by a general meeting.

One of the rules of a club provided that in case the conduct of any member should, in the opinion of the committee, be injurious to the character & interests of the club, the committee should be empowered to recommend such member to resign, & if he should not comply, the committee should then call a general meeting, & if a majority of two-thirds of the meeting agreed by ballot to the expulsion of such member, he should be expelled. Pltf., a member of the club, sent a pamphlet which reflected on the conduct of S., a gentleman in a high official position, also a member of the club, to S., at his official address, enclosed in an envelope on the outside of which was printed "Dishonourable Conduct of S." The committee being of opinion that this action was injurious to the character & interests of the club, called upon pltf.

PART III. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

c. Duty of members to conform to—Meeting summoned without proper notice.]—A rule provided that all meetings of the club should be called by advertisement, stating the business to be considered, published in a daily newspaper on not less than two different days, one of them bieng the day of the meeting & one at least ten days before such meeting. A meeting was held, notice of which was not given ten days before the day of meeting. B., a member of the club, was present at the meeting & questioned its legality on the ground that insufficient notice had been given. His objection was overruled by the chairman. No one was injured by reason of non-compliance with the rules. In an action by B. to have the proceedings of the meeting declared null & void : —Held : (1) the rules should have been followed ; (2) in the circumstances the application must be refused.—BRADY v. SOUTH AFRICAN TURF CLUB (1906), 16 C. PART III. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

f. Whether authorised — Where rules contain provision for alteration—Material alteration of constitution.]—T. Assocn. consisted of delegates representing clubs named in its constitution & other clubs complying with conditions therein specified. On payment of dues, a constituent club became entitled to representation for the current year. The assocn. had power to alter, vary, or suspend any part of the constitution & also to cancel, on the ground of improper conduct, a club's right to representation. Due notice was given of a motion, to be made at a special meeting, for the alteration in almost every particular of the assocn.'s constitution with respect to the representation of clubs. At the special meeting, an amendment was proposed which included the deletion of the name of B. club from the constitution. This amendment was carried. B. club claimed an injunction restraining the assocn. from acting on the amendment, on the ground that it was not passed in accordance with the constitution :—Held : the power to alter, vary, or suspend any part of the constitution extended to such alteration as would exclude a club, & was independent of the power to cancel for misconduct a club's right to representation.—JAMES v. AMOTT (1918), 14 Tas. for an explanation, which he refused to give. They then called on him to resign, & as he did not comply with their recommendation, they duly summoned a general meeting, at which a resolution was passed by the requisite majority expelling pltf. from the club:—Held: (3) the ct. would not interfere to restrain the committee from excluding pltf. from the club; (4) the fact that a decision is unreasonable may be strong evidence of malice but it is not conclusive, & may be rebutted by evidence of bona fides.—DAWKINS v. ANTROBUS (1881), 17 Ch. 19. —— To provide for readmission of member —Committee empowered to make bye-laws.]—(1) A club rule provided that all its concerns & arrangements for management should be conducted by a committee who should have all needful powers for its government, election of members, of additional committee members, & should be empowered to publish bye-laws as they deemed expedient. Other rules provided that the entrance fee should be subject to any modification by the committee; that proposed new members should be ballotted for, & their names posted for fourteen days. The committee passed a bye-law that retired members might be readmitted on payment of back subscriptions, & G. & others were readmitted not only without entrance fee, but without the other formalities prescribed by the rules:—Held: the bye-law was within the powers of the committee.

(2) A rule empowered a majority of two-thirds of the committee to expel any member whose conduct they deemed injurious to the character & interests of the club. Pltf., a member, had at a club meeting protested against G.'s readmission as being contrary to the rules, & designated the committee as a "pocket borough" & on another evening, Nov. 30, 1881, pltf. used the same term in the club-house, stating also that "the committee could propose & alter any rules they deemed fit." Some of pltf.'s remarks were made at the bar of the club. The committee by a majority of two-thirds passed a resolution that pltf.'s conduct on Nov. 30, 1881, & in the club generally, in publicly disparaging the committee before strangers & the club servants, was injurious to the character & interests of the club, & that pltf. be requested to resign. The majority included G. without whose vote it would not have been complete. Pltf. moved to restrain the committee from expelling him, alleging that the resolution was solely the result of ill-will towards him on the part of some of the committee, & particularly of G., & not of a bonâ fide regard for the interests of the club:—Held: there was nothing to show that the resolution of the committee was not bonâ fide, the reason given not being of itself evidence of malice, & the ct. would not interfere.—LAMBERT v. ADDISON (1882), 46 L. T. 20.

20. —— To discontinue one of several purposes of club—Express power to alter by resolution of prescribed majority—Alteration confined to management of concerns of club.]—The H. club was formed in 1868 with express powers to alter any of its rules by the resolution of a prescribed majority. The rules were accordingly altered from time to time, & the subsisting rule 2 read thus: "The club is instituted for the purpose of providing a ground for pigeon-shooting, polo, & other sports surrounded with such accessories & so situated as to render it an agreeable country resort." Rule 22 (b) gave a power to alter rules with the sanction of a majority of two-thirds of the members at the annual general meeting; rule 22 (c) confined the subjects which could be brought forward at any such annual general meeting to those which related to the management of the concerns of the club. Pigeon-shooting had been carried on at the club from its commencement down to 1905, prizes being given & competitions arranged by the committee. Polo & other sports had also been carried on for a shorter period. At a general meeting of the club held in May 1905, a resolution was passed by the requisite majority that as from Dec. 31, 1905, pigeon-shooting should be discontinued at the club. The minority brought an action against the trustees & committee for a declaration that the resolution was null & void, on the ground that it was not competent to the majority, under the guise of altering the rules of the club, to change its fundamental object:—Held: (1) no one of the objects in rule 2, was more a fundamental object of the club, in the sense that it could not be varied or excluded than any other mentioned in the rule; what had been done was within the power of altering the rules, & consequently no such declaration as was asked for ought to be made; (2) the general power of altering the rules contained in rule 22 (b) was not cut down by rule 22 (c).—THELLUSSON v. VALENTIA (VISCOUNT), [1907] 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. 21. Effect of—Binding if made bonâ fide.]—Where, in the case of a voluntary assocn. to provide for the support of such of the members as may become incapacitated for their work, there is a power to alter the rules of the assocn., such a power is primâ facie valid, &, if used bonâ fide, it has the effect of making all existing members bound by the altered rules, provided that the alteration does not go to the foundation of the association & is not incompatible with its fundamental object.—MORGAN v. DRISCOLL (1922), 38 T. g. Re-election — After insolvency — Discretion of committee.]—R., an ex-member of a club had, under a rule, on insolvency ipso facto ceased to be a member. The rule provided that the insolvent might be re-elected by the committee at their discretion without payment of entrance fee. R., on rehabilitation, applied to the committee for re-election. The committee replied that they were not prepared to exercise their discretion under the rule. The facts showed that the committee had acted bonâ fide, had not done anything contrary to natural justice, & their action was within the powers conferred by the rules:—Held: their discretion had been properly exercised.—RAINSFORD return for which they were entitled to legal assistance for the purposes of their trade & to some other benefits. By the rules the members incurred no obligation beyond the payment of their subscriptions. The rules contained no provision as to the retirement or expulsion of the members :—Held : (1) a member was entitled to retire at any time without any consent of the other members ; (2) on the receipt by the society of a letter from a member stating his wish to retire he at once ceased to be a member, without the necessity of the acceptance by the society of his resignation ; (3) he could not before acceptance withdraw his resignation ; (4) he could not become a member again without re-election —FINCH v. OAKE, [1896] 1 Ch. 409 ; 65 L. SUB-SECT. 2.—EXPULSION.

A. Must be in Accordance with Rules.

24. Power to expel after inquiry by committee —Inadequate inquiry—Meeting summoned without proper notice—Insufficient majority.]—The rules of a club provided that in case the conduct of any member should, in the opinion of the committee after inquiry, be injurious to the welfare & interests of the club, the committee should call upon him to resign, & in the event of his refusal to do so, should call a general meeting, which was to be called on giving a fortnight's notice at which it should be competent for the votes of two-thirds of those present to expel such member. The committee having called on pltf., a member of the club, to resign on the alleged ground that his conduct was injurious to its interests, pltf. having refused to do so, a general meeting was summoned by notices issued on Nov. 1 for Nov. 14, when 117 members were present of whom 115 voted, 77 in favour of a resolution for expelling pltf., & 38 against it. The resolution was declared to be carried :—Held : (1) the committee had acted without full inquiry & without giving pltf. notice of any definite charge ; (2) the general meeting was summoned without proper notice ; (3) the resolution was carried by an insufficient majority ; & (4) pltf. was entitled to an injunction to restrain the committee from interfering with the enjoyment by pltf. of the use & benefit of the club.—LABOUCHERE v. WHARNCLIFFE (EARL) (1879), 13 Ch. 25. —— One committee member not summoned—Notice insufficient as to objects of meeting.]—One of the rules of a ladies' proprietary club provided that if the conduct of any member should, in the opinion of the executive committee, be injurious to the character & interests of the club, the committee should have power to suspend the member from the use of the club & to recommend her to resign, & if she did not do so within a certain time, the committee should erase her name from the list of members, provided that no member could be so suspended or recommended to resign unless a resolution to that effect should have been passed by a certain majority of the members of the committee actually present at a meeting specially convened for the purpose. Acting under the rule the committee of deft. club recommended pltf., who was a member, to resign, &, as she did not do so, the committee erased her name from the list of members. The notice convening the meeting of the committee stated that the object of the meeting was "to report on & discuss the matter concerning [pltf.] & Mrs. L.," & it was sent to each member of the committee except one, who had previously intimated to the chairman that she would be unable to attend meetings of the committee. In an action for a declaration that pltf. was still a member of the club :—Held : (1) the omission to summon the absent member of the committee invalidated the proceedings of that body ; (2) that the notice did not state the object of the meeting with sufficient particularity.—YOUNG v. LADIES' IMPERIAL CLUB, [1920] 2 K. 26. Power to expel for infringing rules — No actual infringement of rules—Conduct prejudicial to club.]—The committee of a working man's club who, by the rules, are to enforce them with power to expel members for infringing them, subject to appeal from the decision of the committee to a special general meeting of the club, have no inherent jurisdiction to expel a member who has not actually infringed any of the rules, though guilty of conduct displeasing to the committee & prejudicial to the club in endeavouring to obtain a conviction against the club for a breach of the excise laws ; especially where no opportunity was given to the expelled member of appearing before the committee for the purpose of explaining his conduct.—FOSTER v. HARRISON, [1881] W. Further, it was provided that such notice should be deemed to have been served on the date on which it had been posted :—Held : (1) to entitle the committee to exercise the powers of expulsion, the notice must have been sent to the proper address of such member, or to an address given by such member to the secretary ; (2) on failure clearly to prove such posting, the decision of the committee might be upset & the member reinstated.—EHRLICH v. JOHANNESBURG TURF CLUB, [1903] T. 28. —— Member not guilty of fraud in connection with election.]—By the charter of the Saddlers' Co., the wardens & assistants were empowered to elect assistants from the freemen, & to remove any for ill conduct or other reasonable cause, & to make such bye-laws as should seem to them salutary & necessary for the good government of the body in general & its various officers ; no qualification for an assistant, beyond that of being a freeman, was imposed by the charter itself, but certain oaths were to be taken after election & before admission, & any election contrary to the directions or restrictions of the charter was declared void. An assistant was eligible to become warden, which was an office of trust, the holder of it having the custody & disposal of the corporate funds. A bye-law was duly made, that no person who has been bkpt., or become otherwise insolvent, should hereafter be admitted a member of the ct. of assistants, unless it be proved to the satisfaction of the ct. that such person, after his bkpcy. or insolvency, had paid his creditors in full, or should have established a fair & honourable character for the seven years subsequent. D., being otherwise qualified, but being in insolvent circumstances, & unable to pay his creditors 20*s.* in the pound, was elected an assistant, & after his election, of which he was not aware, but before his admission, he made to the agent of the wardens & assistants a statement, false to his own knowledge, that he was solvent ; he was then admitted, & exercised the office of assistant. D. was afterwards adjudged bkpt., & this & his false statement having come to the knowledge of the wardens & assistants, they, at a meeting duly held, but of which D. had no notice or knowledge, expelled him from the office. D., having obtained a mandamus to restore him, the above facts appeared on the record :—Held : (1) the bye-law was valid ; (2) its validity depended on the meaning of the words "or become otherwise insolvent," & these words must be construed to mean notorious or avowed insolvency, such as stopping payment or compounding with creditors, & not a mere inability of a person to pay his debts in full ; (3) as D. was admitted to the office of assistant without such fraud as rendered his admission void, he could not be legally removed without being heard in his defence, & he was entitled to a peremptory mandamus.—R. v. SADDLERS' CO. 29. —— Rule providing for expulsion.] —Pltf. was a member of a marine insurance assocn., & defts. were the committee of the society. The rules provided that the committee should have entire control of its affairs, & that if the committee should at any time deem the conduct of any member suspicious, or that such member was for any other reason unworthy of remaining in the society, they should have full power to exclude such member by directing the secretary to give such member notice in writing that the committee had excluded such member . . . & after the giving of such notice the member should be excluded, & have no claim to be responsible for or in respect of any loss or damage happening after such notice. Pltf. alleged that he was entitled to receive, &, but for the grievances thereinafter mentioned, would have received, from the funds of the society an indemnity for any loss or damage to his ship by the perils of the sea during his membership, & that defts., wrongfully, collusively, & improperly contriving to deprive pltf. of the benefit of such indemnity . . . did wrongfully, collusively, & improperly expel pltf. from the society, on the alleged ground that his conduct was, in the terms of the rule, suspicious, without any just, reasonable, or probable cause whatsoever for such expulsion, & without giving him any opportunity of being heard, & without in fact hearing pltf. or any person on his behalf in defence & vindication of his conduct. A few days after the expulsion, pltf.'s ship sustained damage, &, but for the expulsion, he would have been entitled to receive, & would have received a certain sum as indemnity for the damage, & by reason of his expulsion he lost the said sum :—Held : the declaration was bad ; (per KELLY, C.B. & AMPHLETT, B.) because as the committee had not heard pltf., nor given him an opportunity of being heard before them in his own defence, their act of expulsion was void, & he remained still a member of the society, & entitled to all his rights of membership, & had not suffered the damage alleged ; (per CLEASBY, B.)

29 ii. —— ——.]—The rules of a club provided for the expulsion of a member who, after having been given every facility to be heard in self-defence before the committee, should be found guilty of improper & ungentlemanly conduct. A member was informed by the committee that an inquiry was to be made into allegations made against his conduct in book-making transactions & he was called upon to appear & give evidence at such inquiry. He appeared & gave evidence. No specific charge was made against him, & he was never called upon to defend himself. After the inquiry he was expelled from the club :—Held : the committee in expelling him had violated the provisions of the rules of the club & the elementary principles of justice.—GOLDMAN v. JOHANNESBURG CLUB, [1904] T. 32. —— —— ——.]—Pltf. claimed a declaration that a resolution expelling him from a club of which he was a member was null & void, & also an injunction restraining the defts. as members of the committee from interfering with him as a member of the club:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the declaration & injunction claimed inasmuch as no notice was given to him of the charge preferred against him & upon which defts. purported to act in expelling him, &, therefore, his expulsion was in those circumstances contrary to natural justice. —GRAY v. ALLISON (1909), 25 T. L. R. 531.

33. —— —— ——.]—Pltf. claimed an injunction restraining defts., representing the committee of a club to which pltf. belonged, from interfering with his enjoyment of the use & benefit of the club. The committee had passed a resolution, in accordance with one of the rules, recommending pltf. to send in his resignation, which, if not complied with, would have been followed up by his expulsion, owing to his alleged disregard of the rules of the club:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the injunction claimed as he had had no notice of the real reasons upon which the committee had acted in coming to the resolution in question, & thus had no opportunity of being heard thereon.—D'ARCY v. ADAMSON (1913), 29 T. L. R. 367; 57 Sol. Jo. 391.

34. —— —— Notice not delivered through members' own negligence—Charter providing for expulsion.]—By a clause in the charter of an institute it was provided that if any person while he was a member of the institute failed to pay any subscription for six months after the same had become due he should be liable to be excluded from membership by a resolution of the council passed at a meeting specially convened for that purpose, the member having first had an opportunity of being heard, & that notice of such exclusion should be sent to the person affected thereby. In 1903, pltf., who was a member of the institute, failed through oversight to pay his annual subscription which fell due in Jan. of that year. Notices were in Sept. 1903 & on a subsequent occasion given to pltf. by letters sent through the post to pltf.'s address as registered in the books of the institute, calling attention to such failure. These letters were, however, returned through the Dead Letter Office as pltf. had changed his address but he had omitted to give information to the institute or to the Post Office of such change. In Oct. 1903, the council of the institute passed a resolution excluding the pltf. from membership:—Held: (1) pltf. had solely by reason of his own negligence not received notice of the proposed meeting of the council at which he was to be excluded from membership; (2) communication through the Post Office must have been within the contemplation of the parties in respect to all matters regulating their contractual rights; (3) there was nothing more that the council were bound to do in order to give pltf. an opportunity of being heard.—JAMES v. CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS INSTITUTE (1907), 98 L. 35. What constitutes unfair proceedings.]—L., a fellow of the Chartered Institute of Patent Agents, brought an action against the Institute for a declaration that certain resolutions passed by the council to the effect that L. had been guilty of acts discreditable to a patent agent & that he should be excluded from membership of the Institute were invalid & ultra vires, & that the Institute should be restrained from acting thereon. An application had been made by the council to the Board of Trade for erasure of L.'s name from the register of members on the ground of professional misconduct, but this failed. Subsequently the council called upon L. to show cause at a meeting of the council why he should not be excluded or suspended. L. attended the meeting meeting might hold an inquiry, inflict a limited punishment after such inquiry, & were then to make a report & transmit the records of the inquiry to the Jockey Club, who might inflict a further punishment, e.g. warning off. In an action against the club:—Held: (1) the club might act on the records of the inquiry held by the stewards of the race meeting without themselves conducting a further inquiry into the same circumstances; (2) if a distinct charge is made, & the person charged has an opportunity of meeting it, the requirements of natural justice are satisfied. It is not a principle of natural justice that the person charged should be present during the whole of such inquiries, or that he should have the right to cross-examine.—JOHNSON v. JOCKEY CLUB OF SOUTH AFRICA, [1910] W. & objected to the jurisdiction of the council, in so far as it was composed of members who had taken any active or substantial part in the previous proceedings, to adjudicate. An adjournment was asked for, & refused. L. thereupon withdrew, & after his departure the council passed the resolutions in question:—Held: (1) the conduct of the council in preferring & supporting the charges against L. made before the Board of Trade would be calculated to raise grave doubts of their ability to conduct with impartiality a judicial investigation into the truth of the same charges; (2) the resolutions complained of were invalid & ultra vires on the ground that the council as then constituted, had no jurisdiction to adjudicate on the matters on which the resolutions were passed; (3) L. was entitled to judgment in the action.—LAW v. CHARTERED INSTITUTE OF PATENT AGENTS, [1919] 2 Ch. 276; 88 L. C. Must be Bonâ Fide.

36. Committee must act bonâ fide—For general interest of members.]—Where a member is expelled from a club the governing body must act with an honest & bonâ fide desire for the general interests of the members, & not from any indirect or sinister motive or spiteful animus against the member expelled.—TANTUSSI v. MOLLI (1886), 2 T. L. R. 731.

37. —— Whether their opinion just or unjust immaterial.]—When the committee of a club have power to expel any member whose conduct is in their opinion injurious to the interests of the club, & they exercise this power, all that is required is that the committee should form their opinion in a bonâ fide way, & the question whether their opinion is just or unjust is immaterial.

Two members of a club concerting together returned to a third member a number of circulars issued by him, sending them back in unpaid envelopes addressed in an annoying way; & one of the two members also sent one of the circulars, unpaid, to the committee of another club, to which the third member also belonged, & put the third member's initials outside the envelope. The third member complained to the committee of the club, charging one of the two members with the whole offence, & describing the last mentioned act as "forging his initials for an unworthy purpose." The committee having ascertained that the individual charged had only sent half the circulars to complainant, & that the envelope bearing the complainant's initials was not sent by him nor with his express knowledge, expelled complainant from the club. The expelled member filed a bill & moved for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the committee from enforcing their sentence:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to interfere.—RICHARDSON-GARDNER v. FREMANTLE (1870), 24 L. D. Interference by Court to Prevent.

38. General rule—Foundation of jurisdiction—Must be right of property involved.]—The foundation of the jurisdiction of a ct. of equity to interfere in the case of a society or club on the expulsion of a member is the invasion of some right of property in the member, & therefore if the society or club has no property, the ct. cannot interfere. Such right of property must be alleged in the statement of claim, as otherwise it will be demurrable.—RIGBY v. CONNOL (1880), 14 Ch. D. 482; 49 L. J. Ch. 328; 42 L. T. 139; 28 W. R. 650.

39. —— —— —— Members' clubs & proprietary clubs distinguished.]—(1) The jurisdiction of the ct. to interfere in the case of a club on the expulsion of a member is based upon the right of property vested in the member.

(2) In the case of an ordinarily constituted club, in which members have rights of property, a member whose rights have been interfered with by the committee is entitled to ask the ct. to consider whether the rules of the club have been observed; whether anything has been done which is contrary to natural justice; & whether the decision complained of has been come to bonâ fide.

SUB-SECT. 2.—INDEMNITY TO COMMITTEE OR TRUSTEES.

56. Indemnity for committee or trustees — Right of contribution inter se—Assent to & ratification of act of committee.]—A. & B. & twenty-four other persons were members of the committee of management of a club. The club being in debt, a resolution was passed at a general meeting of the club, at which B. was not present, on June 1, 1852, to the effect that a loan of £4,000 was necessary to free the society from outstanding liabilities, & that the committee be empowered to raise that sum on the guarantee of the society. At a meeting of the committee on June 15, at which B. was present, the above resolution was discussed; &, at a second general meeting of the society, held on the same day, the resolution for the loan was confirmed. At a meeting of the committee on Aug. 3, at which B. was not present, the terms of a loan of £4,000 from the C. Bank were arranged, & the money was placed to the credit of the club on the 5th, their account being at the same time transferred from another bank to the C. Bank. On Aug. 12, the signatures of B. & of certain other members of the committee who were authorised to sign cheques on behalf of the club, were transmitted to the C. Bank; & various cheques were afterwards drawn by B. & other members of the committee upon the C. Bank, for the current expenses of the club. An action having been brought by the C. Bank against A., to recover the balance due to them from the club, & judgment having been recovered therein against A. for a large sum, which he had paid:—Held: (1) there being evidence of his previous assent to, & subsequent ratification of, the act of the committee in obtaining the loan, B. was liable to contribution; (2) the proceedings at the meetings at which he was not present were admissible in evidence against him in an action brought by A. to enforce such contribution.—MOUNTCASHELL (EARL) v. BARBER (1853), 14 C. SUB-SECT. 3.—PAYMENT OF GRATUITY OR PENSION TO RETIRING OFFICIAL.

60. Rule forbidding payment out of funds to members—Income & property to be applied towards promotion of objects of club—Payment to retired secretary—Settlement of action—In interests of club.]—The memorandum of assocn. of a co., which was incorporated under the Companies Acts, but not for the purposes of gain, provided that the income & property of the club, whencesoever derived, should be applied solely towards the promotion of the objects of the club, as set forth in the memorandum of assocn., & no portion thereof should be paid or transferred, directly or indirectly, by way of dividend, bonus, or otherwise howsoever by way of profit, to the members of the club, provided that nothing therein contained should prevent the payment in good faith of remuneration to any officer or servant of the club, or to any member of the club or other person, in return for any services actually rendered to the club. The secretary of the club received a salary of £500 a year, & his employment was determinable on three months' notice. He tendered his resignation as secretary, which was accepted by the council of the club, who passed a resolution that he should be paid £125, three months' salary, less £60 alleged to be due from him to the club. This resolution was rescinded at a meeting of the club. The secretary having brought an action against the club to recover £125, the new council of the club, upon the recommendation of the finance committee, with the view of putting an end to the action, passed a resolution to pay him £125, m. Election — Member of committee.]—Candidates for the committee of a club required nomination in writing except when members of the retiring committee. S. had not been nominated in writing & it was alleged that he had ceased to be a member of the retiring committee, by reason of absence from four consecutive meetings without leave; in the minutes there was no entry showing that leave had been granted:—Held: (1) the absence of such entry was not fatal, seeing that leave in fact had been granted; (2) the committee could give leave of absence although L. had not applied for it.—LANGERMAN v. SOUTH AFRICAN TURF CLUB (1908), 18 C. T. R. 253.—S. AF.

n. Expulsion — Rules not declaring in whom power to expel vests.]—The rules of a club in which the members had a proprietary interest provided that a member might be expelled for "conduct detrimental to the interests of the club," but did not say in whom the power of expulsion was vested. The committee had vested in it alone the power of admission of members, as well as the management of the club, & a power of putting a veto on persons proposed to be added as committeemen:—Held: the committee had the power to expel a member.—BARNARD v. PURVES (1885), 11 V. o. Turf club — Committee hearing appeals from racing clubs—Duty to act judicially.]—The proceedings of the committee of W. Although the committee, in the exercise of its powers as an appellate tribunal, is not a legal ct., it acts in a similar capacity, & is bound to act in such manner as a recognised ct. of justice would act.—THOMAS v. HAYWARD (1907), 9 W. p. Indemnity for committee or trustees—Authority given to committee to raise money for club purposes—Guarantee of individual members of committee—Lien on club property.]—At a general meeting of the members of a club a resolution was passed authorising the managing committee to raise money for the purpose of improving & adding to the buildings of the club-house, & of providing necessary fittings & furniture therefor; the committee, being unable to raise the money by a mtge. of the club property, raised it on the guarantee of individual members of the committee; the members of the club enjoyed the advantages of the improvements made & the furniture bought. The individual members of the committee had personally to pay the amount raised:—Held: they had a lien on the club premises so added to & improved, & on the furniture & all other property of the club acquired or purchased by the money advanced by them.—MINNITT v. TALBOT DE MALAHIDE (LORD) (1881), 7 L. L. R. 581.

61. —— —— Grant of pension to retired secretary—In furtherance of objects of club.]—A club formed to encourage cycling, protect the rights of cyclists, & provide for the comfort of its members (who numbered 20,000) while touring, was registered with limited liability, as an assocn. not for profit, under Companies Act, 1867 (c. 131), s. 23. The Board of Trade licence, dispensing with the word "limited" in the title, was given on a condition, embodied in the memorandum of assocn., that the income should be applied solely towards the promotion of the co.'s objects, & no portion redistributed as profit to the members, but there was a proviso allowing the payment in good faith of remuneration to officers or servants or to any member in return for services actually rendered. The secretary, whose duties were multifarious & required considerable ability, had retired & been paid all salary due to him, but he remained a member of the club. A proposal to grant him a pension was passed by a majority on a general poll of the members:—Held: it was important to the club to be able, by generous treatment of old servants, to attract the best assistance, & therefore the payment of a pension for long & faithful service was within the powers of the club as being in furtherance of its objects & within the proviso, & none the less that it was gratuitous & there was no legal obligation to make it.—CYCLISTS' TOURING CLUB v. HOPKINSON, [1910] 1 Ch. 179; 79 L. SUB-SECT. 4.—DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY.

62. On sale of property—No provision in rules.]—Upon the sale of land belonging to a co. of the nature of a voluntary society, with no rules or provisions as to the disposition of its property:—Held: the members of the co. for the time being were entitled to divide the proceeds in equal shares.—BROWN v. DALE (1878), 9 Ch. Part IV.—Liability of Clubs and Members.

SECT. 1.—IN CONTRACT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—UNINCORPORATED MEMBERS' CLUBS.

63. General rule—Members not liable beyond subscriptions.]—(1) An ordinary club is formed upon the tacit understanding, judicially recognised, that no member as such becomes liable to pay to its funds or otherwise any money beyond the subscriptions required by its rules.

(2) Trustees of a club who have incurred liability under onerous covenants contained in a lease, accepted by them on its behalf, are entitled to indemnity out of any property of the club to which their lien as trustees extends. (3) Its members are not, by reason only of being cestuis que trust, personally liable to indemnify them, where there is no rule imposing such liability upon them.

(4) Clubs are assocns. of a peculiar nature. They are societies the members of which are perpetually changing. They are not partnerships; they are not assocns. for gain (LORD LINDLEY).—WISE v. PERPETUAL TRUSTEE CO., [1903] A. C. 139; 72 L. J. P. C. 31; 87 L. T. 569; 51 W. R. 241; 19 T. L. R. 125, P. C.

64. Member—Goods ordered by one member on behalf of club—Concurring in or subsequent assent to order.]—Where goods are ordered by one member of a club for the benefit of all, every member, who either concurs in the order or subsequently assents to it, is liable, although the member who ordered the goods is made the debtor in pltf.'s books & the bill is sent to him, unless it clearly appear that pltf. meant to give credit to that member only.—DELAUNEY v. STRICKLAND (1818), 2 Stark. 416, N. 65. —— Contract made by committee—Committee not authorised to pledge members' personal credit.]—A club was formed subject to the following among other rules, viz. that the entrance fee on admission should be ten guineas, & the annual subscription five guineas; that if the subscription were not paid within a certain limited period, the defaulter should cease to be a member; that there should be a committee to manage the affairs of the club, to be chosen at a general meeting; & that all members should discharge their club bills daily, the steward being authorised, in default of payment on request, to refuse to continue to supply them:—Held: (1) the members of the club, merely as such, were not liable for debts incurred by the committee for work done or goods supplied for the use of the club, for the committee had no authority to pledge the personal credit of the members; (2) a member who had been nominated on the committee, but had never accepted his nomination, nor acted on the committee, was not liable to be sued by tradesmen for goods supplied to the club.—FLEMYNG v. HECTOR (1836), 2 M. & W. 172; 2 Gale, 180; 6 L. 67. —— Expenses incurred by member in professional capacity—Rules providing for indemnity to member wishing to resign.]—(1) A solr. was a member of a club, & ex officio member of the committee. He was employed by a resolution of the committee to take proceedings in Chancery for winding up the affairs of the club:—Held: he was entitled to sue a member of the committee by whom he was employed, to recover the amount of his bill for such business.

(2) By a resolution of the members of a club it was resolved, that the members should pay £60 down, or an annual subscription of £10, & that an indemnity should be given to members paying £60, wishing to resign:—Held: members paying the £60 were notwithstanding liable to a member of the club for expenses incurred by him, pursuant to a resolution employing him professionally to do business for the club to which they were parties. —LEE v. BISSETT (1856), 26 L. T. O. S. 204; 4 W. R. 233.

68. —— Contract entered into by secretary—Secretary authorised to contract on credit.]—By the rules of a coal-club (duly certified), provision was made for the appointment of a chairman, secretary, & treasurer, the latter of whom was to receive all moneys taken by the secretary, & to pay the coal-merchant as soon after every delivery of coals as he should receive an order signed by the secretary & chairman. It was then provided that certain weekly payments should be made by the members to the secretary, who were to be entitled at the end of twelve weeks to receive half a ton of coals for each share held by them. It was further provided that the secretary should, on the requisition of the members present at a meeting, apply for tenders to such coal-merchants as they should direct; that, when a tender was accepted at the following meeting, the secretary should agree with the merchant for the required supply, the coals to be paid for "on the next Thursday night after each delivery, by an order on the treasurer, signed by the secretary & chairman." Pltf. having tendered to supply the club with about 100 tons of coals, at 23*s.* per ton, the secretary prepared an agreement for "100 tons, more or less," at that price, which was signed by himself & pltf., but, through the default of the secretary, there were not sufficient funds in the treasurers' hands to pay for them:—Held: (1) the secretary was the mere servant of the general body, & must be taken to have acted in that capacity in giving the order for the coals; (2) as the club never parted with their control over the money in the hands of the treasurer, or authorised the secretary to expend it, but gave him authority to order the coals for them, & did not furnish him with funds to pay for them, but authorised a contract on credit, the contract so made must be taken to have been made on their credit, & consequently deft., as a member of the club, was liable.—COCKERELL v. AUCOMPTE (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 440; 26 L. J. C. P. 194; 3 Jur. N. S. 844; 5 W. R. 633; 140 E. R. 489.

69. —— Liability for contribution—Resolution passed at general meeting—At which member present.]—A resolution carried at a general meeting of a club does not create such an obligation as to give a right of action for contribution against a member present at that meeting.—MOUNTCASHELL v. ROBERTSON (undated), cited in 16 Jur. 1077.

70. —— Goods supplied to club as whole—Personal credit not pledged.] — An individual member of a club, or a member of the committee of management, not having in any way pledged his personal credit, is not personally liable for goods ordered for & supplied to the club as a whole.

72. —— —— —— On order of mess secretary—Liability of commanding officer.]—Pltf. supplied goods to the officers' mess of a brigade of which deft. was at the time the commanding officer, the orders for the goods being given by the secretary of the mess committee. Pltf. sued deft. for the price, alleging that under the King's Regulations deft. was liable or that he was liable as principal for the acts of the mess secretary:—Held: (1) the Regulations did not create any liability between the commanding officer & tradesmen; (2) as deft. neither gave nor authorised the orders & pltf. did not give deft. credit, the action failed.—LASCELLES v. RATHBUN (1919), 35 T. 73. Committeeman — On contract made by him—In own name.]—A. B. & C. on behalf of themselves & other members of a club, entered into articles with D. to provide necessaries for the use & accommodation of the Club:—Held: they were personally bound by such articles, & D. was not obliged to resort to any of the other members for satisfaction of his demands.—QUEENSBURY (DUKE) v. CULLEN (1787), 1 Bro. 74. —— Goods ordered by member of committee for use of club.]—A club was formed, by the regulations of which the members paid entrance-money & an annual subscription, & cash was paid for provisions supplied to the house. The funds of the club were deposited at a banker's, & a committee was appointed to manage the affairs of the club & to administer the funds, but no member of the committee had authority to draw cheques, except three who were chosen for that purpose, whose signatures were countersigned by the secretary. In an action brought against two of the committee by a tradesman who had supplied wine on credit, ordered by a member of the committee for the use of the club:—Held: the tradesman was not entitled to recover, without proving either that defts. were privy to the contract, or that the dealing on credit was in furtherance of the common object & purposes of the club.—TODD v. EMLY (1841), 7 M. & W. 427; H. & W. 144; 10 L. was proved that the wine was ordered by the house-steward, who stated that he had authority to do so from the members of the committee. It was not shown that defts. had either personally interfered in ordering the wine, or been present at any meeting of the committee when the authority to order the wine was given, but merely that they were members of the general body of the committee:—Held: in these circumstances, the question for the jury was not, whether defts., by their course of dealing, had held themselves out as personally responsible to pltf., but whether they had individually authorised the making of the contract in the ordering of the wine.—TODD v. EMLY (1841), 8 M. & W. 505; 10 L. It was clear that mere membership of the committee would not make deft. liable, & the fact that he acted on the committee did not make him liable for goods which were ordered when he was not present. The rules said that the sub-committee had delegated to them the functions of the general committee, & there was no evidence to show that deft. took part in this particular matter, or in the current finance of the club. The mere fact of joining in the appointment of the sub-committee under the rules of the club was not sufficient evidence to fix deft. with liability (WRIGHT, J.).—DRAPER v. MANVERS (EARL) (1892), 9 T. 84. Distress for rent—On members' property on club premises—Club for social purposes & for exhibiting pictures with view to sale.]—Pltf. was the proprietor of the U. Club & was tenant of the premises under an agreement by which the premises were sub-demised to him by the lessee of defts. Pltf. undertook all the liabilities of the club, & received all the profits. The club was not formed for social purposes alone, but for the further purpose of selling pictures which were the bonâ fide work & property of members of the club, a large proportion of the members being artists. Pltf. received a commission of 10 per cent. on these sales. The sales were effected by periodical exhibitions of paintings, when the pictures were hung on the walls of the club, & could be viewed by a limited section of the public, principally composed of guests introduced by the members. No rent due from pltf. was ever in arrear, but, as some rent was owing from his lessor to defts., defts. during one of the exhibitions, levied a distress for rent, & seized all the pictures. Pltf. then moved to restrain defts. from proceeding with the distress, on the ground that the pictures had been delivered to him to be managed by him on the premises in the way of trade, & that they were wholly exempt from the right of distress. The rules of the club provided (inter alia) for the election of a committee, of which pltf. was ex officio a member, in whom the general management of the club was vested, & of a picture committee in whom the entire management of the pictures & their exhibition was vested:—Held: under the rules the trade or business of pltf. was that of a club proprietor, & not that of a picture dealer; he did not "manage" the pictures in any sense of the word; & the pictures were not exempt from the distress.—CHALLONER v. ROBINSON, [1908] 1 Ch. 49; 77 L. 86. Committeeman—On contract made by him—Trade protection society.]—A trade protection society, for supplying members with lists of bkpts. & other persons, consisted of members paying an annual sum, payable in advance, & was managed by a committee of members. By one of the rules the committee had the power of appointing & dismissing the printer, who was to be a member of the society, & had the care of defraying the expenses, & applying & disposing of the funds of the society:—Held: the printer could recover the price of goods furnished by him for the society from a committeeman who had ordered them, as the rules created no partnership, & the printer was not bound to look to the funds of the society for payment.—CALDICOTT v. GRIFFITHS (1853), 8 Exch. 898; 23 L. 87. —— For remuneration of association's secretary—Agreement by secretary to look to funds of association.]—By the rules & regulations of an unincorporated assocn. called "The International Shipowners Protection Association," it was provided (inter alia) that the affairs of the assocn. should be managed by a committee who might be chosen from others than members of the assocn., & that each member of the assocn. should, on entrance, pay a certain entrance fee, & also an annual subscription during membership for each vessel entered, & that, in the event of the funds of the assocn. not being sufficient to meet its liabilities, the committee should have power, after one hundred vessels at least should have been entered, to make calls upon the members of the assocn. in proportion to their interest. Pltf. was appointed secretary to the assocn. at a yearly salary of £150 & a certain commission on the business done, & by the written agreement, under which he was appointed, he "exonerated & indemnified the present or future managing committee from all liability in respect of his salary, & agreed to hold the assocn., subject to the rules & regulations, alone responsible for it." The assocn. was dissolved at the end of the first year of its existence, one hundred vessels never having been entered, & in an action by pltf. against deft., a member of the assocn. & of the committee, to recover his salary, commission, & disbursements:—Held: (1) as by the agreement pltf. had agreed to look to the funds of the assocn. for payment of his salary, & to exonerate the individual members therefrom, he could not recover in the action against deft.; (2) (WILLES, J.) it was only in the event of the funds failing that members were to be called upon in proportion to their shares, but the action in question was brought, not by way of contribution, but to make deft. solely liable for the whole amount.—DE VRIES v. CORNER (1865), 13 L. T. 636; 14 W. R. 262.

88. President of committee—On contract made by committee—Non-member acting as chairman.]—Deft., president of a society of ladies working for charitable purposes, was sued for the rent of a hall which had been let to the society for the purpose of a bazaar & fête. During the negotiations for the hire of the hall, deft. was abroad & her son, who was acting for her but was not a member of the society, occupied the chair at a meeting which passed a resolution accepting an offer to organise the fête & guaranteeing £200 towards expenses. There was considerable conflict of testimony as to whether deft.'s son knew the terms of the hiring agreement, which only professed to bind the members of the society, before the fête was held. The jury having found for pltfs. for the amount claimed:—Held: as deft. & her friends by her invitation had had the use of the hall & she knew it would have to be paid for, deft.'s conduct was sufficient to render her liable on a quantum meruit & the verdict against her must be upheld.—ROYAL ALBERT-HALL CORPN. v. WINCHILSEA (1891), 7 T. w. Jockey club—Improper practices in connection with racing—Disqualification by stewards.]—The stewards of R. Jockey Club held an inquiry into alleged improper practices of pltf. in connection with racing, & disqualified him. Pltf. brought an action against the club & its stewards & members, claiming a declaration that the disqualification was illegal & an injunction restraining action thereon, & damages. On the facts:—Held: (1) pltf. was entitled to a declaration that the decision of the stewards appointed by the club was invalid; (2) an injunction should be granted restraining the club, its stewards, committee, & members from acting upon or advertising the disqualification.—O'MALLEY v. DAWBARN, [1919] St. R. Nuisances caused by carrying on club—Injunction to restrain.]—Nuisances were caused at a proprietary club in L., first, by the assembling in the street of noisy crowds, which were attracted thither by boxing contests frequently held within the club itself late at night; secondly, by continual whistling for cabs outside the club late at night & early in the morning, & the noise of cabs answering the whistles. The nuisances had disturbed the rest of the other residents in the street, & had diminished the letting value of pltf.'s premises. In an action by the freeholders, lessees & tenants of a neighbouring house:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to an injunction to restrain the proprietor of the club from carrying it on so as to cause a nuisance to pltfs., first, by cabs or carriages driving to or leaving the club premises, & the whistling for carriages or cabs to the club between midnight & 7 a.m., & secondly, by any crowd caused to be assembled by the boxing contests held at the club premises.—BELLAMY v. WELLS (1890), 60 L. 91. —— —— Dishonest servant engaged—Theft of member's property.]—Pltf., who was a member of a residential club, of which defts. were the proprietors, gave the manager certain jewelry to lock up in a safe in the manager's office. The rules provided that no claim in respect of any property alleged to have been left or lost in the club-house would be entertained, & neither the club nor the proprietors would be responsible for any article of value so left or lost in the club, but small articles of value might, on application to the secretary, be deposited in the safe, but neither the club nor the proprietors would be under any liability in respect of such deposits. The jewelry was stolen from the safe by the night porter employed by defts., who before employing him had obtained references from two persons by whom he had been employed, but apparently had made no inquiry as to his previous career. After the theft it was discovered that he was an old & dangerous criminal:—Held: defts. had not used due care in engaging the night porter, & as the above rule did not negative defts.' liability for damage due to their neglect to take such care, they were liable for the loss.—WILLIAMS v. CURZON SYNDICATE, LTD. On the head lease being forfeited for breach of covenant, the society brought an action for an order vesting the residue of the term of the underlease in them under Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1892 (c. 13), s. 4. The writ was subsequently amended by making three persons who were trustees of the society sue on behalf of all the members of the society:—Held: pltfs. were not underlessees within the meaning of the sect. & were not entitled to sue as trustees or at all.—JARROTT v. ACKERLEY (1915), 85 L. 106. On "annual value, income or profits of the property"—Whether club exempt—"Funds voluntarily contributed"—Entrance fees & subscriptions.]—(1) Exemption was claimed by a members' club, the property of which was vested in trustees, & which had been established less than thirty years, from the duty imposed on the annual value, income, or profits of bodies corporate & unincorporate by Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1885 (c. 51), s. 11, on the ground that the property of the club was "property acquired by or with funds voluntarily contributed" within thirty years preceding, within the 6th exemption in that sect. By the rules of the club every member on admission paid an entrance fee & the annual subscription for the current year, & until payment was not admitted to any of the benefits or privileges of the club, & payment was considered as a declaration of submission to the rules; an annual subscription was payable on Jan. 1 in each year, & if it was not paid on or before Mar. 1, the member's name was erased from the list of members, & a member intending to withdraw from the club had to give notice on or before Jan. 1, or otherwise was liable to pay his subscription for the current year:—Held: as the entrance fees & subscriptions were paid by members in consideration of the right to enjoy the benefits & privileges of the club, they were not "funds voluntarily contributed" to the club, & duty was payable on property acquired with money so paid.

(2) The writ in this case was directed to the secretary of the club, who entered an appearance.

(3) I would not be understood to lay down as a general rule that a member may be sued for his subscription, for much must depend upon the rules of each particular club, & I am not prepared to say that the entrance fee & first year's subscription could be sued for at all, for an elected member has an option to accept or refuse the membership offered him; but once fully admitted as a member, I see no reason why he should not be bound to fulfil all the obligations imposed upon him by the rules, to which he has given his submission as part of the consideration for the benefits he has acquired a right, so long as he continues a member, to enjoy (HAWKINS, J.).—Re DUTY ON ESTATE OF NEW UNIVERSITY CLUB (1887), 18 Q. Their receipts included large sums in respect of gate-money & other payments received from persons admitted to view the cricket matches played on the ground. The club was carried on at a profit:—Held: (1) the gate-money & other payments received from the public were not "annual value, income, or profits of the property" within Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1885, s. 11; (2) the annual value of the real property should be arrived at in the same way as upon an assessment of annual value made for the purposes of the property tax under Income Tax Act, 1853 (c. 34), Sched. A., & the club were entitled to include the estimated cost of repairs as a permissible deduction from that annual value.—Re SURREY COUNTY CRICKET CLUB, [1901] 2 K. B. 400; 70 L. J. K. B. 823; 85 L. The club was not licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquors, but these were supplied, at fixed prices, to members for consumption on & off the premises, 33 per cent. above the cost price being charged for liquors to be consumed off the premises, & the money produced thereby going to the general funds of the club. Applt. having, in the course of his employment as manager, supplied intoxicating liquors to a member, who paid for them, for consumption off the premises:—Held: applt. did not "sell by retail" intoxicating liquors within Licensing Act, 1872 (c. 94), s. 3, & was not liable to conviction for an offence under the sect.—GRAFF v. EVANS (1882), 8 Q. 110. —— —— —— Distribution off club premises.]—The committee of a registered club decided to hold a supper & smoking concert for the members, &, as the accommodation at the club premises was limited, it was arranged that the entertainment should be held at a school some distance from the club premises. On the date arranged a supply of intoxicating liquor belonging to the club was taken by members from the club premises to the school, & during the evening was served by applts., who were members of the club, to their fellow members on payment of the tariff. Only members of the club were supplied with liquor. Applts. were summoned under Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (c. 24), s. 65, & convicted for having sold intoxicating liquor by retail at the school which they were not then licensed to sell:—Held: the conviction was wrong inasmuch as what was done by applts. did not constitute a "sale" of liquor, but merely a distribution of the same among the members of the club.

112. —— Sale to non-member — Contrary to orders of committee—Committee not liable.]—Applts., trustees & members of the managing committee of a club, were convicted under Licensing Acts for selling liquor without a proper licence to persons not members of the club. The liquor was sold in the club premises by the steward of the club, who in selling it acted contrary to the orders of applts., & without their knowledge or assent. The money which he received for the liquor was paid by him to the accounts of the club:—Held: the conviction was wrong, for applts. were not, in the circumstances, responsible for the act of the steward.—NEWMAN v. JONES (1886), 17 Q. 113. —— —— Whether "sale without a licence."]—The manager of a club was convicted for selling to a non-member liquor without a licence. The alleged non-member had paid no subscription & the application for membership which he had signed had been torn up. The justices convicted:—Held: a rule for certiorari should be refused.—R. v. GLAMORGANSHIRE JJ. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 636; 53 J. P. Jo. 435, D. C.

W., a member, entered the stranger's name as a visitor; then the stranger put down 8*d.*, asking for two pints of ale. W. received it & the ale was supplied to the stranger:—Held: W.

PART VIII. SECT. 1.

g. Members' club—Sale to member—On Sunday.]—Supplying on Sunday intoxicating liquors, the property of a club registered under Licensing Act, 1908, to a member by the steward in exchange for money paid to him by the member, is a sale of liquor within above Act, notwithstanding that the member has a proprietary interest in all the assets of the club. Such sale is within s. 155 of above Act unless the member supplied comes within certain exceptions therein contained.—KNABE v. PRIEST, [1909] S. A. L. R. 47.—AUS.

h. —— —— & guests — Whether sale within Act—Consumption on & off premises.]—Deft. was steward of C. 113 i. —— Sale to non-member—Whether "sale without a license."]—An officer of a club must be taken to know the members of the club. Hence, when an officer of a club serves, on premises certified as a club, liquor to a person not a member, it is primâ facie evidence that the officer did not when he sold this liquor, occupy the premises bona fide as a club, & he may be convicted of selling liquor without a license under Licensing Act, 1885, s. 134.—O'CONNOR v. PRICE (1888), 14 V. 113 ii. —— —— Belief that they were members.]—X., a servant of a club, which had received a certificate under Licensing Act, s. 4 (8), served liquor to persons who were not members of the club, but who had falsely pretended to be members; they were honestly believed by X. to be members. X. was prosecuted for selling liquor without a license under s. 132 of above Act:—Held: the Act did not apply.—GRAVES v. WILLIAMS, [1905] V. L. R. 215.—AUS.

115. —— Sale to wife of member—No bonâ fide agency.]—The wife of a member of a working men's club bought beer from the club steward for her husband, who was not at that time in the club premises. The magistrates having found that there had been a sale of intoxicating liquor to a non-member :—Held : (1) the transaction could not be truly described as a sale or transfer to a member within the meaning of the rules of the club ; (2) the magistrates were justified in drawing the inference that the sale to the woman was not to her as agent for the member.—WOODLEY v. SIMMONDS (1896), 60 J. 118. —— —— Sale for profit.]—The members of a club were formed into a joint stock co. incorporated under the Companies Acts for the purpose of carrying on the club. There was no rule in the memorandum or articles of association or constitution of the club which prevented other than members of the club from holding shares in the co., & in time, owing to the deaths of some members & the resignation of others who were shareholders, a few shares became the property of persons who were not members. The co. in carrying on the club, among other things, sold by retail intoxicating liquors & tobacco to members of the club :—Held : the co. was a separate legal entity from the members of the club, & the sale of the intoxicating liquors & tobacco to members was not in law or in fact a distribution of the common property of the members among themselves, but the sale by retail of these articles by the co. to the members, & constituted breaches of Beerhouse Act, 1834 (c. 85), s. 17, & Refreshment Houses Act, 1860 (c. 27), s. 19.—NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB, LTD. v. COPE (1900), 82 L. The interior was fitted up like a public-house, & E. professed to be manager, & ordered everything on the credit of the club, but could not tell who were members nor how the accounts were kept, & neither committee nor secretary had any means of checking him :—Held : there was evidence to justify the justices in holding that it was only a pretended club, & that E. was the real proprietor.—EVANS v. HEMINGWAY (1887), 52 J. The manager who owned a house in D., had made a parol letting of rooms therein to the club. The club did not prosper financially, & in 1894, the members passed a resolution, entered in the minute-book, that the future control of the club be placed in the hands of the manager conditionally that he received the profits as remuneration for his services if he conformed to the requirements of members & paid all expenses, rent, attendance, gas, etc. From this time onward no minutes were kept. The club was carried on by the manager "at his own risk." He received the entrance fees & subscriptions for membership & the profits. The issue of cards of membership & the entire management of the premises was under his control, & he supplied liquor "at the club tariff." SECT. 2.—REGISTRATION.

123. Failure to make return in January — No offence until February 1—Secretary resigning before end of January—Licensing Act, 1902 (c. 28).]—Applt. was in 1903 the secretary of a registered club, & no return was made during Jan. 1904. During Jan. 1904 applt. resigned the secretaryship, & his successor was appointed. On Feb. 1 applt. called at the office of the clerk to the justices for the necessary forms, & a return was made by applt.'s successor on Feb. 4 :—Held : applt. had committed no offence in not making the return in proper time, as at the end of Jan. 1904 he was not the secretary, nor was he performing secretarial duties on Feb. 1.—BOOTH v. WEIGHTMAN (1904), 91 L. 124. Striking off register—Club occupying premises for which license refused within twelve months—Date from which period runs.]—On May 22, 1908, the compensation authority refused to renew an on-licence on the ground of redundancy of the licensed premises. Pending the determination of the amount of compensation payable under Licensing Act, 1904 (c. 23), the licence in respect of the premises was twice provisionally renewed under Licensing Rules, 1904, rr. 41, 43. On June 5, 1909, the compensation was paid to the persons interested, & on June 9, 1909, the premises which had remained open under the provisional renewals of the licence were closed. On June 10, 1909, the premises were opened as a club :—Held : the renewal of the licence was refused within Licensing Act, 1902 (c. 28), s. 28 (1) (f), on Mar. 22, 1908, the date when the compensation authority actually gave their decision refusing to renew, & not on June 9, 1909, when the refusal became operative by the closing of the licensed premises, &, as the renewal of the licence had not been refused within twelve months next preceding the formation of the club, the ct. of summary jurisdiction had no power to strike the club off the register under that provision.—PLAISTOW WORKING MEN'S CLUB v. HARROD, [1910] 1 K. SECT. 3.—OTHER CASES.

126. Covenant not to sell wine etc. on premises —Sale to members—Not a " sale."]—A club of working men were the lessees of premises the lease of which contained a covenant that they should not be used for the sale of wines, malt or spirituous liquors. The rules provided for the purchase of liquor & its distribution at fixed prices among the members by whom it was consumed upon the premises, the profits being applied to the general purposes of the club :—Held : this was not a sale within the meaning of the covenant.—RANKEN v. HUNT (1894), 38 Sol. 127. " Supply " prohibited — Meaning of " supply "—Liquor Control Regulations.]—Applt., who was the steward of a club, fetched from the club cellar on a Sunday a vessel containing beer which he was about to deliver to a member on the premises. A constable who was present took the beer from applt. before it had left applt.'s possession, & it was never actually delivered to the member. The premises were in an area where the Central Control Board (Liquor Traffic) had prohibited the supply of intoxicating liquor in any club on a Sunday :—Held : there was not a supply sufficient to justify a conviction.—BAILEY v. SAUNDERS (1917), 86 L. Part IX.—Betting and Gaming in Clubs.

SECT. 1.—BETTING.

See, generally, GAMING & WAGERING.

129. Whether within Betting Houses Act, 1853 (c. 119)—Betting among members.]—A club whose members habitually bet is not within the above Act.

Pltf. was a betting agent & member of a club, of which W. was also member, & in which bets were habitually made. For & at the request of deft., who was not a member of the club, pltf. made a bet with W., which he lost & paid. Suing deft. to recover the money as paid to his use, he was met by the pleas that the money was paid in discharge of a wagering contract, & also that the bet was made in a house used in contravention of the above Act :—Held : pltf. was entitled to recover, & a rule to enter a verdict for deft. as to the wagering contract refused, & as to the alleged contravention of the Act, discharged.—OLDHAM v. RAMSDEN (1875), 44 L. 133. —— —— —— What is conducting the business.]—Applts. had been convicted on an indictment with various counts, under Betting Act, 1853 (c. 119), s. 3. B. was only charged with "assisting in conducting the business." In 1906 the I. Social Club was incorporated as a limited co. F. & L., who were bookmakers, were directors of the co, & on the committee of management, of which F. was chairman, & each had fifty shares. B. originally had acted as secretary, latterly he had been auditor. He was also a member, & had proposed one member & seconded two other members of the club out of a total membership of 354. The premises consisted of one room & a lavatory, & it was not denied that they were fitted up with the ordinary appliances of a betting club, e.g. a tape machine & a telephone, & that during racing hours members resorted thither for the purpose of betting, & that some made books ; but it was contended for the defence that the place was a bonâ fide social club, where, at proper times, members had food, played cards & billiards, & read. When the police raided the club, F. & L. were seated conspicuously at a table next to the tape machine, & B. was sitting at their side. It was not denied that the two former were making a book, & habitually used the room or table for that purpose. It was not proved that B. had ever been there during racing hours before, but it appeared that, as secretary, he had signed the agreement for the telephone & for the tape machine, the hire of which was £100 per annum, & that the latter sum did not appear in the accounts of the co. :—Held : there was evidence to go to the jury whether (1) the room was or was not being used for the purpose of F. & L., persons using it, "betting with persons resorting thereto," & (2) B. was assisting in conducting the business ; (3) there was no sufficient reason for disturbing the finding of the jury that the club was a bogus one.—R. v. BRADLEY, FLEMING, & LANCELEY (1908), 1 Cr. count, in "acting in conducting," etc. There was evidence that deft. H. was upon the premises for the purposes of bookmaking during the past year. There was some evidence that deft. F. assisted him. Against both there was evidence of their taking part in the business:—Held: (1) there was evidence to go to the jury; (2) the tenth count of the indictment by the words "conducting the business, etc." sufficiently charged defts. with taking part in the business to convict applts. under Betting Houses Act, 1853 (c. 119), s. 3.—R. v. HITCHIN & FLEMING (1908), 1 Cr. 135. Common gaming house — Whether proprietary club is—Members admitted by ballot—Entrance fees & yearly subscriptions.]—An establishment which is owned by one man & to which members are admitted by ballot, where an entrance fee is demanded, & a yearly subscription is payable in advance, is not a "common gaming-house" within Gaming Act, 1744 (c. 34), s. 1, though cards & dice may be played therein, & a gratuitous supper is provided for the members.

If the rules which regulated the ballot for members, & the payment of fees & subscriptions by them were nominal merely, & the establishment were shown to be open to all who chose to frequent it:—Semble: it would then be a common gaming-house.—CROCKFORD v. MAIDSTONE (LORD) (1846), 8 L. 136. —— —— House kept chiefly for playing games of chance.]—Upon an information charging eight persons named with having committed offences against Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), s. 4, A., the proprietor, was adjudged to have been guilty of "keeping & using the P. Club for the purpose of unlawful gaming." The four committeemen were adjudged to have been guilty, as persons "having the care or management of & assisting in conducting the business" of the house so kept & used for the purpose of unlawful gaming. Three players were also adjudged to have been guilty of the offence, as persons who "assisted by playing in conducting the business of the house so kept & used for the purpose of unlawful gaming":—Held: the proprietor of the club & the four members of the committee were properly convicted, but the players, though possibly liable to be indicted for unlawful gaming in a common gaming-house, were not liable to be summarily convicted under the above Act.—JENKS v. TURPIN (1884), 13 Q. Applt. knew the purpose for which the room was engaged, & that the players were playing for prizes:—Held: applt. could not be convicted under Licensing Act, 1872 (c. 94), s. 17, for suffering a game of skill & chance, not being an unlawful game in itself, to be played on the licensed premises.—LOCKWOOD v. COOPER, [1903] 2 K. v. Club registered under Friendly Societies Acts.]—The ct. has jurisdiction, under the Companies Act, 1862, s. 199, to wind up compulsorily, as an unregistered co., a club registered under Friendly Societies Acts, but not registered under Companies Act, 1862. The fact that such club has passed a resolution to dissolve, & is actually in process of dissolution, does not prevent a creditor of the club from obtaining an order for winding it up.—Re IRISH stitute of Accountants & Book-keepers " & became a fellow thereof on payment of a subscription of £1 1*s.*, the society was not registered under the Companies Act. An action was brought against the society by the Chartered Accountants Institute & S. received a notice that the name of the society had been changed to the " National Society of Qualified Accountants " & stating that each member of the society was personally liable for the costs of the litigation. S. in consequence resigned his membership. On the winding up of the society S.'s name was placed on the list of contributories & in a summons against the official liquidator to vary the list, it was contended that the society was really a club & could not be wound up under the Companies Acts & that S. was not liable to pay to the funds beyond his subscription : —Held : S.'s name should be removed from the list of contributories.—Re NEWCOMBE (1908), Times, Oct. 21.

145. Suit seeking to wind up affairs—Necessary parties—All persons interested.]—(1) To a suit seeking to wind up the affairs of a club or partnership, all persons interested must be made parties, though they are numerous ; it is not sufficient for one to sue on behalf of the others.

(2) A club was dissolved, & the committee were authorised to realise the assets & wind up the affairs. For that purpose the lease was vested in A., B. & C. A. & B., without the concurrence of the other members of the committee, sold the lease & property, & received the amount. A., B. & D., another committeeman, signed the receipt, but A. & B. alone received the money. In a bill to make A. & B. account :—Held : C. & D. were not necessary parties.—RICHARDSON v. HASTINGS (1844), 7 Beav. 301 ; 13 L. J. Ch. 129 ; 8 Jur. 72 ; 49 E. R. 1081.

147. —— ——.]—By the rules of a club, the bankers were alone authorised to receive money on account of the club. Some of the members subscribed & purchased the furniture, which, by deed executed by the subscribers, was vested in pltf. A., in trust to repay the amounts subscribed, & to pay the surplus to the committee for the benefit of the club. The club becoming embarrassed, was afterwards dissolved, & the committee were authorised to wind up the affairs. Two of the committee, C. & D., sold the furniture, & alone received the produce, together with other general assets of the club. A bill was filed by A. on behalf etc., against C. & D., & E., a non-subscribing member, to recover the moneys in the hands of C. & D., & praying that the furniture money might be paid to pltf., on the trusts of the deed, or otherwise as the ct. might direct, & that the general assets recovered might be paid to the bankers or otherwise, etc. :—Held : the bill was not defective for want of parties ; neither the other parties to the deed, nor the other members of the club, were necessary parties.—RICHARDSON v. HASTINGS (1844), 7 Beav. 323 ; 13 L. 148. —— ——.]—A club, composed of numerous members, was dissolved. Two of the managing committee possessed themselves of the assets, & applied them in winding up the affairs :—Held : they might be sued by one member " on behalf," etc., for an account of the moneys received & its application, & to bring back the balance, if any, without making the other members parties, & without seeking a general winding up of the concern.—RICHARDSON v. HASTINGS (1847), 11 Beav. 17 ; 16 L. w. Club formed for betting purposes.]—An assocn. formed with the principal object of enabling its members to bet on horse-racing, occupied premises & provided a reading-room supplied with newspapers, billiard tables, & rooms for playing cards & other games usual in social clubs. The assocn. itself did not actually do any betting, but the members met in its premises for the purposes of betting with one another for gain or profit, & the assocn. regulated the betting between members, & applied the revenue to the proprietary members. In an application for compulsory liquidation of the assocn. :—Held : the assocn. was not an ordinary social club, but an assocn. with a business having for its object the acquisition of gain by its members, & was such an assocn. as might be liquidated under Act 31 of 1909.—MURRAY v. SOUTH AFRICAN TATTERSALLS SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS, [1910] W.
